ZEPPELIN SPEEDING ON TO TOKIO

Today

Up the Rockies.
Dinosaurs Lived There.
One Kansas Girl.
A Mouse Afloat.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 16.

THIS is written on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy fast express from Denver through Colorado, Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois to Chicago.

Little things become big things. Seventy-five years ago citizens of Aurora, Ills., built a railroad 12 miles long that began the "C. B. & Q." With 9,000 miles of railroad in 11 states and a cash investment in construction of $562,000,000.

But let us return to Denver, its story left incomplete the last printing.

F. G. Bonfils, boss of the Denver Post, says "We are going to the top of Mount Evans, more than 14,400 feet high, and I'll show you a real mountain country. You could drop Switzerland in it and never find it again."

YOU want to see Pike's Peak, which means to you the Rocky Mountains, old mining days, gold rush, everything western.

Shocked you learn that Colorado has 100 peaks as high as Pike's Peak and many higher.

Long ago Mr. Pike, toiling over the prairies with his oxen, saw a cloud and noticed that it didn't move. That was Pike's Peak. Mr. Pike's name stuck to it. Pioneers wrote "Pike's Peak or bust" on their wagons. Soon everybody had heard of Pike's Peak.

THAT helps us to realize what advertising can do. It made the reputation of Pike's Peak while higher peaks were neglected.

A CADILLAC car starting at Denver, one mile high, carries you two miles higher up to a spot within two hundred feet of the top of Mt. Evans.

And be it known to the glory of Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., and General Motors that Cadillac goes the whole way on high. It takes steep grades, curves and everything, except when it stops to let a blue-eyed girl from flat Kansas steer her father and mother, grandfather and grandmother and little brothers and sisters, with her right front wheel twelve inches from the edge of a 700-foot drop. You hear her murmur "Can you imagine that, Papa."

YOUR mountain driver says: "I saw that Kansas automobile license, that's why I stopped. Those girls from flat states are nervous. You are afraid to blow your horn behind them. They might twist the wheel and go over the edge."

HE, far from nervous, is quite happy with half an inch between his outer wheel and eternity. "There isn't any danger," says he. "If you jammed on your brakes your differential would drag along the ground and you wouldn't go over."

Happy optimism.

ALL this time you are climbing through Rocky Mountain foothills to the real Rocky Mountains. You can describe the Taj Mahal, or Senator Borah in action, but you can't describe "the Rockies."

FIRST you look up and exclaim. Then you look down and gasp. You look straight ahead and find comfort.

And that kind of landscape reaches back for hundreds of miles toward the West. Your driver says "you can see the Denver Telephone Building from here."

AS you go up, Bear creek roars down the gully. On your left enough water power is wasted to run many factories.

"This place was full of dinosaurs once," says your driver. "The big one in the Smithsonian Institute used to live here. See those three things like claws, in the rock there. A dinosaur's foot made that mark."

FOR 75 miles the mountain road leads always upward, around turns as sharp as a street corner, with the tops of pine trees a thousand feet below.

Presently the trees change, thick trunks are short, heavy limbs, and the trunks themselves are twisted, like fantastic columns, or human bodies, in illustrations of Dante's hell. You reach the last struggling line of trees. On the lower side, green, on the side toward the mountain top they are bleached white, bark gone, worn away by wind, hail, driving snow.

A LITTLE higher, and the timber runs along the mountainside as straight as a knife edge. At that height immutably fixed by nature, the trees stop. There, in desperate silent courage, they have fought for their lives through successive generations, for thousands of centuries.

"SEE that lake down there about seven hundred feet?" says the driver. "That's Lost Lake and nobody knows how deep it is. See how black it is in the center. You can catch big trout there, if you know enough to use live mice."

Reader, this is no tale of horror. No live mouse is put on the hook. Proceed.

"The biggest trout won't bother with flies and they're wise. You take a live mouse, tie a string around him, fasten a hook to the string on the mouse's back. The hook doesn't touch the mouse. You put the mouse fastened to your line, afloat on a little piece of wood. The breeze carries him out onto the lake. The mouse won't get off the wood. He's afraid.

"At the right moment you jerk your line gently and the mouse pulled from his raft begins to swim, carrying the hook. The biggest trout, five or six at a time dash at him, one of them swallows him hook and all. The mouse never knows what happened. But the trout knows. That's the way to catch the biggest trout."

MAGNIFICENTLY beautiful is the view from that rocky mountain top

Mount Evans' top is bare and brown, struggling grass, moss and

BANK CLERK, $40,000 VANISH

Loss Insured, Doesn't Affect Deposits, President Of Institution Declares

Questioned today in regard to the disappearance of Wilson B. Smith, 25, discount clerk of the Oakland Savings and Trust Company, Charles B. Aylesworth, president of the bank, disclosed that a package of negotiable securities valued at $40,000 also was missing.

"The bank is amply protected against the loss," Aylesworth said. "Its position has not been affected in the slightest. The State Banking Department has not even been notified, because there is nothing in the situation that requires that notification be given."

"PAYABLE TO BEARER"

The missing securities are bonds with coupons payable to the bearer, Aylesworth said, but declined to give further details.

Investment brokers and stock exchange firms have been notified, he said, to be on the lookout for the securities in question.

Smith left the bank Thursday evening at 5 o'clock and did not return. He did not go home and his wife said she had no trace of him.

Smith had been employed by the bank for five years. His home is at 3510 Louisa street.

When the absence of the securities was discovered the police and the American Surety Company were notified. The surety company is Smith's bondsman. He was bonded to an amount in excess of the shortage that may be attributed to him, Aylesworth declared.

Smith is described as being five feet five inches tall, as weighing 160 pounds and wearing glasses. His automobile bearing Pennsylvania license plate B 70-286 is missing from the garage at his home, police said.

WIFE STARTS SEARCH

Mrs. Smith said her husband told her Thursday night he was going to a banquet of the Order of United American Mechanics and would be late coming home.

But he did not return and, becoming worried, she called up the bank Friday morning to inquire about him. This was the first intimation bank officials had that Smith was missing. They notified detective headquarters at 11 o'clock Friday night.

PIRATES, BRAVES FINISH TODAY

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—The Pirates are scheduled for their last game of the season in Boston this afternoon. Manager Bush's new battlefront worked almost perfectly on its first tryout yesterday as the Buccos smeared the Braves, 9 to 3, and the Freebooters would like nothing better than to say a fond farewell with a victory.

The last game of the series will bring together Larry French, southpaw recruit of the Pirates, and Bob Smith, the veteran righthander who did a neat shortstop trick before he started to fool the batters. By winning yesterday while the Robins trounced the Cubs, the Pirates reduced the first-place margin of the Bruins to seven and one-half games.

KLINE OBTAINS HENRY SUITE

Campaign headquarters for Mayor Charles H. Kline have been established on the parlor floor of Hotel Henry.

The Mayor has all the rooms on that floor except three, which were rented Tuesday by J. Boyd Euwer, treasurer of the Republican County Committee.

When Euwer rented the rooms, lieutenants of Councilman James F. Malone declared that the Malone headquarters would be in the Henry.

Hearing this report, Howard M. Johnson, secretary to Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon, declared that the Malone forces had procured the space by the trick of representing themselves as "the Republican organization."

Euwer later denied any trick, saying that the rooms were rented not for Malone but for the "organization."

Malone himself yesterday was asked if the rooms were his headquarters.

"No," he said. "This is the headquarters of the regular Republican organization, which will indorse candidates. It will be the headquarters of those candidates."

JUDGE MARTIN, MALONE AGREE TO DEBATE

Kline Promises to Decide on Sun-Telegraph Invitation To Radio Discussion Today

Judge Richard W. Martin and Councilman James F. Malone, candidates for mayor, have accepted the invitation of the Sun-Telegraph to engage in a radio debate on the issues of the campaign.

Mayor Charles H. Kline, seeking another term, has promised to reply today. He did not indicate whether his response would be an acceptance or a regret.

The debate will be held at 7 p. m. next Wednesday under the auspices of the Sun-Telegraph and Radio Station WCAE.

The invitation was extended to the three candidates for the Republican mayoralty nomination through the columns of this newspaper yesterday.

10-MINUTE ARGUMENTS

Each of the three candidates will be allotted 10 minutes for argument and five minutes for rebuttal. The order of speaking will be determined by lot.

"I have been very busy today and the invitation has just been called to my attention," said Mayor Kline last night. "I will give it my consideration tonight and make my answer tomorrow."

Judge Martin sent the following letter of acceptance:

"I notice in the Sun-Telegraph today an invitation to the three candidates for the Republican nomination for mayor to engage in a radio debate on Wednesday, August 21, at 7 p. m. over WCAE.

STIMULATES INTEREST

"It is a fine evidence of the public spirit of your newspaper to extend this invitation. It will enable the taxpayers of Pittsburgh to hear the issues of this campaign discussed by those who should discuss them. It will stimulate and encourage the public interest which is absolutely essential to representative government.

"I congratulate the Sun-Telegraph upon this splendid and generous offer. I am delighted to accept it. I consider it of such great importance that I have canceled a previous engagement in order to participate in this debate."

Councilman Malone told a representative of this newspaper:

"I accept the invitation with pleasure. I am always glad to have an opportunity to tell the voters of Pittsburgh my reasons for being a candidate for mayor through the Sun-Telegraph, whether it be by means of a radio invitation or in its columns."

19 TOWNS FIGHT $200,000 FIRE IN LIGONIER

Six Firemen Hurt; Flames Threaten to Destroy Entire Business Area

LIGONIER, Pa., Aug. 17.—Firemen early today still were pouring water into the ruins of five buildings destroyed by fire in the "Diamond" last night, which for a time threatened to sweep an entire block in the business district.

Loss was placed at $200,000 to $250,000 by Fire Chief Wilt. Six members of the Ligonier Fire Department were injured. They were N. M. Weller, Harry Mitchell, James Nichols, Jack Christner, Howard Griffith and Fred Fowler. Christner, after being carried out twice, returned to duty. All received medical attention.

19 TOWNS HELP

Fire companies from 19 towns aided local firemen in battling the flames. One came from Meyersdale, 55 miles away.

Towns helping fight the flames were Greensburg, Irwin, Central City, Blairsville, Bolivar, Latrobe, Derry, Johnstown, Stoyestown, Mt. Pleasant, Conemaugh, Scottdale, Meyersdale, Somerset, Boswell, Franklin Borough, New Florence, Jennerstown, Manor and Jeannette.

The fire started in an elevator shaft in the Weller Hardware Company and swept up the shaft, igniting a number of barrels of oil on an upper floor. It spread so rapidly that firemen began sending out calls for aid within half an hour after the first alarm.

Firemen risked their lives in entering the building when a store of

DOROTHY AUNE MARGARET STONE

CLUES FAIL IN CHILD KILLING

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—An overabundance of clues poured in on police who scrambled through a maze of leads today in an almost frantic man hunt for the slayer of 12-year-old Dorothy Aune, but none of them apparently had brought detectives much nearer solution of the crime.

Six of 21 men taken into custody for questioning as to their movements last Tuesday—the day the child was kidnaped, attacked and strangled—still were held in jail without charge last night although officers admitted their questioning developed little important information.

Tentacles of the case stretched outside the city yesterday for the first time as a dock worker in Duluth confessed the slaying and then immediately repudiated his story, and an abandoned automobile was found at Hopkins, 10 miles west of here, containing a gunnysack, some heavy twine, a wig and a torn piece of blue cloth.

Both Minneapolis and Duluth police disregard the dock worker's confession, as the man apparently was irresponsible, but local officers planned to question the owner of the car located at Hopkins.

He was picked up there Thursday night on a charge of driving while drunk and is held in the city jail.

When the child-victim's body was found, Wednesday morning, in a dark spot in South Minneapolis, her hands and feet were bound with heavy twine, and she was wrapped in two blood-stained gunnysacks.

Of the six men still held in jail tonight, three are brothers who operate a shoe store near the Aune home.

While police pressed their search for the slayer, the grief-stricken parents of Dorothy made preparations for her funeral today.

AIRSHIP OVER HALF WAY TO GOAL

More Than 3,300 Miles of Journey Covered as Big Liner Holds to Fast Pace

By EDWARD L. DEUSS,
International News Service.

MOSCOW, Aug. 17.—The Graf Zeppelin had completed three-fifths of her Friedrichschafen-Tokio flight by noon today, it was estimated here. Allowing for detours, it is estimated that the Graf will have traveled approximately 7,000 miles from Friedrichshafen, when she reaches Tokio.

The Moscow radio station said the Graf was in wireless communication with Berlin throughout the night. The airship today was over North-Central Siberia, flying above dense forests where the population averages less than two persons to the square mile.

With more than half of her journey behind her, the Graf Zeppelin at dawn today was soaring gallantly over the Steppes of Siberia on her trail-blazing flight from Friedrichshafen to Tokio.

Last reports of her progress received here indicated that the huge air liner had already covered more than 3,300 miles since leaving her home hangar on the second leg of the Hearst-Zeppelin Round-the World Flight.

Shortly before midnight, Central European time, the Zeppelin gave her position as 80 degrees east longitude, 62 degrees north latitude.

At that time she was about 800 miles northeast of Tara, Siberia, and about 1,000 miles east of the Ural Mountains.

Nears Arctic Circle

Her position was reported here by the Ekaterinburg (Sverdiovsk) wireless station maintained by the Soviet Association of Friends of Aviation.

She was within 300 miles of the Arctic Circle and apparently heading on a northeast course toward Turuchansk, possibly to take advantage of favorable following winds.

A short time before the Zeppelin had been sighted over Usole Kisel, which is near the sixty-first parallel of longitude. At that time she was taking a due easterly course, and making high speed.

The airship is believed to be in constant communication with the Siberian wireless stations at Turuchansk and Irkutsk which can furnish her with weather reports.

Holds Fast Pace

The 20 passengers and crew of 41 are now encountering the coldest part of Graf's journey. At its last reported position the Graf was more northerly than at any time on her flight so far.

The Zeppelin continues to maintain an average speed of more than 70 miles an hour, judging from reports of her progress.

If she maintains the same steady, distance-eating pace on the remainder of her journey, the huge craft will easily arrive at Tokio within the 120 hours set as a minimum by Dr. Hugo Eckener, her commander.

It is believed Dr. Eckener

Eckener Maintains Fast Pace As Craft Nears Arctic Circle on Record Flight

will veer slightly to the southward toward Lake Bikal, and then head still further in that direction over Manchuria to Vladivostok and thence to Tokio.

The Zeppelin's trip so far has been unmarked by an incident to mar its smooth, steady progress. From the time she left Friedrichshafen at 4:35 a. m., Berlin time, Thursday, (11:35 p. m. Wednesday, Pittsburgh time), Dr. Eckener has picked his course carefully and managed to avoid any atmospheric conditions which might hamper the Zeppelin's speed.

Runs on 4 Motors

Reaching Berlin six hours after the start the Graf continued on a northeasterly course, passing over the Baltic coast, then crossing Lithuania and Latvia and entering Soviet territory.

Continuing on a northeasterly course, the Graf passed half way between Moscow and Leningrad and cut across the northern part of Russia. She crossed into Siberia over the Ural Mountains at about sundown last night after traversing Russia proper, from its western to eastern border, in about 10 hours.

The Graf has sufficient fuel aboard to last 180 hours. She is running on four motors most of the time to economize on fuel in order to forestall the possibility of running short if she meets headwinds on the latter part of her journey.

Until she comes within the ordinary range of Japanese and Chinese wireless stations, direct messages from the Graf are expected to be infrequent.

Tokio Fearful as Typhoon Brews in Path of Zep

TOKIO, Aug. 17.—Fear is expressed here that the Graf Zeppelin may encounter a typhoon over the Japanese Sea on its way to the Masumigaura airfield. The Weather Bureau reports a sharp typhoon in the past two days.

The typhoon, however, disappeared yesterday, but a new atmospheric depression now off Shanghai is likely to move toward Japan by the time the Zeppelin arrives.

Aviation circles are greatly stirred by the report that the Emperor of Japan may visit the flying field the day the airship arrives. He has repeatedly expressed a keen interest in the flight. If the weather is inclement Emperor Hirohito will hear the reports by radio.

It is learned here that the newspaper Nichi Nichi is making an endeavor to charter the Zeppelin to make a special flight over Tokio, carrying the cabinet members and city officials.

The newspapers are giving great prominence to Zeppelin news, the display equalling that given the enthronement ceremonies last fall. Frequent extras announce the progress of the airship across Russia.

The Osaki Asahi is conducting a guessing contest on how long it will take the Zeppelin to fly from Friedrichshafen to Tokio.

At the Imperial Hotel specially decorated menu cards have been made by artists, showing the Zeppelin topping Mount Fujiyama.

A special Yokohama custims office crew will expedite the landing of the passengers when the Zeppelin reaches the Kasumigaura Field.

ARRESTED FOR SIGN

JAMES F. MALONE
for MAYOR

WORKMEN POSTING MALONE BANNER

Workmen erecting this sign on the third-floor apartment of Isaac Lubovsky at 2020 Wylie avenue hadn't finished their task before police arrived and arrested Mr. Lubovsky (inset).

MALONE SIGN CAUSES ROW

Erection of a James F. Malone for Mayor sign brought Isaac Lubovsky, of 2020 Wylie avenue, into Center avenue police court today but no decision was made by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

"I'm not interested in the sign and keep politics out of the case," the magistrate stressed to prisoner and witnesses as he outlined what constitutes disorderly conduct, the charge Lubovsky faced.

It was testified by John Pennington, Negro, janitor of a three-story apartment building at the Wylie avenue address, that he told Lubovsky he had orders from the Colonial Trust Company, renting agents, to permit no signs to be erected. He further told the magistrate that Ellsworth E. Murphy, of the trust company, ordered him to call the police if necessary.

That's what he did yesterday afternoon when Lubovsky had sign painters start erecting the 40x4-foot illuminated sign. Patrolman Howard Caldwell answered the call and testified Lubovsky became disorderly when informed he could not erect the sign. Neighbors testified Lubovsky did not become disorderly and that he was roughly handled and thrown into the patrol wagon.

Lubovsky himself testified he was not disorderly. He then started to tell how he has had signs at each election for the last six years. Mayor Charles H. Kline had the banner four years ago, he said.

It was then Magistrate Rothenberg ordered politics be kept out.

When questioned later today on the testimony offered by the janitor, an official of the Colonial Trust Company stated his company had ordered no person's arrest.

VIRGINIA FETES HOOVER

MADISON, Va., Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Gov. Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, in his address of welcome at the Hoover celebration here today, declared that President Hoover teaches a "healthful lesson" in simplicity of pleasure seeking by his week-end visits to his camp here.

"The very simplicity of that camp carries a healthful lesson," he said. "Here is the most powerful executive of the wealthiest nation in the world choosing to find recreation in a fashion that is not beyond the means of many of our citizens. Nearly every week-end he comes quietly to his Virginia retreat without pomp or ceremony in order that he may recapture in the sweetness of the silence of the mountains the strength he has spent during the week in carrying great burdens of power and responsibility."

President Hoover has been Madison County's informal guest during week-ends throughout the summer.

He accepted the invitation to attend the ceremony several weeks ago, and since then the people of the county, led chi[illegible] by life-long Democrats, have been getting ready to have their appreciation of his periodical visits in their midst expressed in the most correct and proper way possible in an atmosphere of old-fashioned southern hospitality.

Suspect in Lamar Bank Killings Held

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 17.—(AP.)—A definite clue as to the identity of the men who held up a Lamar, Col., bank early in 1928, shot and killed three bank officials and later a doctor and escaped with $118,000, was believed in the hands of authorities with the arrest of Herbert L. Royston near San Andreas, Calaveras County. Royston was said to have confessed that he was one of the escaped robbers.

There was a little rain in Florida and along the coast to Charleston, S. C.; in Northeastern Nebraska and in scattered places in the Southern Rocky Mountain states. Elsewhere no rain was reported, and the skies are mostly clear. The eastern high pressure area is now centered over Virginia and covers the entire eastern half of the country. It is increasing considerably in pressure, highest reported is 30.32 inches, at Lynchburg. Low pressure stretches from north of the Great Lakes southwestward over the Plains states to the far Southwest, and high pressure is developing over Montana and the Dakotas. The temperature changes were slight, but the tendency is towards rising over this section.

River Conditions.

The rivers are stationary at low stages. Stage at Franklin is 0.2 foot; Lock No. 7, 10.2 feet; Pittsburgh, 9.8; Dam No. 2, 8.0; Dam No. 6, 7.5; Dam No. 9, 8.3, and Dam No. 12: 4.2. The dams are up.

19 TOWNS FIGHT $200,000 FIRE

shotgun shells and other ammunition exploded.

From the Weller Building the flames spread to the Marker Building, a two-story structure housing the A. P. Musick grocery store and the Merchants 5-and-10-cent store on the ground floor and apartments on the second. From there they ate their way into the Postoffice Building. Clerks and other employes carried mail and valuable papers into the street. Only a few letters were destroyed by water.

SECOND FIRE THERE

Loss to the Weller Building was placed at more than $50,000, to the Merchants Building, $110,000; Marker Building, $50,000, and to the grocery stock in the Musick grocery, $8,500.

The scene of the fire was on the site of a disastrous blaze in 1896. Chief Wilt and several firemen who fought the fire last night were at the first blaze.

More than 5,000 persons from the neighboring towns, who gathered in the "Diamond," hampered the firemen in their work. State police from Troop A, Greensburg, and state highway patrolmen helped the local police force in maintaining order.

He speaks English, French, Spanish and German fluently, police said.

Lucky Bucks—New Money for Old

By LUCKY BUCK

Folks, I'm tired.

They're holes in my shoes and socks; my dogs are weary—plenty weary; my head aches something awful; all because I'm spending so much time and effort scattering Lucky Bucks around Pittsburgh.

I walk and I walk and I walk, and where do I get? Well, I come to a little store, give the boss a Big Bill, and he just passes it on to somebody else, who gets all the credit and glory.

I gives and I gives and I gives; no wonder I'm tired and I'm weary and ready for the hay about 6 at night. Where do I come out on this game? That's what I'd like to know.

New shoes, that's what I need. More than that, I need new feet. And most of all, I need about 12 months' vacation All because I pass out Lucky Bucks.

So do me a favor, folks—keep your eyes peeled for my smackers and hold on to 'em when you get 'em. Now here's a bird who muffed his best shot: I peregrinated out to that little shoe store at 605 Herron avenue. What do I find there but a hard-working shoe doctor, watching with those gimlet eyes of his for Fortunate Simoleons. And he fumbles it, without peeping a peep.

And that bird in the Stanton-Negley drug store who sold me powder and soap—as if I ever used soap—in exchange for an undisguised Lucky Buck. Well, it's just too bad, I guess, when they don't catch on very quick.

That's not all, either. Get the low-down on this rock: Some bird in the Mooney Garage, Fifth avenue and Huey street, McKeesport, walks up as I park my car and asks how much gas I want. I looks at him, kinda suspicious, and then discovers I've parked at a curb-side filling station. So I pacifies him by buying a quart of oil.

Then I asked him if he read the Sun-Telegraph.

"Sure," he says, "I read that paper morning and night. Why, that's my Bible, man."

Well, I drove off after advising him to read it carefully and well; the laughs on him, what?

And another Rambling Rock restfully reposes in the till of the cash drawer of confectionery at 630 Millvale avenue, where I bought a glass of milk and a Sun-Telegraph. Nice lady, that, but not quick, if you know what I mean.

By the way, that was a nice-enough necktie I bought at Finklestein's Cut Price Store, 18 Milford street, Duquesne. Finky wasn't in, but that was all right—the dame what waited on me was oke, see. And she thought I was bein' fresh when I asked her if she reads the Sun-Telegraph.

And so back to work, where I found Mrs. Lena Licek, 227 Sagamore street, who had picked up a Succulent Suskin at the Givens drug store. She claims she has good uses for that money. I wonder what they could be.

lichens fighting for a place on the granite.

Beneath stretch the treeless plains of Kansas, Nebraska, to the right, mountain ranges that seem never to end.

A FEW feet below Mt. Evans' summit lies Echo Lake. There the City of Denver, 75 miles away, has established a public park and camping ground for the people of Denver and the whole country. Things here are arranged for the average man.

WITHIN convenient reach of the city, Denver has purchased four thousand acres and established, forever, a great playground.

BUFFALO BILL'S grave on the mountain, pansies and geraniums planted on it, is part of Denver's park. Buffalo Bill and his wife will stay there, despite relatives in Cody, named for Buffalo Bill.

Citizens of Denver made the grave of the great scout and his wife 16 feet deep, put over it a mat of galvanized wire 10 inches thick and covered that with concrete.

John Keating, able station master at Denver, says, "You would need a carload of TNT to get Cody out of there."

Returning to Denver you cross a creek where up until recently hundreds of Chinese squatted washing grains of gold from sand, long after white men, not interested in $5 a day, had ceased panning.

YOU pass farms where lambs are in great numbers, are fattened on sugar beet residue after the sugar has been squeezed out.

In the evening you visit one of Denver's beautiful parks where an orchestra employed by the city gives concerts nightly. Thousands of citizens gather, listening to the music beside a lake and a fountain electrically illuminated.

You ought to see Denver and Bonfils.

CHINESE SITUATION TENSE AS TROOPS BATTLE RUSSIANS

International News Service.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 17.—As the result of repeated clashes between Chinese and Soviet troops along the Manchurian-Siberian border, the situation has become increasingly tense, according to advices received here today from Nanking via Mukden.

That relations between the Chinese and Soviets were strained almost to the breaking point was indicated by reports of the latter's activities in Manchuria.

TOWN BOMBARDED

The town of Meiyaotze, near Manchuli and 12 miles from the border, has been bombarded by Soviet artillery and attacked by Soviet cavalry, according to reports received here. The Soviets are said to have retired after both sides suffered heavy casualties.

Eighteen Chinese casualties were reported in an engagement at Dalainor, on the Chinese Eastern Railway, when 700 Soviet troops were driven from the town after occupying it for an hour.

A clash between cavalry at the outposts south of Pogranichnaya was also reported. Fourteen Russians and 12 Chinese were reported killed in this action.

CONCENTRATE LORRIES

Soviets are reported to have concentrated 300 motor lorries at Sanghsienfang, northeast of Kirin, following the occupation of numerous districts.

The gravest apprehension is felt at Nanking relative to the movement of the Soviets. It is believed there that the Soviets are planning to occupy the entire Chinese Eastern Railway, launching attacks simultaneously west from Manchuli and east from Pogranichnaya and Harbarovsk, with Harbin as an objective.

Chinese authorities are reported to be making defensive counter moves.

RUSH PANTAGES PROSECUTION

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 17.—(INS.)—Held for trial on charges of assaulting Eunice Pringle, 17, co-ed and amateur dancer, Alexander Pantages, Pacific Coast theater magnate, remained at liberty on $25,000 bail today while District Attorney Buron Fitts proceeded with preparations to have the 54-year-old millionaire's case taken to the Superior Court for prosecution "as quickly as possible."

Pantages' attorneys said they were ready for an early trial. Abiding by his lawyers' instructions, the vaudeville magnate would say nothing today concerning the action of Municipal Judge Leonard Wilson, who last evening ordered him held with a remark from the bench that "there is sufficient cause to believe the defendant guilty."

Arraignment of Pantages probably will take place early next week. The charges carry a penalty that would keep him imprisoned in San Quentin the rest of his life if he is convicted.

Judge Wilson's decision came immediately after the close of a three-day preliminary hearing in which the girl was the chief witness. Fainting several times during her testimony, she told of being attacked by Pantages August 9 when she called at his office to seek booking of a dancing act.

REFUEL FLIERS HEAD EAST

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., Aug. 17.—(AP.)—The biplane Spokane Sun God, piloted by Nick Mamer and Art Walker, left for Cheyenne at 6 o'clock this morning after having circled the airport here all night.

They are essaying a round trip non-stop flight between Spokane and New York.

Last night the pilots dropped a note stating they intended to tarry above the local airport until dawn.

They gave no reason but it was thought their caution was due to reports of storms ahead. However, a radio broadcast from Denver reported the storms in their path had dissipated and urged the fliers to continue their eastward flight.

While they lingered over Rock Springs a supply plane from Cheyenne arrived and fed 300 gallons of gasoline to the Sun God.

SNOOK'S APPEAL PREPARED

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Defense attorneys today prepared the first move in the fight to save Dr. James H. Snook, dismissed Ohio State University professor, from the death sentence carried in a verdict of murder for the slaying of his co-ed sweetheart, Miss Theora Hix, 24, which was returned by a jury Wednesday.

A motion for new trial is ready for presentation to Trial Judge Henry L. Scarlett, who granted the attorneys—E. O. Ricketts, John F. Seidel and Max Seyfert—three days in which to prepare the motion. Action on the matter will come Monday, and if the motion is overruled the death sentence will be passed on Dr. Snook.

Sheriff Harry T. Paul has ordered that no one is to see Dr. Snook except his attorneys. The order excludes Mrs. Helen M. Snook, his wife, and his aged mother from his cell.

If the new trial motion is overruled defense counsel said they would ask an immediate review of the case on error proceedings to the Court of Appeals.

HAPPY FIREMEN END MEETING

The Western Pennsylvania Firemen's Association brought its week of festivity in East Pittsburgh to a close yesterday.

A large crowd cheered the motor races in which Brackenridge Fire Company, which had not won a prize the previous day, dominated proceedings. They ran off with first prize in the service race and the hill-climbing contest for heavy trucks. They also placed second in the hill-climbing race for light trucks. Parnassus won the latter event, while Irwin came in second in the hill-climb for heavy trucks.

The water battle in the evening was the event of the day. Thousands watched Franklin Fire Company of, Stowe Township, and Chalfant Borough fight 45 minutes to an exhausted finish for Chalfant and a wet one for the spectators. This victory constituted Franklin's third of the week, and established it as champion of this year's contestants.

A mummers' parade through the streets enlivened things in the evening.

WOMAN RUNS TROLLEY CAR

ALIQUIPPA, Pa., Aug. 17.—The industrial community down the Ohio River comes forward to claim an unusual distinction—the presence of the only woman street car operator in this district, if not in the country.

Mrs. Grace Gross, who lives on a farm at Five Points, near Carnot, is seen daily operating her "one woman" trolley on the lines of the Woodlawn and Southern Street Railways Company. She is known to hundreds of workmen in the district and has held her unusual position for almost 11 years.

Mrs. Gross is the mother of four children, three of them living with her on the farm. She has three grandchildren.

She begins her day's work at 5:20 o'clock, hauling the workmen to their tasks until 8:25, and then returns home. She resumes work in time to come for the afternoon rush. During the odd hours when traffic is not heavy, busses replace the trolley.

Mrs. Gross began working for the trolley company in 1918 when most men of the community were in their country's service.

Danish Raiders Attack, Take Rum Runner

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 17.—A Danish customs boat and a rum runner last night staged a battle in a manner not unknown to American waters. The customs boat Ternen surprised the boat Herkules with 1,400 litres of spirits. The smuggler fled to its mother ship outside territorial waters, but the Ternen pursued and demanded its surrender on the ground that it ha been caught in Danish waters. A revolver fight was in progress when a German patrol boat with a machine gun clinched the seizure.

GIRL, STRAPPED TO CHAIR, DEAD

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 17.—(INS.)—Lower Merion police today were attempting to determine if pretty 19-year-old Mary Frances Morgan was murdered or committed suicide. The girl was found tightly strapped to a chair in her Narbeth home with the gas jets of the kitchen stove open, by her mother last night.

While all evidence pointed towards murder, the fact that Miss Morgan's left arm was free lent some credence to the suicide theory. Both ankles and her right arm were fastened tightly to the chair in which she was sitting. Just beyond her reach on a table sat a bottle which smelled strongly of liquor. Police are awaiting a chemist's report on its contents.

POLICE DEFIED; REDS MEET

For the second time within 10 days, the Communists party held meetings here in defiance of police orders. A large group of Communists gathered at Union avenue and East Ohio street last night. Police did not interfere and there was no disorder.

Capt. Anthony Block again took names and addresses of speakers. The usual cordon of police did nothing else but clear the streets of the crowd that had assembled to hear the speakers.

Expecting the gathering to be dispersed by police, Max Saltsman, one of the sponsors of the meeting, waited on the side lines, his pockets bulging with bail money.

Clark refused to grant a permit for a Communist gathering at Union avenue and E. Ohio street yesterday afternoon. He cited Schenley Oval as a suitable site for the meeting.

As Fred Careno, the first speaker took his stand on the box, Capt. Block approached him and asked him if he had a permit. Careno replied in the negative and Block turned away.

Block declared he received orders from Superintendent Walsh to follow the procedure employed at the previous meeting when reports were turned over to the city law department.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Communist party of America and the Young Communists League. A similar meeting scheduled last night at Forty-sixth and Butler streets was postponed.

Other speakers last night were Sam Herman, district organizer for the Young Communists League; Mike Harrison, Pat Cush and Mrs. Fannie Toohey.

She was found unconscious by a caretaker who sent her to the hospital. She reported she had been robbed of $52 and a gold watch.

BLEAK COLD OF SIBERIA BANISHES SLEEP FOR LADY HAY

GRAF SPREADS FEAR AMONG PEASANTS

Huddled Gatherings Around Churches in Panic as Zep Casts Shadow Among Them

By LADY DRUMMOND HAY,

Only Woman Passenger on Hearst-Zeppelin Round-the-World Flight.

ABOARD GRAF ZEPPELIN, Aug. 17. — Midnight's holy hour found us in the heart of Siberia. Most of the passengers were awake, so thrilled —and so cold—that they find it hard to do so common-place a thing as sleep.

We have dropped from 3,700 to 2,500 feet. It is penetratingly cold as we rush at the rate of 73 miles an hour over frozen fastnesses, always seeming nearer the Arctic.

The sky is somewhat overcast, but we were able to note in the darkness what seemed to be the rushing together of the Obi and Irtish rivers. It was not quite midnight then. We were then calculating eight hours difference in time from New York. E. S. T.)

We have had excellent weather for the entire flight thus far, but we foresee that we are to strike a depression tomorrow, coming from the North.

Ample Fuel

Dr. Eckener announced at dinner that "we still have 100 hours of fuel."

"We have only used 6,000 cubic meters of fuel gas out of 24,000 we started with," said the commander, "and we have burned three tons of gasoline out of our supply of 10 tons."

We are all realizing and taking full advantage of the extraordinary privilege which has been given us to see Russia from one end to the other as no mortal eyes have ever done before. But we cannot forget the cold. I have my feet in fur-lined arctics. All of the passengers have quit indulging in games and recreation, and all have turned to taking notes, making observations and studying technical manuals. Hour by hour we are confronted by new strange sights.

Half Way Across

ABOARD THE GRAF ZEPPELIN, Aug. 17.—(10:30 p. m.)—Tomorrow morning we will be half way to Toko!

Lieut. Jack Richardson, of the United States naval air service, went to bed tonight with a violent cold, a sore throat and a slight temperature. But the illness is nothing serious—Lieut. Jack expects to be out of bed by tomorrow. Karl Von Wiegand and William B. Leeds are doctoring him.

It is chilly tonight, and we have all donned our leather togs. Sir Hubert Wilkins, veteran of many an expedition to the polar regions, has finally been forced to seek heavier clothing than his vaunted camel's hair coat. He's the butt of many a jest as I write this message at 2 p. m. Eastern daylight time.

A Stowaway!

A stowaway has been discovered aboard—A jet black cat. Rigger Ludwig Knorr brought the shivering pussy to me and it is now berthed in my cabin. Even Commander Eckener is kind to this stowaway, and asked me to take the best of care of it.

There is only one sad man on the Zeppelin—Professor Karklin, the Russian weatherman, who is dejected because we were prevented from flying over Moscow. But we are all sorry, too.

Endless Sibera, with its oceanlike forests and meandering labyrinthine rivers, is monotonously flat. We had our first taste of danger when we passed over the Urals this afternoon. Although the mountains are only 900 feet high where we passed over them, they are the birthplace of storms and we were lucky to have such good weather.

Natives Appalled

ABOARD THE GRAF ZEPPELIN, Aug. 17.—(Via Norddeich Radio.)—Forest fires unknown of except by peasants in the bleak Siberian wastes! Huddled villagers fearing the wrath of the divine as this unthought-of, unimagined, unconceived viking of the air throbs its steady way through the vacant skies of trackless Siberia!

So far away from civilization, these Siberian hamlets. So steeped in their religious being and so unaware of outside life—in one town there were 40 churches—and yet many of the inhabitants had not seen a railroad train, not to mention a giant airship.

Below us, these poor, ignorant, almost tribal towns, gathered their broods about the churches as we sped by above. They cringed as the Graf's giant shadow overtook their open hiding places—for them, it was an ominous appearance out of the sky of a silver thrumming wraith, awesome and terrifying in its speed and deep throated mumbling by day—and as celestial and nebulous as another world, illumined by night.

ZEP ENFOLDED IN HEART OF STEPPES

Motors Throb on Through Hundreds of Miles of Dreary Siberian Wastes

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND,

World-renowned newspaper correspondent, who crossed the Atlantic aboard the Graf Zeppelin on its first trans-Atlantic cruise, and who is writing the story of the Hearst-Zeppelin Round-the-World Flight.

ABOARD GRAF ZEPPELIN, Aug. 16.—At 20 minutes before midnight (3:40 N. Y. daylight time) we are sailing into the heart of Central Siberia whose lonely stretches reach many hundreds of miles in all directions from our position.

We are now 165 miles from the confluence of the Irtish and Obi rivers and are flying at an altitude of 3,600 feet. The air is chilly and we have put on our winter clothes.

Commander Eckener has expressed his complete satisfaction with the progress we are making. He is still using but four of our five motors and we are making better than the average of 68 miles which we maintained up to the time we reached the Siberian border.

It is hard to realize that with more than one-third of the distance from Friedrichshafen to Tokio already behind us that it was only yesterday morning we left the little Zeppelin town on the shores of Lake Constance.

DESOLATE STEPPES

ABOARD THE GRAF ZEPPELIN, Aug. 16.—(Via Norddeich Radio)—Flying over Siberia! Over the "white lands"—the desolate wastes of the Steppes; over part of Asia's vast unknown! For the first time an airship has pushed past Europe into Asia, the mysterious, and conquers time, space and writes history as five good motors reel off the miles to Tokio on the second leg of the Hearst-Zeppelin Round-World Flight.

Flying at the rate of 75 miles an hour, it took us a full 60 minutes to pass through the dense smoke of vast forest fires after crossing the Ural Mountain chain this afternoon. Even the leaping flames and glowing forests were barely visible in the distance through the pall.

At 6 o'clock, local time (11 a. m., Eastern daylight time), we were 150 miles north of Tiumen, on the Trans-Siberian Railway, and had just put 150 miles between us and the point in the Ural Mountains which marks the Siberian-Russian boundary. We are fighting our way along just north of the sixtieth parallel and soon will cross the Obi River.

MAKING HISTORY

For the first time in history, an airship with passengers flew from Europe to Asia when the Graf entered Siberia at 4:40 p. m. (9:40 a. m. Eastern daylight time), near Latinskoje. Commander Eckener said to me, as we were just crossing the frontier:

"We have been in the air 34 hours and have covered 2,300 miles or a little more than one-third of the distance to Japan. We have struck an average speed of just under 68 miles an hour, which is remarkable speed, considering our flight to the north last night and this morning while running around that mid-Siberian storm. And before us, the weather looks excellent."

When we crossed the Ural Mountains, with Mount Konjakofski to the south peeking through the clouds, the Graf began to panic the ignorant peasants below us. This kept up throughout Siberia and had been noticeable in the unpopulous regions of Eastern Russia.

TAKEN FOR MONSTER

Many of the peasants, who have never even seen a train, evidently had taken the Zeppelin, with its thrumming motors and sylph-like speed and lines, for a celestial monster. We saw villagers run wildly into forests and houses and gather around churches, gazing to the sky in awe and terror.

Many of the streets of the small villages and towns were utterly deserted; everybody, apparently, had sought cover. Few people in the world have the comprehensive mental picture of Russia we are getting. It is indescribably empty, dreary and melancholy.

At 3:05 p. m., we had crossed the Kama River, 68 miles north of Perm, passing over a vast expanse of almost endless forestation, and maintaining an average speed of more than 60 miles an hour. There had been little to see since we passed over Wishy Wolotschek at 1:40 this morning, when we saw a burning house in the village. Rickard, Leeds and I were in the lounge, but all the other passengers were sleeping. We were then heading for the Urals north of Ekaterinburg.

GRAF BLAZING ASIA TRAIL

By SIR HUBERT WILKINS

Famous explorer, who crossed the Atlantic aboard the Graf Zeppelin from Friedrichshafen, and is writing the story of the Hearst-Zeppelin-Round-the-World Flight.

ABOARD THE GRAF ZEPPELIN, Aug. 17. — (Via Norddeich Radio.)—The hardy Graf Zeppelin, contemptuous of distance, with only four motors running to conserve fuel, sails onward, ever onward, over the vast, dreary expanse of Siberia—the first airship ever to carry passengers from Europe into Asia in search of the Orient!

OUT OF RUSSIA

One-third of the more than 6,500 miles of our flight to Tokio on the second lap of the Hearst-Zeppelin-Round-the-World-Flight has fallen behind us—we are at this moment, 6 o'clock local time (11 a. m. eastern Daylight time), 2,300 miles on our way. Dr. Eckener estimates our position as 150 miles north of Tiumen on the trans-Siberian railway. Thus, along the sixtieth parallel, we are 150 miles out of Russia and into Siberian territory.

FORTY CHURCH SPIRES

At 6 o'clock yesterday morning, we were exactly over Vologda. Picturesque town—I counted 40 church spires. The astonished people rushed to the streets in night attire—and, scared and frightened, I judge, almost out of their wits, just as quickly rushed back into their houses.

Although the weather was comparatively good at that time, the wind was a little less favorable than we had been having, and cumulous clouds were in the air.

FINE TAIL WIND

At 3 in the morning, local time, we were about 230 miles north of Moscow, when a strong easterly wind forced a northerly course. The wind then got behind us, giving us a good ground speed of about 70 miles an hour. Daylight was breaking over the villages as we sped along.

Asks $15,000 for Fall on Walk

Injuries sustained by a fall on an alleged defective sidewalk are the basis of two $15,000 damage suits on file today in Common Pleas Court. Mrs. May O'Donnell filed the actions against Scott township and Oliver Simpson, of 5 Ash street, owner of the property in front of which the township mantains the sidewalk. Mrs. O'Donnell says she fell June 10, fracturing her ankle and receiving other injuries.

PITT OFFICERS BLOCK SUIT

Blocking a hearing which was to have been held in Common Pleas Court today on a petition of an alternative writ of mandamus on the University of Pittsburgh to reinstate Arthur G. McDowell, expelled student member of the Liberal Club, the university trustees late yesterday filed a motion to quash the petition. Judge Harry H. Rowand allowed the motion to be filed and all proceedings are stayed pending final decision on the motion, which will come up for argument on the next regular argument list at the end of the September term of Common Pleas Court.

McDowell and his father asked for the mandamus August 17, requiring the university to either reinstate the student or show cause why he shall not be reinstated. He and another student had been expelled May 2 in connection with the Pitt Liberal Club activities.

The motion to quash contends that the petition does not state wherein McDowell was expelled without cause, or how it was made through prejudice or malice, as alleged.

Cruelty Is Made Basis of Suit

Charging her husband with cruelty Mrs. Marion S. Campbell 110 Jackson street, North Side, has filed suit for divorce in Common Pleas court against Thomas B. Campbell, 5491 Hays street. They were married January 9, 1917 and separated January 31, 1929.

OPPOSES SUIT FOR RECEIVER

A suit of Mrs. Anna B. West, 3646 Veteran street, North Side, to have a receiver appointed for her husband, C. W. West, and his brother, Col. O. West, of Lost Creek, W. Va., to collect rents and mortgage interest for her upport, has been answered in Common Pleas Court by the husband. He denies that he has failed to support her in a manner consistent with his estate, and asserts that she has frequently tried to block his business transactions.

West, who is now conducting building operations in Tulsa, Okla., says he did not desert his wife when he went to the western city about January 1, but has asked her to join him there and says she has refused. He asserts that since their marriage April 6, 1921, he has at all times had sufficient money and has provided her with a comfortable home in a good residential district, and with funds for proper food and clothing.

He says his wife is now residing in a property owned by his brother, Colonel O. West, and receives the rent from a part of the house and garage, which is ample for her support. He denies that he owns $60,000 of realty and $9,500 of interest bearing mortgages. He denies that he is trustee for his brother, asserting that he merely exercises power of attorney for him.

CHURCHES HERE TOP CENSUS

Pennsylvania is the banner synod, and Pittsburgh the banner presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in point of membership, a national census of the denomination disclosed today.

The figures, compiled by Dr. Lewis Seymour Mudge, of Philadelphia, stated clerk of the General Assembly, give the denomination a communicant membership of 2,004,467, a net gain of 41,629 since last year. It is the first time in the 141 years of its existence that the Presbyterian Church has had more than 2,000,000 members.

69,537 MEMBERS HERE

Pennsylvania leads the states with 372,601 communicant Presbyterians. New York is second with 265,204.

Pittsburgh leads the presbyteries with 69,537 members. The Chicago presbytery is second with 49,377.

But Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania are far from having the largest Presbyterian congregations. Seattle heads the list with its First Presbyterian Church, which has 7,886 members. Immanuel Presbyterian Church of Los Angeles is second with 3,840 communicants.

The First Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, with 2,656 members, is twelfth in the list of large congregations. Other Presbyterian churches in Pennsylvania with more than 2,000 communicants each are Bethany of Philadelphia, with 2,679; Bethany Temple, Philadelphia, 2,549; Pine Street Church, Harrisburg, 2,219, and Third Church, Uniontown, 2,096.

BIG GAINS MADE

The Presbyterian congregation with the largest accession of members during the year on confession of faith was the First Church of Seattle, which gained 525 communicants. The Hammond Avenue Church of Superior, Wis., was second, with 402.

The Presbyterian churches in Pennsylvania that gained the largest number of communicants by confession of faith were the Westminster Church of Philadelphia, 173; the Coatesville Presbyterian Church, Coatesville, 152, and the First Church of New Castle, 150.

The Sunday School statistics, says Dr. Mudge, are less encouraging. The total number of Sunday School members enrolled is now 1,595,313. This is a loss of 18,700 for the year, whereas for the previous year there had been a gain of 17,498.

SERMONETTE

"ETERNAL LIFE NOW"

JOHN 10:28

By DR. J. ALVIN ORR,
Pastor First United Presbyterian Church of Allegheny

"I GIVE unto them eternal life, and they shall never perish." However, we hurry on, business or pleasure bent, saying, "One world at a time," sooner or later every thoughtful person will sit down to ponder this question—"If a man die, shall he live again?"

Immortality, resurrection, and eternal life are three closely related words. Immortality means deathlessness: the ceaseless continuance of the soul for weal or woe. Resurrection speaks of the rising again of the body. But eternal life is a quality imparted to the immortal soul bringing endless blessedness with Christ.

Mere immortality might be a fearful doom: an endless sinking of the soul. But eternal life is endless peace, joy, power entered into here by our union with Christ by faith. "He that hath the Son of God hath life." "I am the life."

We human beings can propagate only natural, perishing life. Christ says, "that which is born of the flesh is flesh." And again "I am the resurrection and the life." They who die "in Christ" are living just beyond the act of physical death, and are with Christ.

For every one of us there is a grave waiting. But those who are "in Christ" shall not die, though the body sleeps. At death the soul having eternal life blossoms out into something richer, fairer than anything we yet know.

And eternal life is an ever enlarging life. The souls of believers are but germs of power when we go hence: but in them is "the power of an endless life." Great King of Life, Oh Christ, quicken us to this eternal future possible for us.

DR. J. ALVIN ORR

How do we receive it? Not merely by being baptized, or confirmed: not by morality or culture. "Ye must be born again." Christ implants eternal life in all who love and follow Him. We may not be able to solve some problems, to unravel some mysteries: but all of us can commit our wills, our affections, our intellect, our conduct to Him. And "He that believeth in the Son of God hath everlasting life." Then we can leave all with Him in quiet confidence and trust.

Announcement of Amusement Programs, With Chat From Hollywood

EDNA MAE OLIVER, GOING EAST, HAS TERRIBLE TIME MAKING TRAIN

By DOROTHY HERZOG.

(Copyright, 1929, by Premier Syndicate).

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 17.

TOM BARRY, playwright and author of John McCormack's forthcoming outloud, narrates with a sob in his voice the story of a newspaperman assigned to the group accompanying Col. Lindbergh on his recent tour of inspection of national airways. Said newspaperman took a pet parrot along. The parrot was famed for his large and capable vocabulary. Following the tour, the bird came home. And now the only words emanating from the fool thing are:

"Boys, I've nothing to say." Oh, Lindy, ain't you ashamed. . . .

Marilyn Miller

Marilyn Miller has just returned from two weeks in Santa Barbara, where she rekuped from nerves born in the making of "Sally." Larry Grey traipsed to S. B. frequently during Miss Miller's sojourn. Yeah, they're that-a-way about each other.

At this paragraphing, Edna Mae Oliver is chugging to Chicago, where she will appear in Ziegfeld's "Show Boat." Um, Edna'll play the same role she trouped in Manhattan. I saw her shortly before she departed for the Santa Fe station. And just did. The train left at 9:45 p. m. At 7:30, Edna sent her bags to a waiting machine. At 7:45 she was on the verge of the galloping minies. At 7:55, she was very near a nervous breakdown. At 8, it was over. She simply had to leave for the station. Even then, Edna had her doubts if she'd make that 9:45 train. Usually, she gives herself two hours. Now, is that a gal or isn't it? By the by, she made a flick during the two months spent in the village. Um, with Clara Bow.

Talkies Called Vocalloids Now

THE five reporters, three sekretries, and the head fem of this flick bureau have evolved a new name for the outlouds. We—all of us—refer to it as vocalloid. Anything to it?

Lenore Ulric's initial vocalloid. "Frozen Justice," was previewed a few days ago near San Francisco. And, according to superlatives, it went over, yessiree.

Lenore Ulric

The Ulric has her next vocalloid lined up. Um, "The Rose," which Allan Dwan will megaphone. This yarn appeared on the stage originally as "Kanaka Rose." 'Tis by Tom Cushing and Edward Sheldon. The boys yanked it, however, and re-wrote parts. It eventually reached New York as "La Gringa," starring Holbrook Blinn. The story is studded with Central America kesker-say.

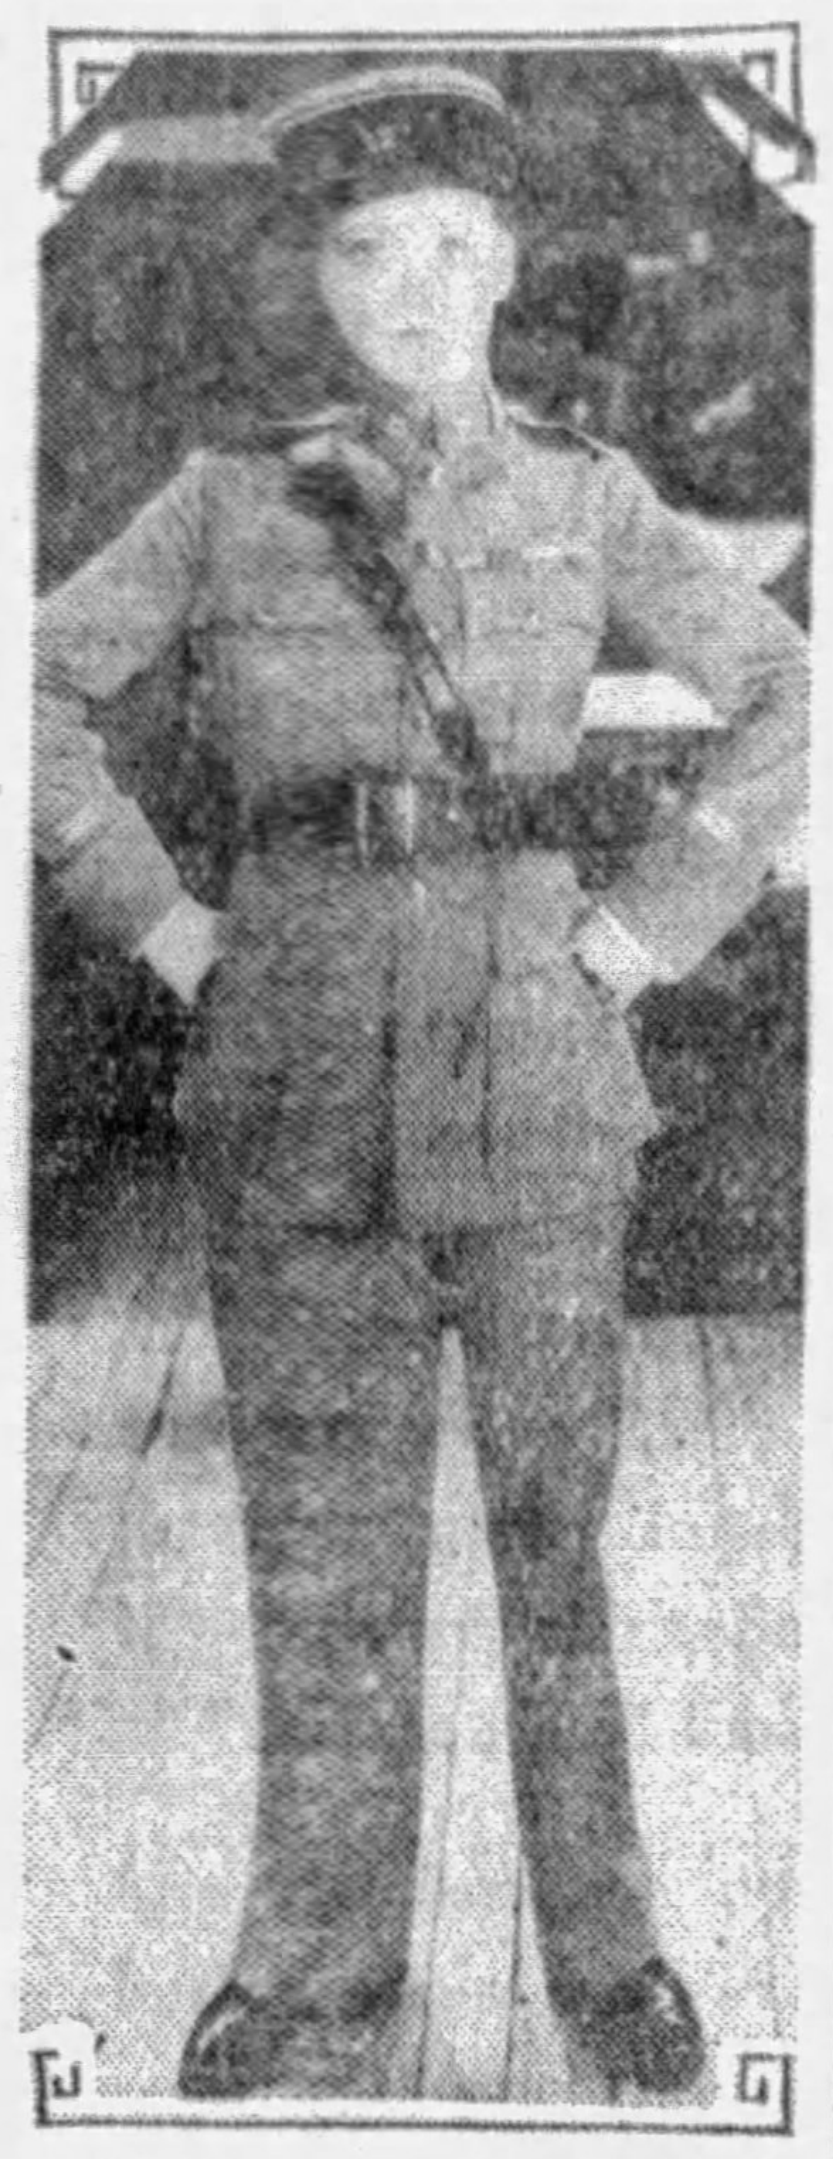
Their real name department: Lupe Valez—Guadalupe Villabolos.

Viola Dana Is Bridge Winner

SCREENALITIES: Norma Talmadge and Gilbert Roland scootin' along the Oceanic road headed for Santa Barbara. Norma's chauffeur driving the Rolls Royce. . . . Helen Jerome Eddy, W. K. Flick character actress, opens her new restaurant this eve in Pasadena. 'Tis yclept the Frog Footman and appropriately enough, offers French food for its debut. . . . Viola Dana and Shirley Mason lunching together at Ye Brown Derby. Vi bragged she'd won a lil' over two bucks playing bridge the nite before. I've got my suspicions and Vi claims to have proof. We'll never get anywhere. . . . Harriet O. Parsons, scribe for Photoplay, visiting ye town but returning, via airplane, for New York today. . . . Ring-tailed monkey was used for a scene in Ronald Colman's vocalloid, "Condemned." During the "intermission," the critter was put in a cage. He was probably nervous, but anyway he took advantage of his freedom by pulling all the hairs outta his tail. Subsequently, a S. O. S. went forth to the make-up man, who, with great eclat, pasted new hairs on the bald tail, and the scenes went merrily on. Anderson Lawler, stage and screen-ite, hitting off to Santa Barbara for a goodly week-end. . . . Fred Niblo and his wife, Enid Bennett, have returned from an umpty ump mile motor jaunt through ye country. Yep, they absorbed plenty of nature. . . And—that's all.

Ronald Colman

Guess Who?



Believe it or not this is Marion Davies. The neat uniform is all part of her makeup in "Marianne," her first talking film, now in production.

FOREST LOVE :-: By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Jack Dies in Fall From Mountain After Ranger Finds Anita Alive

CHAPTER XLIX

A MAN was crawling up the cliff. He was creeping slowly but surely toward Anita. Jack Beamer watched him, with curious, detached attention. Into his aching head crept the conviction that the man had seen everything, that he had been watching them for a long time. He thought, "I should go to help him—it would look better." But he continued to sit on the ledge mopping his hot face.

The man was a ranger. A tall, thin fellow with long arms and legs. He climbed like a monkey. From time to time he shouted encouragement to Anita . . . as if she could hear, as if she would ever want encouragement again. The thought of Anita, dead at last, made Jack smile. He didn't know why, not because he felt particularly happy about it. He had never wanted anything like this. Damn it, why couldn't she have died naturally, as the doctors promised? Damn quacks, saying she had a weak heart . . . This would look bad for him. He'd have to get down there somehow, say something . . . .

"Haloo . . . Haloooo!" he called, waving the handkerchief.

The man had reached the rock on which Anita lay. He stopped for a moment and waved a hand in some sort of signal, in answer to Jack's call.

There was something comforting about it. Jack began to feel more like himself. Cupping his mouth with his hands he shouted, "I can't get down there." And after a moment, "She fell. Is she . . . dead?"

The ranger did not answer. He had straightened the woman's crumpled body and was bending over her as if listening for a sign of life. Jack watched, fascinated. "Is she dead?" he shouted again.

The ranger looked up and shook his head.

Jack stared. "She's not . . . not hurt? Why, she fell from way up here—she she—she—"

"The bushes broke the fall. I don't know how bad off she is, though. Have you got a rope up there?"

"There was one on the horse." He forgot that the horses had been left a quarter of a mile below.

Anita wasn't dead. Maybe she'd get well? He turned the new idea over in his head. What was going on down there? She was stirring. The man gave her a drink out of his canteen. They were talking. Talking . . . He didn't like that . . . that fellow had no business to butt in . . .

He was coming up the cliff now, climbing steadily toward the ledge . . . . Jack shut his eyes for a moment. It made him dizzy to watch.

When he opened them Anita had struggled to a sitting position. He saw that her head was bleeding. She lifted one skinny arm. He did it!" she screamed. "He tried to kill me!"

"My God!" he whispered. "She can't say that! Why . . . why . . ." And he screamed back to her, "You damn liar . . . you . . . you miserable HAG!" His voice broke, frightening him. Hysterical. Sounded guilty. Must stop that.

The ranger was right below him now. "My wife's out of her head," he said, and tried to smile.

"Give us a hand," the man commanded, ignoring his words.

Jack extended one limp hand over the bank. "She's been out of her head ever since we got here. I've been afraid of suicide from the first. She leaped off that rock, believe it or not—"

"Give me a hand, can't you? Can't you brace yourself better than that? Pull yourself together, man—"

"I'm all right, I don't need any advice from you!" But he braced himself, and was giving his hand again when Anita recommenced that thin, shrill screaming . . . "Help . . . oh, help! . . . he tried to kill me . . . he threw me . . . ."

The ranger half turned.

Jack began to shake violently, loosing his hold on the hard calloused hand reaching up to him. "Hold on there—pull yourself together, man!"

But Jack couldn't stop shaking. Somehow the ranger made the ledge without his aid. "I tell you I'm innocent!" he shouted, in a rage because he couldn't stop that senseless shaking. "The woman is out of her head, I tell you. If you think—"

The ranger stooped to fasten a bootlace. "I'm not thinking, my friend," he said wearily. "I'm not the judge. But you better shut up. The less I know about this the better it's going to be for you. Now where's the—"

He was going to ask "Where's the rope?" But he never finished. Jack Beamer's fist found the point of his jaw. It was a blow that would have felled an ox. The ranger staggered backward. His clutching fingers fastened on a clump of grass. It did not hold.

This time Jack did not wait. Turning his back on his victims, he ran.

At 4 o'clock Slim Palmer, in charge of the horses at the lodge, began to worry about the Beamers.

"Funny those folks didn't come back."

All the other horses were in. No one else had stayed out in the storm. Palmer didn't like it. "Where'd they say they were going?" he questioned the boy who had started them off.

"They didn't say."

"How many times have I told you to ask EVERYBODY? Now how do I know where the durn fools went?"

Jack MacKimmons, the ranger from Gales Flat who had stopped at the lodge for lunch and to wait until the storm passed, grinned. "Oh, they'll turn up like all the rest. But I'll keep an eye out as I go through the canyon. I suppose you warned them to keep off the upper road?"

"Oh, sure. Warned everybody. So, you don't think the storm . . ."

"NUTS! Nobody ever gets hit! Worse they'd get would be a good soaking. Well, so long, Slim; I'll telephone you if I find the remains!"

MacKimmons rode away. He was late, and his horse was rested. They made time galloping over the trails both knew so well. Before he had gone a mile he had completely forgotten Slim and his lost tourists.

In the canyon, beside a little bridge he had to cross, he came upon the lifeless body of a heavy man. He lay with his face in the gravel, not five feet from his dead mount.

MacKimmons gulped. Blood made him sick. But there was nothing to do but face it. He tied his snorting horse to a tree and climbed over the bridge and across the shallow, clear little stream to the gravel bank where the man lay.

With an effort he turned over the heavy body. It was Slim's tourist, all right. He must have gone right off the cliff on the horse. Funny place to go off . . . . one stretch of decent trail on the high road . . .

Whistling to keep up his courage, MacKimmons felt in the pockets for identification. A pigskin wallet stuffed with bills bore inside the flap "John Herbert Beamer," in small gold letters.

"Well, I guess you've taken your last ride, young feller," MacKimmons murmured. With all his heart he wished Decatur were with him. He didn't like handling things like this alone. He guessed he'd better leave everything as it was, and get on to the next telephone to report. He wouldn't do much looking for the other body (like as not the woman got into trouble, too) without Decatur. They would come back with lanterns.

"Get along there!" He dug his heels into the horse's sides and galloped on down the trail. It was getting darker every moment. "Wish old Decatur was around!"

Roger was nearer than he knew.

He lay in a little gully not far from the river, with columbine tangled in his yellow hair and dust in his open mouth.

Will Rogers Says

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 17.

A banker, head of a savings bank in Brooklyn, had a boil on his neck, and the Brooklynites heard of it, and started a run on the bank.

They drew out fifteen million dollars before the poor fellow could prove to them that financiers are part human and can have boils.

If Andy Mellon ever gets a carbuncle I can see Brooklyn seceding from the Union.

Mr. Hoover is going to talk to us at noon today on "The advantages of Virginia to spend Sunday in, the tariff, catfish and disarmament."

Yours, WILL.

Walter Winchell On Broadway

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.

Things I Never Knew Till Now

THAT Bert Williams was the only colored member of the Lambs.

That Paul Ash's real name is Julius Ashenbrenner.

That you strengthen your eyesight by having your ear lobes pierced.

That Louisiana produces more fur than Canada, and more fish than any state in the Union.

That Fiske O'Hara is a professional Irishman and received $50 for suggesting the theme of "Abie's Irish Rose" from Anne Nichols, who was his leading lady in his road shows.

That the original chandeliers that adorned Churchill's old cabaret now dangle in the Capitol Theater.

THAT Vincent Lopez discharged Rudy Vallee who sax'd it in one of Lopez's bands. What a difference a few years make.

That Earl Carroll pulled every string possible to become a passenger on the Zep world flight, but no could do.

That Modjeska's son is the builder of the Philly-Camden bridge.

That more than half the population of Broadway is colored—between the hours of 7 and 9 a. m. Porters, elevator operators, et al.

That a complete edition of Voltaire's works (not Voltaire Veenchill) contains 33 millions of letters.

That most Levys change their names to Lee, but that Hyman Prince, a cafe manager, switched his to Hyman Cohen.

That Frances Maddox, London's most popular cabaret warbler, was one of New York's radio ordinaries last season.

PROBLEM—GET CHEESE

THAT you can make a swell paste out of Rocquefort Cheese and Cognac—if you can get some Rocquefort Cheese.

That Jack Cluett and not Jack Shuttleworth is Judge's High-Hat.

That a man worth $5,000,000 dines at the Central Park Casino every night, but always leaves at 9:55 to keep from paying the $3 couvert charge that goes on at 10 o'clock.

That the reason Mabel Boll's huge diamonds haven't been thefted by the Broadway bandits is because they would be easily traced. And, anyway, it is easier to get away with murder.

That 80 per cent of the young ladies employed by Lord & Taylor are university graduates.

That there are some college professors who still adhere to the theory that the world is what Columbus proved it wasn't.

That milk is the most perfect food and that the purest milk contains 87 per cent water.

That the late H. C. Witwer, who penned hundreds of successful stories and articles, was a flop as an Evening Mail re-write man.

NOLL SAID IT

THAT Oliver Goldsmith wrote: "Let schoolmasters puzzle their brains with study and learning, but liquor gives genius a better discerning."

That the only restaurant in Yuma, Ariz., has a sign reading: "Free Meals When It Rains," which it never does.

That there is a mother in the town who has never been disillusioned and says: "I'm sure my boy doesn't drink liquor; he's always so thirsty in the morning!"

That in Sweden you don't have to wear bathing suits.

FREUD NEVER FREUDED

THAT Freud psychoanalyzed the life of Dostoievsky, and that Freud never was and never will be.

That three immensely rich brothers in the movie business dread the return of poverty and have set aside a fund assuring them each $1,000 a day for the rest of their lives.

That the stock exchange floor is always "studio built" for Wall Street shots because the original never reveals enough action for a moom pitcher. Imagine!

That Mr. John Barker, the information clerk at the Equitable Building (which has more tenants than any other New York office edifice), not only gives you the floor or the number of the suite of the person you seek, but does it without looking it up in his book.

That the reason Englishmen talk that way is because they've had a cold for 2,000 years.

That Texas Guinan frightens children.

That the word "lousy" can be sent via Western Union, after all, for William A. Grew got several wires telling him his show certainly was.

And that Norman Anthony, the editor of Life, went to a masquerade disguised as Walter Winchell, but got caught in a transom.

Kelly Addresses Johnstown W. C. T. U.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 17.—Mrs. Myra O. Weigel, of Johnstown, was re-elected president of the Cambria County W. C. T. U., at the forty-second annual convention here. Congressman Clyde Kelly, Pittsburgh, spoke.

MUCH MIRTH IN FRESH BILLS

"The Old Soak," which will be presented in the Pitt next week by the George Sharp Players, is a comedy drama by Don Marquis, based on the sacrificed spirit of an elderly man who has a weakness for the cup that cheers. Hugh O'Connell has been engaged to play the role.

Teddy Joyce, who was popular during his 52 weeks in the Penn before going to Baltimore 12 weeks ago, is returning to his post as master of ceremonies of that theater next week. On the screen will be Lewis Stone in "Wonder of Women."

"The Hottentot," film comedy, is showing in the Stanley as the talking screen attraction starring Edward Everett Horton and Patsy Ruth Miller. Brooke Johns' presentation is called "Speed Mania."

CHANEY AS RAILROADER

The Mississippi flood disaster forms a background for Lon Chaney's latest drama of the screen, "Thunder," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer photoplay of railroad life coming to the Aldine Theater next Monday.

"Broadway," all-talking film production, adapted from the stage play of the same name, stays in the Grand for a second and final week.

Alice White, supported by Charles Delaney, will be in the Olympic next week in the all-talking picture, "Broadway Babies."

BILLS IN EAST END

Jack Mulhall, in the talking film, "Dark Streets," opens in the Enright today. Dick Powell's stage presentation is called "Zig Zag."

Adolphe Menjou, in a talking play, "Fashions in Love," opens in the Regent for three days today.

Clara Bow, in her latest all-talking production, "Dangerous Curves," is on the Liberty screen today.

Grand Opera Series Opens in October

Arrangements have been completed for a 45-piece orchestra for the series of operas to be presented this season in the Syria Mosque by the Pittsburgh Grand Opera Company, A. Rossito announces. It is planned to import leading Metropolitan and Chicago Grand Opera artists for the local organization's presentations. "Rigoletto" will open the season October 14.

Forces Store Door, Sentenced 30 Days

Charged with having forced the door of a South Side store, Jack Miller, 27, of 23 Koscuisko way, was sent to the workhouse for 30 days by Magistrate John J. Sweeney yesterday. Patrolman John Pfeuffer testified he found the door of the Lawrence Matuzak store, 97 South Twenty-seventh street, South Side, open and found Miller sleeping behind a counter.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

IT IS a fact attested to by all observing parents that grandparents are far more tolerant toward the grandchildren than they were to their own children, not so grand. But you come upon a grandfather once in awhile who will complain. In mind is a county official, who has threatened me with death if I reveal his name, who at last rebelled from the yoke thrust about his neck by two grandchildren, who seem to be a rare combination of Peck's Bad Boy and Huckleberry Finn. At an early hour one evening recently the grandfather in question summarily packed the two children, one 8, the other 4, into an automobile and ordered them home. The grandmother was almost in tears at such brutal treatment.

"That is a terrible way," said the good woman, "to treat our grandchildren. By your ruthlessness and unreasoning attitude you are stamping all individuality out of the little fellows."

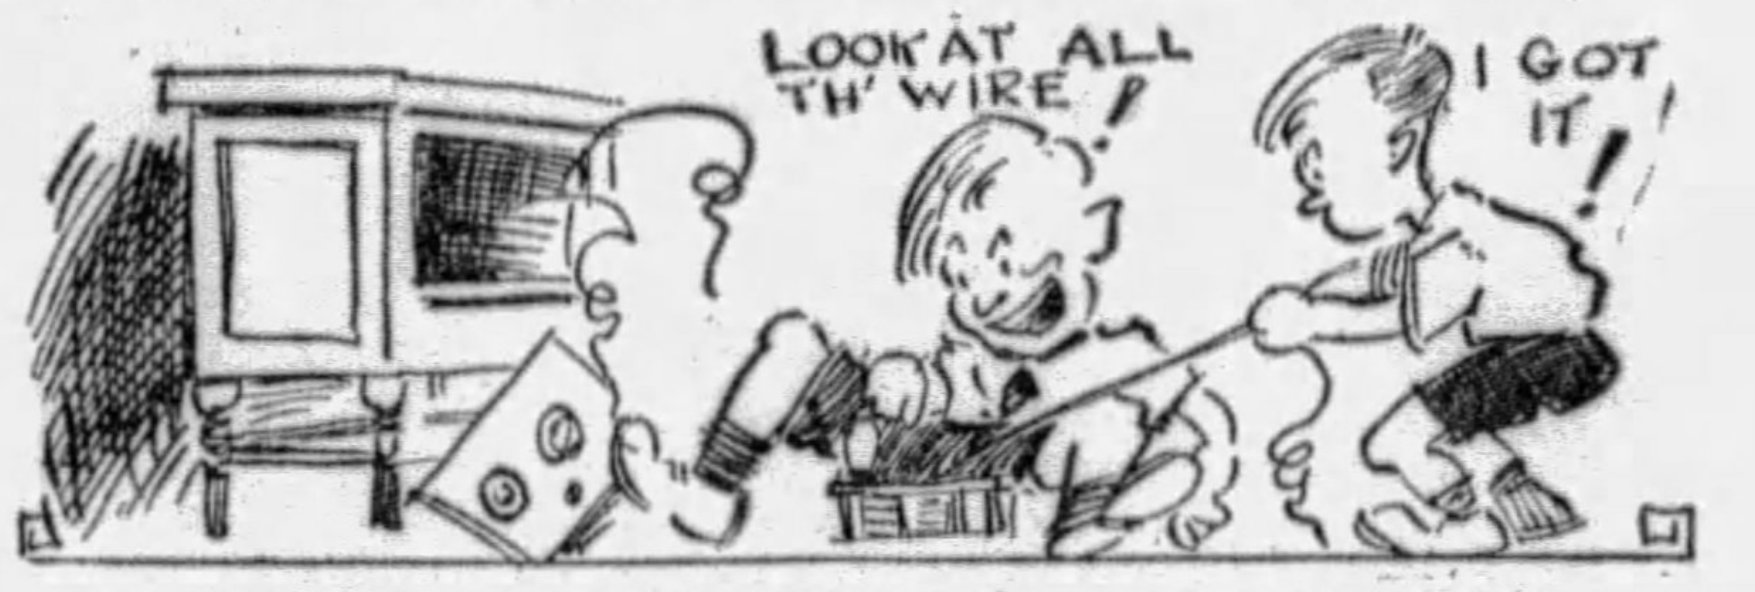
"But," expostulated the resolute grandfather.

"There is no 'but' in this case," he was answered, and he listened attentively:

"They are just free little spirits, untrammelled by the conventions of age, and unbounded by the many taboos that make for a restricted existence. If they seemed to be romping extra enthusiastically around the house it was because of their health and vitality and precious lack of all the inhibitions we older people suffer from. I am surprised and amazed."

Said the grandfather: "I still insist there is a limit to what the little fellows should be allowed to do. I yield to no one in striving to allow self-development its natural course, but I say to you again that they went too far. I was going to say nothing to you tonight about the whole affair so that your sleep would not be disturbed, but since you brought the issue to a head I want to say this to you with all the force and power at my command:

"When the little fellows in a spirit of fun dismantled the new radio piece by piece until now I barely get KDKA where before I tuned in on California regularly I said nothing. I saw in this gesture perhaps a spirit of Edison cropping out. I thought their youthful minds in this fashion, destructive as it was to the radio, might lead to some great invention. Neither did I complain when they recently got hold of a powder cap, with which they playfully blew up their toy wagon, for I was broad enough to see that after all this might be some manifestation of a future admiral or a great general or perhaps a new Nobel was here in embryo. The fact that the little fellows' exploit caused the wagon to be blown into bits and through the windshield of an adjacent automobile was passed up even when the owner of the automobile sent, rightfully, a bill for $12.50.



LOOK AT ALL TH' WIRE!
I GOT IT!

"BUT tonight I think the limit was reached. You recall that just recently we spent about $200 to have the kitchen made over. But perhaps you don't know that while you were busy talking to the little fellows' mother, the little fellows espied a garden hose in the yard and evolved a plan out of their elastic imagination to save the house from a mythical fire. You don't know that the boys climbed through the kitchen window, with hose over their shoulders in the best approved fireman style, and that they turned the water on full force, and played the hose on the new kitchen ceiling, and the new kitchen walls, on your kitchen cabinet, and on your kitchen chairs with a zest that would have stopped the Frisco fire.

"And now if you take a look at the wreck of what was once the kitchen, recently remodeled, you will discover, Grandma, that tomorrow, if you still plan to get breakfast, you will have to engage a skiff and a couple of oars, paddle your way to the stove, possibly swim to the kitchen cabinet for the eggs, and dive off the sink to recover a fallen knife or fork, after the fashion of the Hawaiian coin divers."

Then the grandfather said: "They recently moved to Buffalo—the kids. How long does it take to drive to Buffalo, by the way?"

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburghers Leave Gotham for Tours of Foreign Lands

JUST when I'd brought myself to believe that home-coming plans were paramount in the minds of our local folks, word comes in about more of them leaving the city. Europe is really an all-year-around attraction, though, so these latest additions to the ranks of our deserters can hardly be listed as summer vacationists. Certainly mid-August is as good a time as any for a pleasant ocean voyage.

The Homeric left New York Thursday night and aboard here were several Pittsburghers bound for Europe. Miss Isabelle C. Chalfant, who has been up in Maine, was on board, and so were Mrs. G. Cook Kimball and her son, Richard Kimball. The William Watson Smiths were also on the passenger list and so was Winfield K. Shiras. And shortly after midnight, the France sailed for Plymouth and Havre, with Dr. Howard G. Schleiter as one of the passengers.

A bit of news concerning those who are away from the city just now is word of a house party which Bertha Brooks, sub-deb daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Twing Brooks, of Edgeworth, is giving at the Brooks' summer cottage at Hyannisport, Me. Among the guests are Georgianna Collin, daughter of the William Welch Collins, of Sewickley, who are at their summer place in Kennebunkport, Me.; Nancy and Virginia Doyle, daughters of the Charles L. Doyles, of Sewickley, who have just returned from Europe; John C. Oliver, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Oliver, of Sewickley; George Potter O'Neil, son of the Chauncey O'Neils, of Sewickley; Walter Taber Grange, Jr., son of the Walter G. Granges, of Shields, and William E. Schroeder, son of the F. C. Schroeders, of Sewickley.

THE fact that "everybody" is out of town doesn't prevent plans for the Pittsburgh Hunt horse show from maturing. The show is scheduled for Saturday, September 14, you know, at the club ring in the Fox Chapel district, beginning at 9:30 o'clock in the morning.

David I. McCahill, who was announced a week or so ago as chairman, is being assisted by Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, William G. Costin, Howard Heinz, J. Raymond Price, George P. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Flaccus, Richard King Mellon, George Paull, the master of hounds; Harrison M. Thomas and F. LeMoyne Page.

The clubhouse committee is headed by A. R. Edwards, and his aides are Mrs. Herbert G. Lytle, Thomas B. Moreland, Charles S. Todd, Mrs. George Paull, E. C. Bothwell and Barry Hamilton.

Haddock, Jr., as the chief program feature. The first October meeting will be marked by an address from Mrs. Anna Marshall McCracken, of Carnegie Institute, on the subject, "Why Look at Pictures?" A Christmas meeting with a reading and an address will be the only December session, and this will be followed in January by two programs on Alaska, papers concerning Thomas Hardy's life, novels and poems, following in February. Aeronautics, radio, several book reviews, a musical and the annual business meeting will round out the season's study and events.

AN interesting program for the coming year has just been announced by Mrs. T. C. Cheeseman, chairman of the program committee for the South Hills College Club. Following the custom of previous years, the club will alternate social events, including a picnic, buffet supper, bridge luncheon and dinner dance at the Keystone Club, with its regular meetings. The opening meeting in September will include talks by Mrs. Ross E. Taggart and Miss Ann Macpherson on modern poetry and fiction, to be followed by a round table discussion. A musicale, with a distinct local flavor, is planned for the October meeting at which the entire program will be offered by well-known Pittsburgh musicians and will include the music of Pittsburgh composers. Charles N. Boyd, president of the Pittsburgh Musical Institute, will speak and William Wentzel will play some of his own compositions. Dr. Lawrence W. Bass, executive assistant of the Mellon Institute, will speak at the following meeting on "Science in Home Training." For the next two meetings, the club will turn to the international viewpoint and will be addressed by Dr. John Coleman, of Geneva College, and Miss Katherine Lawless, of the International Institute. The drama committee will be in charge of the March meeting and will present prize plays written by some of the club's own members.

As speakers at later meetings there will be Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, motion picture chairman of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and Dr. Cora Helen Coolidge, president of the Pennsylvania College for Women. The May meeting will be addressed by Dr. Robert N. Montgomery and the annual election of officers will be held. The club will bring its season to a close with a luncheon at the St. Clair Country Club.

Although one of the younger college clubs of the Pittsburgh district, this organization now has a membership of over 100 and has made itself an important factor in South Hills community life. One interesting feature of its work has been the annual award for high school girls of four scholarships which, in last year's awards, totaled $500.

First Dead Line Reached In Zeppelin Contest

As the Graf Zeppelin moved over Siberia on the second lap of the Hearst-Zeppelin-Round-the-World Flight, the dead line in the first of the Sun-Telegraph Hearst-Zeppelin contests was passed.

A large number of letters and coupons containing estimates of the time the Graf would require on this second lap of its epochal flight were in at the close. Slogans and time estimates all showed signs of careful thinking and planning.

The judging will proceed as soon as the Graf reaches Tokio, and the winners of this first contest will be announced in a few days.

Meanwhile, Pittsburghers are racking their brains for some manner of estimating the Zep's time on further laps, Tokio to Los Angeles and Los Angeles to Lakehurst. The "All's Well" signals from the Zeppelin continue to convince thousands of air-minded dirigible fans that the trip would be made in fast time.

Who will be the winners? Watch the Sun-Telegraph daily for their names, and send in your estimate of flight time and your slogan to the Sun-Telegraph Hearst-Zeppelin editor.

Organ's Humble Origin

IT IS believed probable by antiquarians that the huge modern pipe organs used in churches and theaters owe their origin to a small Chinese mouth instrument, in which bamboo tubes were used for pipes. The ancient instrument resembled in appearance the modern saxophone.

The Flapper's Prayer

HELEN ROWLAND

HEAR now, my daughter, the Petition of the Flapper, which she chanteth in her heart.

Oh Lord, I beseech Thee, teach me wisdom and bestow upon me all the charms which most delight MEN. Yea, make me a Man's Woman!

* * *

Grant me, I pray Thee, the personality of the Queen of Rumania and the "It" of Clara Bow.

The child-like naivete of Mary Pickford—and the blond beauty of Marian Davies.

The wistfulness of Lillian Gish—and the hypnotic eyes of Greta Garbo.

The dash and vivacity of Bebe Daniels—and the cuteness of Mae Murray.

The fire of Torma Talmadge—and the piquancy of Colleen Moore.

The poise of Ethel Barrymore—and the figure of Ann Pennington.

The sure-fire aim of Peggy Joyce, who always "gets her man"—and the clothes-sense of Jean Nash.

The pep and jollity of Texas Guinan—and the classic features of Mary Astor.

The smile of a seraph—and the voice of a dove.

The silence of the Sphinx—and the blindness of a bat.

The wisdom of Solomon—and the ways of a kitten.

The self-control of a tin soldier—and the pliability of a sofa-cushion.

The capriciousness of a second-hand motor-car—and the sensitiveness of a pet clam.

The faith of a poodle—and the endurance of Atlas.

Yea, all these things I ask, that I may be a MAN'S WOMAN! Amen.

Now, wherefore, oh my daughter, doth the Flapper of Babylon pray, in her heart, for all the charms of an whole harem, and one-hundred siren-power?

Even, that she may charm a blobby youth in plus fours, with a sun-burned nose, and spindling legs, and a vaudeville line, and much egotism.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Car Tracks Leading to a Hospital Increase Anxiety.

I MADE no reply to Lillian's astounding statement that her husband had known that an attack was to be made upon Prince Georges. There was no time for even an ejaculation of astonishment, and I smothered it valiently as she went on hurriedly.

"Of course you know all those countries are hotbeds of plots, especially where succession to the throne is concerned. The discovery that the King of Trees has not six months to live and that his brother, another uncle of Georges, is much nearer the end of his long invalidism than the public thinks, has started many little seeds to sprouting. The prince next in line after Georges is a thorough rotter and has a set of followers, every one of whom ought to be headed for the little green door. He wants Georges out of the way, and a trusted man of Harry's—he has hundreds of 'em, scattered all over the world—sent him word tonight that there was a plot afoot to kidnap or kill Prince Georges. But in some way the information was delayed, and though the man mentioned tonight as the time, the eastern end of Long Island as the place, he wasn't any more definite.

"You can imagine what we've been going through, knowing that Mary was with Georges, and unable to do a thing to find them, except call up all the restaurants within a certain redius of the farmhouse. We calmed Mother Graham's fears by telling her Harry had an important message for 'Mr. Jackson' and we asked the central operator to interrupt our calling and give us any message which should be telephoned in. Being in the country has its advantage, you see. Thus we got your message and as soon as Harry heard your code message, he guessed that you had discovered something. Here they come. I'll bet Harry has those tire tracks etched upon his brain."

Mr. Underwood was returning on foot while Noel Veritzen was swinging his roadster into the highway and heading it west. Mr. Underwood climbed into the driver's seat as Noel sent his car past us, and putting it into gear, turned it around and followed the small car, proceeding slowly along the road.

"We can't tell anything about tracks on this road," he said presently, "but we can inspect every corner where a road leaves or enters this one. Perhaps we can pick up the trail, but I'm afraid it's going to take a long time."

His prophecy was justified for not until we reached Southampton, a good two hours later did we pick up the trail. Mr. Underwood had clambered down at every turning and meticulously examined the roadways, but with no results, save to convince himself that the car was still pursuing its way westward. But after we had entered the outskirts of Southampton, he straightened himself from the inspection of a sandy road leading toward the ocean and rushed back to the car, signaling Noel to lead the way..

"It's there!" he said jubilantly. "I'd been afraid to hope for this, but I thought it might be the right dope."

He did not explain his meaning, and I guessed that he did not wish to raise any premature hopes in Mary. But with excitement raised to fever heat, I gripped my seat, for I knew to what the road led, and when at the next turning, near the ocean, Mr. Underwood clambered down and again announced that he had found the tire tracks. I looked at Lillian with a questioning rise of my eyebrows toward Mary, for just ahead of us were the lights of a hospital.

Lillian nodded assent, and I slipped my arm around Mary's figure, slumped against me.

"Mary, dear," I said, "we are pretty sure that Georges was not killed, and that the car we have been following held compassionate strangers who saw him and rushed him toward surgical aid as fast as possible. Look! There are the lights of the hospital!"

She raised her body, looked at the lights, and then her body sagged against me again. For an instant I thought she had swooned, and that we would have another patient for the hospital. But she answered faintly as I imperatively called her name, and the next instant she was sitting upright tense with excitement.

"But you don't know how badly he may be injured," she said. "Oh, let me go in and find out?"

"No!" The monosyllable came explosively from both Lillian's lips and mine, and Lillian explained in curt though kindly fashion.

"You mustn't be associated with this if we possibly can help it, Mary. Publicity is the last thing we wish."

"Yes, Henry," as Mr. Underwood opened the car door, with the patent intention of speaking to her.

"Stay here," Mr. Underwood said rapidly. "There's no use of having any more comment than is necessary. Noel will drive me up to the hospital entrance, and I'll go in and find out what's doing. I'll come back the second I can."

He strode away without waiting for an answer, leaving us to the enactment of the age-old rule of women who wait. But no one of us was weeping. Modern training has done that much for femininity.

Household Hints

An occasional rub over with a rag dipped in olive oil preserves and prolongs the life of linoleum.

You can make a good night-light by packing salt round the wick of an ordinary candle, leaving just enough of the wick to light.

For a dry throat-tickling cough mix equal parts of honey and lemon juice, or glycerine and lemon juice, and keep it handy by the bedside. This will soothe the throat and curtail the coughing.

Ammonia added to rinsing water restores colors to cretonnes, curtains and quilts. It removes red ink, fruit and grass stains from white articles, while, mixed with powdered pumice, it will remove obstinate soot and smoke marks from the hearth tiles.

THE BLESSED PRIVILEGE

THE most blessed of all privileges which has been granted to we mortals—the rearing of a little child. Is there any lovlier picture than that of a child kneeling at it's mother's knee? It's a sight that brings the very angels from heaven to listen and adore. The sweet trust and faith and innocence is an inspiration to all who may witness it.

And the mother looks and watches in awe and love and prays for the strength and wisdom to guide the tiny feet into the paths of greatest happiness and keep the little mind active and happy and develope it into the highest possible heights.

The angels listen to both prayers and carry them swiftly to the Throne of All Wisdom and add their prayers to those which so inspire them.

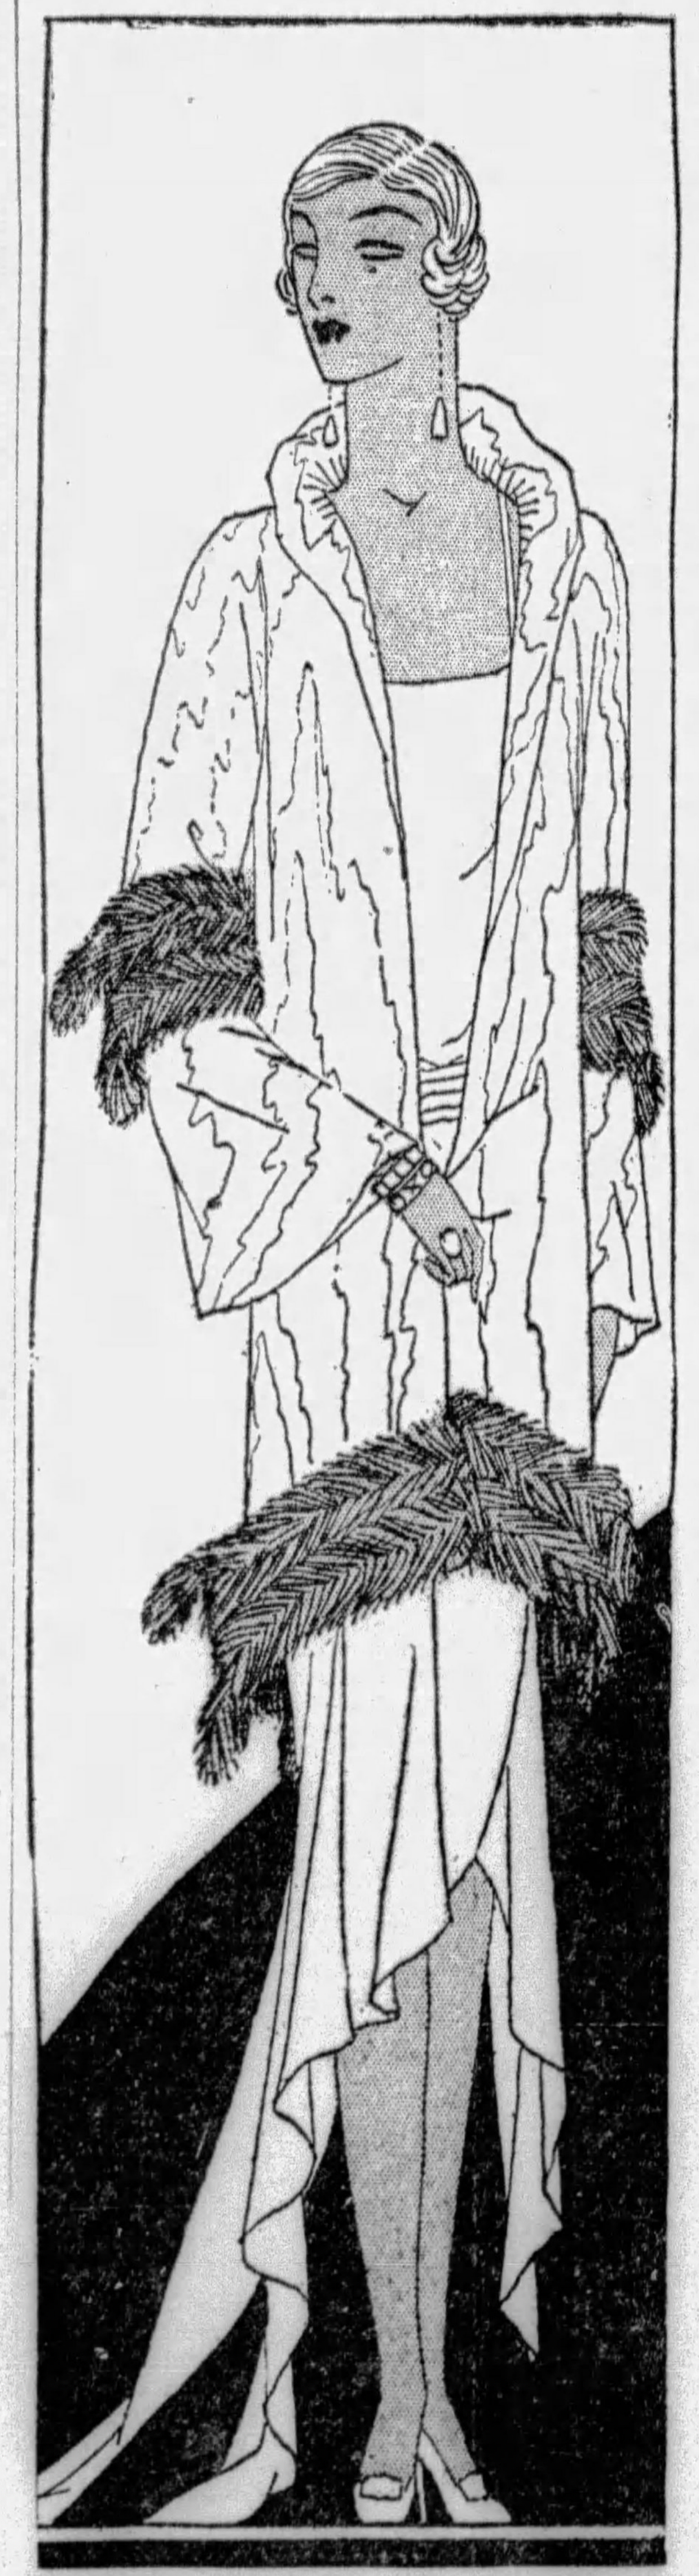
And the Source of All Love sends His thoughts to them that each may be a Bit of Himself and go through life an inspiration to all with whom they may come in contact.

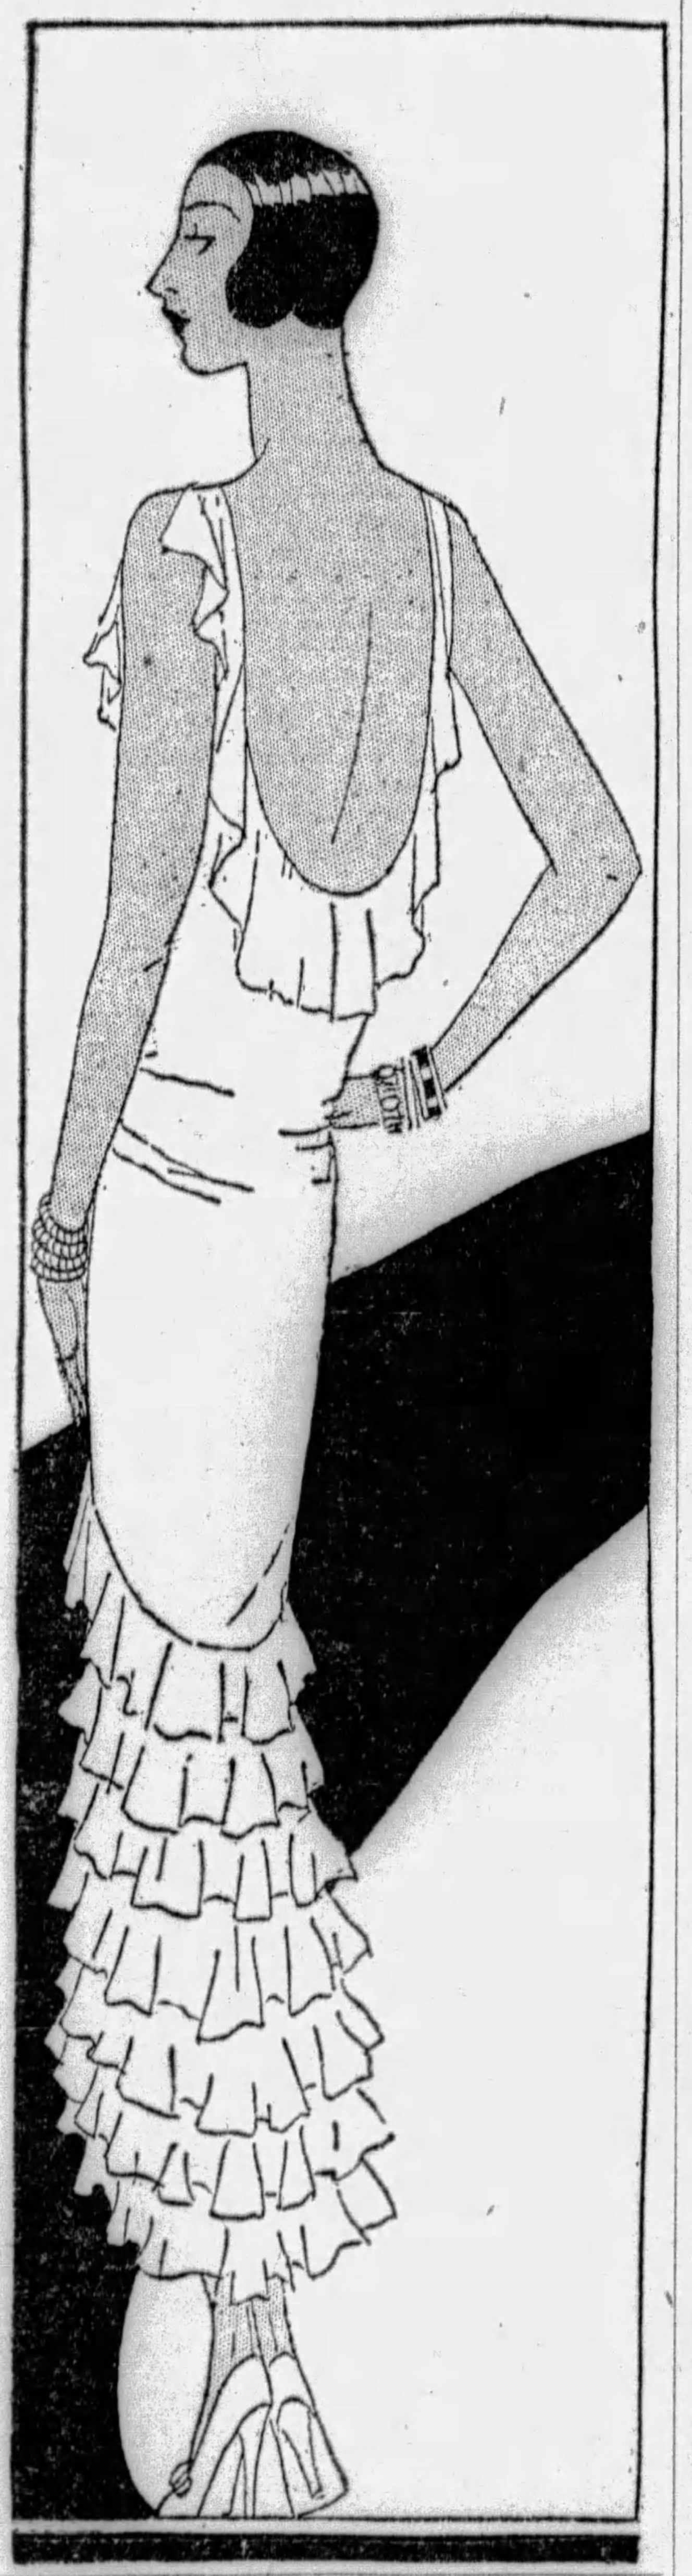
Love such as this is the highest of all—and one to be watched over and guarded constantly, for the love of a mother for her child is the greatest of all loves, and the most lasting.

WHITE FOR EVENING, PARIS ORDAINS

Costumes Worn by American Women Illustrate Ruling Fashion

Sketched in Paris





Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, Aug. 17.—We are still living in the bronze age, and that, of course, is one of the reasons for the enormous amount of white that one sees in the evening everywhere just now.

If one has poetic aspirations, the picture of a slender young woman in a simply but perfectly cut evening frock of unrelieved white, contrasting with her synthetic or genuine sun-tan, ought to furnish adequate inspiration.

AT the magnificent balls and fetes that marked the close of the brilliant season here, fully 80 per cent of the women wore dresses and ensembles of white. Velvet, moire and satin seemed to be the materials most in demand, with satin as the prime favorite. But a word of solemn warning—although we are permitted a trifle more latitude, as far as poundage is concerned, all-white should be approached only by the woman with a slim, straight, up-and-down figure.

OF all the wonderful white dresses and ensembles that danced the gay hours away during the close of the season, we have selected two models that were each worn by well known American women.

The first was the success of a party at the Ambassadeurs. The smart two-thirds length coat is of ivory white moire, heavily trimmed with sable. The shirred collar terminates in a bow at the back. The dress with its gracefully trailing skirt is of white georgette.

THE delicate gown also pictured is of white chiffon, and was worn by a slim young woman, tanned to a deep bronze. The circular ruffle that edges the decolletage at the back ends in a jabot at the left shoulder in front. Iberian inspiration is suggested by the seven ruffles forming the skirt much longer at the back than in front.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Bride Announces the Marriage

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I have learned many things of value from your column and I would appreciate your kindness very much if you would solve the following question pertaining to a marriage of a dear friend of mine, which is to take place in the near future. Her home and parents are in Canada and she lives with her cousin and husband—Mr. and Mrs. John Allen. Would it be correct for her to have her marriage announcements printed to read "Mr. and Mrs. John Allen announce the marriage of—"? Is that wording correct in this case?

2. She is going to be married in an Episcopal Church with only a few dear friends to witness the ceremony. Does she have an attendant or not?

3. She will be married in a biege dress. Should she wear her coat during the ceremony?

4. Does a bride carry anything in her hands during an informal ceremony such as the above mentioned?

5. Is it customary for the groom to take the guests to luncheon or dinner following the ceremony?

E. M. W.

UNLESS for some reason she does not wish to have her parents announce the marriage, she should have their names appear on the announcement. And this would be true even though it is impossible for them to come to the wedding.

2. Usually the bride has one attendant under these circumstances, but it is not necessary for her to give one unless she wishes.

3. If her costume is an ensemble, yes. Otherwise, just as she wishes and finds comfortable.

4. No.

5. Just as he wishes.

When the Bride Has a Stepfather

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am about to have the following wedding announcement engraved and I would like to have your advice concerning it.

Mr. and Mrs. ——— have the honor of announcing the marriage of their daughter to

Mr. ———

On Saturday, the first of ———

Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-nine

at ——— (city), ——— (State)

1. Should I use the name of the city and state in which I live, or in which I am to be married?

2. Since I have a stepfather my last name is different from his, therefore, before my name, should I use the "Miss" or not?

I. H.

USE, on marriage announcement, the name of the city and state in which you are to be married.

2. Use the "Miss" before your name; that is the rule when the name differs from that in the first line.

Card With Shower Gift

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

If I am invited to a shower given for an intimate friend, and to which I cannot go, is it, or is it not correct for me to put my name on the little gift I send to the party?

BETTY L.

IT is correct to enclose your card with the gift, so that she will know that it was your kindness that sent it.

How to Keep Well

By Royal S. Copeland M. D.

Change Peps You Up Mentally and Bodily

DR. COPELAND

A CHANGE from the ordinary routine of our lives brings with it many good results. A temporary change from city to country, or from country to city, as the case may be, will affect the mental attitude for the rest of the season. You may travel only a mile from home, but you will have different scenery, new faces and places to think about. A day or a month or a year away from the familiar surroundings is sure to take one out of a rut.

Mental discord wastes a tremendous amount of vitality. A discordant mind usually arises from some mental condition. It may be worry, fear, anger or continued ill health. Such conditions all have the results upon the body. They disturb the organic functions, especially those of elimination.

Experiments have shown that mental discord will so affect the digestion that the assimilation of food is practically stopped. The food eaten at such time ferments. The poisons and waste materials resulting from this fermentation which should be eliminated are kept within the body.

Good health is often largely determined by good digestion, and a proper, happy state of mind. The benefits of an otherwise happy vacation may be spoiled by overeating or the eating of improper food. Do not eat too heartily. Make it a time of real physical recreation, a time to increase your bodily vitality and your mental poise.

Many undermine their health by thinking about it. Having set out to enjoy a vacation, be happy, enter into all the fun possible, learn how to play and forget your troubles. While in nature's playground, where every green thing abounds, look about you and enjoy the many diversions at hand. A study of nature is a very interesting pastime.

Did you ever study the subject of "Trees?" Or the flora and fauna of the section where you are spending your vacation. And such things as the geological formation around you?

Think health instead of disease. This will have a marked effect and in time you will unconsciously be restored to good health. Cultivate the right mental habits. Learn how to live. If you follow the commands of nature you will have abundant health

Horoscopes

Sunday, August 18

SUNDAY'S horoscope shows very quiet and unimportant conditions, although all affairs of church, the clergy and charity are under the benefic and prospering rays of Jupiter. It should be a pleasant day generally.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a fairly prosperous year, with all things flourishing, especially dealings with landlords, magistrates and those in authority and power. There may be some small delays or disappointments.

A child born on this day may have many excellent traits of character, enabling it to make gainful contacts with those in places of position and power.

When you pray you rise to meet in the air those who are praying at that very hour and whom, save in prayer, you may not meet.—Kahlil Gibran.

Monday, August 19

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for success and expansion in many efforts at attaining large ambitions, which may partake of a public nature or be in the direction of science or invention. But excellent prospects may be nullified by bad judgment or some small impetuous action or tumult.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to have a year of success and prosperity, with achieved ambitions, if they avoid clamor, haste and impetuousity.

A child born on this day may be ingenious, original and have fine qualities for reaching high places, but it should be schooled in calmness and self-restraint.

If you are truly rich you could lose all your money and still be rich.—Glen Buck.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

JULY EXPORTS HIGHEST IN YEARS

Merchandise Shipments from United States Largest In Nine Year Period

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—July exports of merchandise totaled $401,000,000 as compared with $378,984,000 for July, 1928, and $341,809,000 for July, 1927.

Imports were $353,000,000 against $317,848,000 for July, 1928, and $319,298,000 for July, 1927, leaving a favorable trade balance of $48,000,000 against $61,136,000 in July, 1928, the Department of Commerce announced today.

For the seven months ended July last exports were $3,024,068,000 as compared with $2,755,973,000 in the same period of 1928 and $2,708,102,000 in the 1927 period. Imports totaled $2,639,354,000 as against $2,493,780,000 in the same period of 1928 and $2,442,473,000 in the same 1927 period, leaving a favorable trade balance of $348,714,000 as against $352,193,000 for the seven months ended July, 1928.

Exports of merchandise from the United States during July of $401,000,000 were the highest for any July since 1920, when the total reached $651,100,000, Department of Commerce officials stated. Imports for July also were the highest since July, 1920, when the total was $537,100,000. Not since July, 1920, has the seven months' total exports or imports exceeded this year's seven months' totals. In July, 1920, the seven months' export total was $4,[illegible]97,100,000. The previous high corresponding seven months' total for imports was in July, 1926, when imports reached $2,640,998,110.

It was stated by officials of the department that the high export total for July of this year was largely due to the increased shipments of automotive products and machinery. Sugar, coffee, rubber and hides imported into the United States during July helped to swell the total to a new high.

Gold exports for July were $803,000 compared to $74,190,000 for July, 1928, and $1,803,000 for July, 1927. For the seven months ended with July exports were $7 853,000 compared with $529,708,000 for a similar period in 1928 and $31,674,000 for a like period in 1927.

Gold imports for July were $35,524,000 compared with $10,331,000 for July, 1928, and $10,738,000 for July, 1927. For the seven months ended with July imports were $217,031,000 compared with $93,307,000 for a similar period in 1928 and $172,110,000 for a like period in 1927.

Young Explains Crude Price Drop

Overproduction combining with decreased demand caused the break in Pennsylvania crude oil prices, according to L. W. Young, Jr., president of the South Penn Oil Company.

The prices slid 25 cents on most grades and 30 cents on grades in Ohio pipe lines.

"There has been a slight overproduction in the field that was noticed several months ago," Young said. "This overproduction, with a slackening in demand from refineries, caused the drop.

"It would be impossible to tell whether or not there will be a recovery in prices soon. Usually the demand slackens some time during August. Crude oil does not follow the gasoline demand, which usually continues in good volume until later in the fall."

LIGHT COMPANY EXPANDING

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—The Southwestern Light and Power Company is building nine miles of 6,600-volt line south from Carnegie to Alden, Okla., which will serve a cotton gin at Alden and 31 rural customers en route. The company is converting the present Mount View Junction to Carnegie line from 13,000 volts to 33,000 volts and double circuiting five miles of 33,000-volt line from Mount View Junction to Hobart. The rising of the voltage of this line is to provide improved service to enable handling the increased load at the towns of Gotebo, Mount View, Carnegie and Fort Cobb in Oklahoma. Five new gins will be served on this line during the 1929 season. The double circuiting of the 33,000-volt line will bring control of the Carnegie line.

New steel sub-stations of increased capacity are being installed at Gotebo, Mount View and Carnegie and the capacity of the Fort Cobb sub-station is being doubled. The transformer capacity at Bessie Junction is being increased greatly to handle the additional load at Corn and Colony. New cotton gins are being served at both Corn and Colony in addition to large feed mill at Corn. New steel sub-stations of increased capacity are being installed at Hammon and at Butler, and the Leedey sub-station is being enlarged to accommodate increased loads at these towns. Sub-stations are being installed at Herring, Carpenter and Hocker Switch to take care of fully motorized gin loads at each of these three locations. Construction work is in progress on the 33,000-volt line and sub-station east of Addington, Okla., to serve the large motor load of the Magnolia Pipe Line pump station.

RESERVE BOARD SAVES CREDIT FOR FARMS

Plans to Prevent Market From Absorbing Money Meant for Agriculture

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Charged with supervising credit, the Federal Reserve authorities are not concerned with arbitrating differences between the bulls and the bears.

Nevertheless, shifts in reserve policy in practice sometimes have a decisive effect on the redistribution of security holdings. The boosting of the rediscount rate from 5 to 6 per cent last week had the effect of switching some stock holdings from weak to stronger hands. Officially, the Federal Reserve has no interest in passing on the quality of investors or speculators, but the rate increase resulted in a quick shakeout which improved the quality of transient ownership.

MORE OUTRIGHT BUYERS

The decline in the total of brokers' loans by more than $67,000,000, in spite of the recovery in stock prices, signified that there had been a wholesale transfer of stocks from thinly margined operators to outright buyers or at least to operators who proceed on a more conservative basis. The presumption is that investment trusts and other institutional buyers stepped in during the interlude of public fright and bought selected high-grade common stocks freely.

The reduction in brokers' loans after successive weeks of setting unprecedented peaks constitutes a feather in the cap of the Federal Reserve. However, past experience had amply demonstrated the fact that the central banking authorities can radically influence the situation over short periods, but that over longer terms supply and demand operate, and iron out more expressions of policy. It seems reasonable to assume that the Federal Reserve during the crop moving period and the season of fall business expansion will not attempt aggressively to cut down brokers' loans, but will seek to hold them in check.

The Federal Reserve authorities particularly want to prevent the stock market from sucking up the additional credit which for seasonal purposes the Federal Reserve will dumpt into the money market for the use of agriculture and commerce.

FEDERAL RESERVE AIM

Spokesmen for the Federal Reserve have repeatedly affirmed that they are not concerned with stock prices, but merely wish to prevent the stock market from increasing its use of credit at a abnormally rapid rate. Accordingly, irrespective of the recovery in stock prices, the net effect of the first week of the new policy should be satisfactory to the Federal Reserve, inasmuch as loans are down. Irrespective of what the stock market average indexes show, stocks have not been pushed indiscriminately upward since the May reaction. The market has been highly selective, and the spectacular moves have been in a limited number of stocks. It is to be assumed that paternalism will not undertake to set a fair price for leading stocks, but that this will be left to free competition.

No wonder optimism recurs in spite of credit difficulties! July was the best foreign trade month since 1920, and of course in 1920 figures were swollen by commodity inflation. Exports for the first seven months have been larger than in any corresponding period since 1920, and imports have been bigger than at any time since 1926.

Foreign trade prosperity parallels peak activity in domestic commerce. The outstanding corporations in the railroad, public utility and industrial fields set new high earning records in the first half of the year, and from present indications the figures for the entire year will be unprecedented.

AGE OF MERGERS

This is the age of mergers. Joseph H. Appel, executive head, John Wanamaker, New York, has questioned the soundness of some of the recent department store consolidations.

"Much of this consolidation and expansion," he pointed out before the international advertising associations, "is being done with other people's money. Today 20 different department store organizations, some operating as many as 35 separate units, doing an aggregate volume of $1,000,000,000 in 1928, are listed on the New York Stock Exchange, with aggregate value of stocks both preferred and common of $710,000,000, of which stock the public holds more than one-fourth. The extent to which the public will profit from their monies invested in retailing or in any industry will depend on whether in the sale of stocks the houses of issue are getting the public in (to share the burdens) or letting the public in (to share the profits).

"To be of benefit to the public these consolidations must reduce the ratio of expense in the merged stores. Yet a new and costly overhead is being built up in the buying and management organization of the holding company. There may be a saving in consolidated buying, but independent stores may use group-buying associations, which accomplish the same purpose. There may come more financial stability, but first the bankers' profit in effecting the merger must be paid. There may come a unification of system and control. But management and man-power are human things that must be reckoned with."

Big Independent Steel Merger Takes Form

ACTION of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company this week in changing its capital structure by doubling authorized common capitalization and declaring a 20 per cent stock dividend, is interpreted in mid-West industrial and financial circles as another step paving the way for a gigantic combination of independent steel makers. By this action, the company will have 800,000 unissued common shares in its treasury available for disposition as directors determine.

A consolidation of mid-West steel companies into one large combination has been under consideration for several years. No less than half a dozen producers and their allied interests are directly controlled by the so-called C. S. Eaton group of Cleveland, which includes the Mathers, John L. Severance and others identified with the Union Trust Company of Cleveland. This group earlier in the year, created a pool estimated at $30,000,000 to purchase into steel companies.

Group Controls Republic.

IT NOW holds a controlling interest in the Republic Iron and Steel Company, one of the country's largest steel makers, with diversified finishing capacity. It was this group which brought about merger of the Trumbull Steel Company, at Warren, with the Republic Company. The Eaton group also controls Central Alloy Steel Company, of Canton, and Massillon; Otis Steel Company, Cleveland; Corrigan-McKinney Steel Company, Cleveland; Midland Steel Products Company, Cleveland. It is said to have bought heavily into Inland Steel Company, Chicago; Empire Steel Corporation, Mansfield; American Rolling Mill, Inc., Middletown; Pittsburgh Steel Company and several smaller makers.

Campbell Favors Combine.

THROUGH holdings of the Mathers and of Mr. Severance, this group also has an important voice in the management of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company. Control of the Youngstown company is vested, however, in Youngstown capital, which is headed by James A. Campbell, president. Large blocks of sheet and tube stock are held in Youngstown by the Wick, Bonnell, Tod, Campbell and Butler families, all of the Mahoning Valley. Mr. Campbell is understood to favor a consolidation on terms which will be advantageous to his company.

In merger negotiations, the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company holds a distinct advantage by reason of its substantial capacity in the Chicago district. The company gained a foothold in the important Chicago area several years ago by purchasing outright the Steel and Tube Company of America. Subsequently, negotiations were nearly completed for consolidation of the Sheet and Tube Company with the Inland Steel Company, but were abruptly terminated.

Wide Ramifications.

REPUBLIC Steel has acquired within the past 18 months Steel and Tubes, Inc., with plants in Cleveland, Lorain and Brooklyn, and in this purchase acquired the valuable Johnson patents for maufacture of steel tubing by electrical welding. It recently became a partial owner with Spang, Chalfant & Co., of Pittsburgh, of the Fretz-Moon Company, Butler, Pa., which manufacturers electrically-welded steel tubing in smaller sizes.

In view of the overlapping in ownership of the important mid-West companies, it would not be difficult to effect a consolidation. The more important producers, such as Sheet and Tube and Republic Steel, have important iron ore holdings through their partial ownership in iron ore companies. The Lake Superior ore holdings of Sheet and Tube, for example, are among the richest in the world, and greatly add to its value in merger considerations, making this company the logical nucleus of any large consolidation which may be effected.

Second in Industry.

A CONSOLIDATION of steel companies, such as is suggested, would create a unit in the industry second only to the United States Steel Corporation and exceeding Bethlehem Steel, in aggregate capacity. It would have ramifications throughout the country in production and distribution of its products, which would in many respects equal those of the leading interest. It is Mr. Campbell's contention that such a combine, if it is effected must have its headquarters in Youngstown.

Tobacco Cartel To Maintain Prices

DANVILLE, Va., Aug. 17. — Tobacco Association of the United States and large buying corporations have revealed an agreement under terms of which the buying companies stipulate their willingness to maintain prices for grades they handle from the beginning to the end of the selling season, starting in the Virginia section next month. This will assure growers a reasonable return, stabilize the market and tend to prevent glutting the market, which occurs when tobacco reaches peak prices. Peaks are always followed by a depression as result of the overcrowding of the floors.

Farmers are assured that if the principle of the new plan is carried out successfully it will mean the establishment of "orderly marketing" and very probably an extension of the selling period, instead of crowding it into a few months.

Radio Corporation's Net for Quarter

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Radio Corporation of America reports for quarter ended June 30, consolidated net income of $1,409,299 after expenses, depreciation, patent amortization and federal taxes equal after allowing for dividends on 7 per cent cumulative preferred "A" and $5 cumulative preferred "B" stock to less than one cent a share on 6,526,310 common shares outstanding versus $3,587,187 or 34 cents on same common share basis in preceding quarter and $1,401,905 or less than one cent on same common share basis in 1928 quarter.

July Record Set By Frigidaire Co.

DAYTON, Aug. 17. — Frigidaire Corporation set a new July record when total installations of its electrical refrigeration equipment exceeded July, 1928, by 52.4 per cent.

An increase of 136 per cent in shipments of household refrigerators over July, 1928, was reported.

MOTOR WHEEL OUTLOOK

DETROIT, Aug. 17.—A more liberal cash dividend on the capital stock of the Motor Wheel Corporation can be maintained in the future, H. F. Harper, president, stated today in a letter to stockholders. The board of directors, he declared, will be prompted in this action by the company's surplus, now amply sufficient for future operations and prospects of current record level of production continuing indefinitely with positive indications of expanding operations in other lines.

Current dividend rate is $2 annually, payable quarterly. A cash dividend of $1 per share and a 20 per cent stock dividend has been declared, payable September 20 and October 1, respectively, to stockholders of record September 5.

"After payment of the 20 per cent stock dividend," writes Mr. Harper, "we will have 825,000 shares common stock outstanding and which alone will share in our earnings, as your corporation now finds itself with no indebtedness except current bills."

Sales so far this year exceed $25,000,000, or approximately 100 per cent over the same period last year, which was the previous peak in our history, while new lines of business outside of the automotive field are increasing and stabilizing our sales volume. So since 1920 we have paid out of earnings the following: Cash dividends on common stock, $7,042,139; bond interest and to retire bonds, $2,431,089; preferred stock dividends and to retire preferred stock, $3,182,179; total, $13,255,408.

STEEL OUTPUT IS HOLDING STEADY

Smaller Orders from Some Consumers Offset by Gains Reported in Other Branches

By B. E. V. LUTY.

Reports indicating a substantial decrease in steel requirements and production are exaggerations, and predictions based on that conception, that there will be a big revival shortly, are beside the mark.

One is reminded of the old idea of setting up a man of straw in order to knock him down. As to production of steel, no decrease by the large mills is discernible, and the relatively rare cases of decreases by small mills involve producers with a limited range of product, particularly those making automobile steel. The automobile decrease is seasonal and is not large. Producers with variegated output do not feel it, as they simply put more steel into other lines.

As to an increase in steel requirements, there is no ground for expecting that. In line pipe, freight cars and fabricated structural steel order books are well filled and operations are steady, at high rates, requiring no increase.

IMPLEMENT MAKERS BUSY

The agricultural implement industry is running full and had only a little lull in steel buying, when changing from one class of implements to another. The next change in automobile production will be the further slowing down that occurs in November and December. The four months, July to October inclusive, have in the past five years had approximately the same production, somewhat below the first-half average and of course decidedly below the peak rate of April. In rail production there will be a little further decrease and then probably an increase in the late weeks of the year. Miscellaneous consumers as a class have been running right along and promise no particular change. The greatly increased mechanization of steel consuming, as well as of steel producing, plants makes for steady operation through the summer. Years ago, when the work was much more ardous, hot weather slowed everything down.

HAND-TO-MOUTH BUYING

Confusion in appraisal of the steel situation and prospects arises from attaching too much weight to the rate of buying from time to time. Consumption is the real criterion. The rate of buying began to slow down more than two months ago, but in general it was merely a case of consumers being covered some distance ahead and observing that with deliveries growing easier there was no longer occasion to buy ahead. Also there has been the important factor of executives taking vacations. In general, hand to mouth buying is again the practice, but that is merely a reversion to the style followed for about six years, with increasing closeness, until early this year. The steel industry thrived under that practice and during the period in which mills were sold far ahead not a single line of steel increased in price, so what difference does it make?

From the first half of the year to the second half steel demand is having its usual seasonal slip, while from the longer range view it is probable that there is, on the whole, a gradual slipping from the exceptionally heavy demand of the last 14 months. Steel tonnage has been quite above its usual relation to the volume of general industrial activity, through that activity chancing to run particularly to steel.

CORPORATION'S BACK-LOG

The steel corporation's unfilled obligations are in all probability undergoing quite a decrease this month. While there were moderate sized decreases in May, June and July, the net showing for the first seven months of the year was phenomenally favorable. One must go back to 1922, a year of recovery from extreme depression, with buying especially stimulated by fears of a shortage on account of the bituminous coal strike, to find a year in which there was not a decrease in unfilled obligations in the first seven months. Some years had a net decrease of more than 1,000,000 tons, while this year showed a net increase of 111,465 tons. Furthermore, an unusual proportion of the unfilled obligations is in the form of actual shipping orders even though some of them are dated.

PRICES IN BALANCE

There is no general tendency in steel prices to advance or to decline. The philosophy of the steel trade is to hold prices stationary as conducive to steadiness in trade while the evidences are that on the whole the prices ruling have been quite remunerative. Of late there have been some exceptions, in the direction of weakness, but these may be called accidents of competition. Black and galvanized sheets slipped a few weeks ago to their level of early in the year. Wire nails recently slipped 10 cents a keg and some sales of plain wire and other wire products have lately been made at a similar concession of $2 a ton, which represents a reversion to prices ruling steadily during the second half of last year. Cold rolled strips, recently subject to some concessions, are firmly back to their former level of 2.75c to 2.85c.

Improved Income For Wilcox-Rich

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Wilcox-Rich Corporation reports for six months ended June 30 net profit of $1,000,871 after charges and taxes. This compares with combined net profit of Wilcox-Rich Corporation and Rich Tool Company of $527,964 for the first half of 1928.

Steady Market in Wool for Week

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—There has been a steady wool market this week, according to the Commercial Bulletin, with prices firmly maintained. Country operations have been small with stocks rapidly dwindling.

The manufacturing position appears especially sound and the mills are using a very considerable weight of wool. Tariff considerations, while interesting, have not interferred with business to any extent. Further modifications of the wool schedule are expected to be made.

Foreign markets are still dull but a little more business is reported from Bradford in tops at lower prices.

P. R. R. HOLDERS DECREASE

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Number of stockholders of Pennsylvania Railroad decreased 1,044 during July to 157,412 on August 1, making second consecutive monthly decrease since January. A year previous, Pennsylvania stockholders numbered 153,294.

Since the first of the year number of stockholders shows a net increase of 3,404. High record was on June 1, 1929, with 158,566 stockholders.

Average holding on August 1 was 71.57 shares against 71.05 shares on July 1, 1929, and 72.91 shares on August 1, 1928.

Women stockholders numbered 79,640, increase 2,397, constituting 50.59 per cent of total holders, increase 0.20 per cent. They held 3,909,481 shares, decrease 9,370; being 34.70 per cent of outstanding stock, decrease 0.36 per cent. Their average holding was 49 shares, decrease 2.

Corporation holders numbered 2,147 against 1,892 on August 1, 1928, increase 255.

Total number of transfers in July were 10,707 against 4,957 in July, 1928, increase 5,750.

RETAIL VOLUME ABOVE 1928

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly trade review says regarding conditions in the Pittsburgh district:

General business conditions show comparatively little change, with retail trade somewhat ahead of a year ago, and being stimulated to some extent by special sales in certain lines. Jobbers of dry goods, men's and women's wearing apparel and shoes reports sales very light, although an early improvement is looked for. Total volume of sales appears to be averaging somewhat better than a year ago at this time. Hardware and building supply lines are rather quiet, and the demand for lumber has been somewhat disappointing. Groceries and confectionery lines are not very active at present.

While there has been a slight recession in industrial operations, the average rate of production is considerably higher than a year ago, and prospects continue favorable. While demand for electrical and radio equipment is seasonably quiet, sales are reported averaging higher than a year ago. There has been a moderate improvement in the demand for window glass. Production of plate glass continues at a higher level than normal, and the demand has been holding up unusually well for this period of the year. Production of crude oil has again broken all records, and prices appear to be showing less firmness.

While a slight improvement is noted in demand for bituminous coal the situation continues far from satisfactory to the average producer. There is no particular change in prices of Western Pennsylvania grades of run-of-mine coal which are quoted per net ton as follows: Steam coal, $1.25 to $1.75; coking coal, $1.50 to $1.75; gas coal, $1.65 to $1.75; steam slack, 80c to 90c, and gas slack, $1.00 to $1.10.

Market Still Rallies

Narrow Market Here

MARKET STILL SHOWS RALLY TENDENCIES

Atchison, Timken, Packard And Can Open Higher, N. J. Standard Lower

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Rallying tendencies were still predominant at the opening of today's stock market. Atchison and Southern Railway each opened 2½ points higher and Timken Roller Bearing showed an initial gain of 2 points.

Packard Motors (old) and American Can each opened about a point higher. The first sale of Standard Oil of New Jersey, yesterday's individual feature, was a block of 7,600 shares at 70, off ½.

With no change announced in the Chicago and San Francisco Federal Reserve rediscount rates, and reports of further gold withdrawals in London for shipment to New York, operations for the rise were resumed with considerable confidence in today's market.

Oils were again heavily bought in expectation of material benefits to the industry from the California restriction law which becomes effective next month. Standard Oil of New Jersey was the leader, running up from 70 to a new high record at 78. Texas Company and Mexican Seaboard each advanced about a point in the early trading.

Rails also pushed forward as a result of the excellent earnings and carloadings reports now being published. Union Pacific was quickly marked up about 2 points to a new high record at 288⅞ and St. Paul common, Lackawanna and Norfolk and Western recorded early gains of 1 to 1½ points.

Public utilities moved forward under the leadership of Consolidated Gas, which crossed 181 to a new high record. American Power and Light, Public Service of New Jersey and Standard Gas and Electric moved up a point or two.

Foreign exchanges opened steady, with sterling cables unchanged at $4.84¾.

American Solvents To Adjust Capital

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Stockholders of American Solvents and Chemical Corporation have approved a readjustment in the capitalization. Preference shareholders will receive one share of new $3 convertible preference and one-fifth share of common plus one-tenth shares of additional preference in payment of dividend arrears. Common stockholders will receive new stock on a share for share basis.

Jersey-California Oil Merger Denied

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—It is officially denied that Standard Oil Company of New Jersey is negotiating for merger with Standard Oil Company of California. The Supreme Court decision dissolving the Standard Oil group would probably be a permanent bar to any such merger.

World Copper Yield In July Slightly Off

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—World copper production during July totaled 174,547 tons, or 5,631 daily, versus 174,586, or 5,820 daily, in June, decreases of 39 tons in monthly rate and 189 in daily rate.

Total for seven months to July 31 was 1,277,207 tons versus 1,057,439 in 1928 period.

Industrial Rayon Dividend.

Discussion of inauguration of a dividend on capital stock of Industrial Rayon Company has been taking place among directors, it is learned. It is known, however, no specific action in this respect will be taken before the end of the year when the new unit of organization will be in operation and an accurate knowledge of income for year will be available. In circles informed of the company's progress net income for the full year 1929 is expected to show little variation from that earned last year when net was $1,653,602 after charges equal to $8.68 a share.

Penn-Dixie Cement.

In common with other large cement companies Penn-Dixie Cement has suffered keenly during past 2½ years for importation of foreign cement mainly from Belgium. Penn-Dixie is in good financial position as common dividend was first reduced and then passed in October, 1928, to prevent impairment of its financial position. Cash on hand on June 30 amounted to $1,402,000 and was substantial excess of all current liabilities.

Gulf Refining Shipments.

Vessel shipments of refined oils from the Gulf Refining Company's Port Arthur refinery in July amounted to 2,281,311 barrels for coastwise movement and exports were 72,651 barrels, against 2,871,557 and 100,445 barrels, respectively, in June. Tanker shipments of the Texas Company from its Port Arthur plant in July consisted of 1,370,068 barrels for coastwise movement, and exports totaled 525,070 barrels, against 1,392,189 and 636,244 barrels, respectively, in June.

Georgia Power.

Georgia Power Company reports June, 1929, gross earnings of $1,825,087 and total income after expenses, taxes, etc., of $985,272 available for interest, reserves, retirements and dividends. For 12 months ended June 30, 1929, gross earnings totaled $23,922,431 and profit $8,591,720 after taxes, interest and other deductions. Surplus after preferred dividends was $6,188,145 available for reserves, retirements and other dividends.

More Sugar Refined.

Sugar Institute, Inc., reports total melt of 15 United States refiners from January 1 to August 3 was 3,070,000 long tons vs. 2,670,000 in the 1928 period and deliveries 2,860,000 tons vs. 2,520,000.

LOCAL MARKET QUIET AND STEADY

Screw & Bolt Holds Prices Attained Yesterday; Fuels And Industrials Narrow

Trading volume dwindled on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, but prices held steady and the recent leaders continued to sell around the best levels of the present movement.

The actitity noted in Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt yesterday, when the stock was admitted to trading on the New York Stock Exchange, was in evidence in a smaller way in the short week-end session today, but it did not break out of the price range between 27 and 28 in which it worked yesterday.

Fuel stocks showed no material changes from yesterday's quotations. Lone Star Gas opened with a small fractional decline, but was not under pressure. Western Public Service was unchanged. Dixie Gas was firm and reflected the scarcity of supply around recent prices by opening with a large fractional overnight gain. The oil stocks were also firm, but did not display the same buoyancy as was noted in the petroleum division in the New York market.

Westinghouse Air Brake was quiet and changed hands at prices a little under the high established in yesterday's forward movement. Blaw Knox, United Engineering and Foundry and Arkansas Gas preferred were narrow but steady. A block of 10 shares Pittsburgh Coal preferred came out at 99, unchanged from its close in New York last night.

N. Y. Reserve Helps Bank Of England Maintain Sterling Rate

ONE of the most effective methods by which the Federal Reserve Bank of New York co-operates with the Bank of England in support of the sterling exchange rate and to restrain a New York drain upon the British bank's gold reserve is understood to be through holding itself ready at any time to purchase sterling bills on London when the exchange rate falls so far below the gold import point as to make gold import likely. This is done in the regular course of Reserve Bank policy, and bills so acquired are included among the Reserve holdings of bankers' acceptances. Through such purchases the Reserve Bank has power to exercise considerable control over gold imports and could, perhaps, even prevent a movement of that metal from London to New York. This mean provides the "official support" of sterling which has apparently kept it pegged so close to the gold import point, now figured at $4.84⅞, that little gold has come from London in the last month or more. It may be the reason why it is unnecessary for the Bank of England to establish a credit in New York which its governor denied this week. It aids Great Britain in American cotton and other crops.

Reports of prospective strong banking support for oil stocks, such as had been made available for utility shares, were generally credited with the brisk rally in petroleum issues, but another favorable factor was found in the remarks of E. B. Reeser, president of the Barnsdall Corporation and head of the American Petroleum Institute, who was quoted as saying the oil outlook in California never was brighter. He expressed the opinion that producers in that state would cooperate to conserve resources in a way acceptable to all, and he thought the menace of overproduction would be greatly lessened.

A RENEWAL of reports of negotiations for a merger of Standard Oil of New Jersey and Standard Oil of Indiana interests, regarded with skepticism in the street, evoked a flat denial from officials of the New Jersey unit. The suggestion was based on the belief that powerful industrial and banking interests associated with the Standard Oil group would move to modify the terms of the federal decree that dismembered the Standard Oil "Trust" 18 years ago. Whether or not the Standard Oil people might favor such a readjustment, it is considered unlikely any modification could be effected within a reasonably short time.

One of the interesting developments of the recovery this week was the failure of the rail shares to rebound as briskly as industrials and utilities. For some unexplained reason the carrier group seems unable to attract the following that goes into other parts of the list in spite of the rather promising advance that got under way last month. Rail shares displayed some strength today, but favored specialties in the industrial and utility sections again dominated trading.

MONEY conditions will be closely watched. Although some bankers are anticipating periods of stringency, with higher rates, it is generally believed that there will be ample credit to take care of the stock market needs. Wall street has become accustomed to paying high rates for funds, so that money is not likely to be as much of a factor during flurries as many anticipate. With the end of the month approaching, there should be some normal stringency.

Conservative observers continue to advise customers to lighten long holdings during advances, but a number of them admit that their clients are not following this policy very actively. Many have been using "stops" when their issues have moved ahead. Those who have been optimistic are predicting higher prices. They insist that recent leaders have been consolidating their advances and are advocating the purchase of such stocks on recessions, particularly those which have prospects for increased or special dividends, and on which earnings are expanding.

MELLON TRUST IS RUMORED

Reports that the Mellon family's holdings of Aluminum Company of America, Gulf Oil and other companies are to be pooled through the formation of a huge investment trust were received without comment here today.

In the absence of R. B. Mellon, president of the Mellon National Bank, and brother of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, representatives of the Mellon interests stated they had no knowledge of the plan. The report originated in Wall Street yesterday.

A report that J. P. Morgan & Co. were interested in the organization of such a trust proved to be unfounded, but in certain quarters it was insisted that the plan was being seriously considered by the Mellon interests.

The Mellons are said to own over 90 per cent of the Gulf Oil Corporation, the shares of which experienced another sharp advance this morning. Current quotations of around $206 on Gulf would give the outstanding 4,504,921 shares an open market value of well over $900,000,000.

Aluminum Company of America, which recently hit a high of $539.50 a share has 1,427,625 common shares outstanding and $147,262,500 of 6 per cent preferred. The preferred is selling around $108 a share.

SMALL HOLDERS LESS ACTIVE FOR STEEL

Increase in Floating Supply Indicates Some Have Missed Latest Advance

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Increase of 1.59 per cent in brokers' holdings of United States Steel common can be taken to indicate that some of the smaller investors were taking profits during the upturns recorded prior to July 31, last.

Of course, the fact that some 900,000 additional common shares are now outstanding would naturally result in a larger floating supply, but it is evident that brokers took more of the stock under the subscription rights than investors, as holdings in the names of firms rose about 20 per cent during the four months from April 1 to July 31, while investors recorded an increase of only slightly more than 10 per cent in their Steel holdings in that period.

It is natural to expect that many of the small investors did not have the necessary funds to take up their additional stock and sold their rights. This would be a logical step. On the other hand, brokers, with the money available, not only exercised their rights, but also purchased rights from holders to subscribe for the stock. It is probable this accounts for the increase in brokers' holdings to some extent.

BROKERS' HOLDINGS

With but a temporary interruption early this year, there has been an upward trend in brokers' holdings of Steel common since the end of the March quarter, 1928. During this period Steel common has enjoyed some substantial upturns, and these were apparently used by investors to take profits.

Up to about a year ago it was general for an increase in the number of stockholders of Steel common to be accompanied by a decline in the number of shares available for speculation, and this was considered normal. However, in recent statistics it has been evident that both the number of holders and the amount of stock in the floating supply as reflected by brokers' holdings have been expanding.

Hold Negro After Fatal Gun Duel

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Aug. 17.—Robert Brooker, Clarksville Negro, was held for court as the result of the fatal shooting of Wesley Bates, Negro, in Clarksville, Thursday. Brooker pleaded self defense. Bates had fired one shot before being killed by Brooker, according to police.

Big Whale Goes Aground While Chasing Fish

VICTORIA, Tex., Aug. 17.—(AP.)—A 70-foot whale, the first ever reported in these waters, rested on the beach five miles west of Pass Cavallo on Matagorda Island today, the victim of its own greed.

It is thought that the whale was pursuing an immense school of redfish, estimated to have been a mile long and a quarter of a mile wide, which was noted Thursday. The whale is supposed to have been so intent on the fish that it ran aground. The crew of the Pass Cavallo lighthouse made the animal fast and will attempt to tow it to Port O'Connor.

NORTHERN RAIL EXTENSION DISPUTE

Northern Pacific and Great Northern are Interested In New Montana Lines

ST. PAUL, Aug. 17.—Renewal of the controvery waged by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railways a few years ago over the privilege of developing the east-central district of Montana is considered almost a certainty in railroad circles as result of events of the past few weeks.

Rail service to millions of acres of potentially rich agricultural lands is involved. A compromise is considered unlikely.

In 1926 both Northerns sought permission from the Interstate Commerce Commission to build extensions to Circle, Mont. A determined fight was made, as it was felt in some quarters that the winning company would have the right to make future extensions in Central Montana. The Northern Pacific won approval for its proposal and the Great Northern's application was denied.

FORMER MONTANA PROJECT

L. W. Hill, chairman of the board of the Great Northern, said afterward in the annual report that the Great Northern's project of a cross-state through line from Lewistown, Mont., eastward, which had been planned since 1910, had been abandoned as a result of the decision favoring the Northern Pacific. Now the Great Northern is back in the field with a modified project for this cross-state line.

The present situation began a few weeks ago when Northern Pacific filed an application for permission to build northward from Woodrow, on its Circle-Brockway branch, to Bloomfield, 24 miles. Bloomfield is only about 15 miles south of the Great Northern's branch line terminus at Richey.

RIVAL RAILROADS

Two weeks later the Great Northern moved to build west from Richey 32 miles to Hamblin, and filed an application. This was followed by an amended application asking the right to make the extension run from Rickey 105 miles west to Jordan, which is only 150 miles east of Lewistown. This brought up again the old cross-state project.

However, the present plan of the Great Northern is to build the line along a more northerly route, from Richey westward, than was proposed at the time of the clash with the Northern Pacific. As now projected, the line would pass through Jordon instead of Cohagen, as originally surveyed, which would make it about 29 miles farther north.

NEW ROUTE SURVEYED

By following this route, the Great Northern contends, it will not interfere with Northern Pacific developments, and there will be room for both lines. If the Northern Pacific accepts this view and makes no objections to the Great Northern's proposal, the Great Northern will not oppose the Northern Pacific's Bloomfield branch, officials have indicated.

However, in view of the Northern Pacific's previous victory before the Commerce Commission, and its ambitions for extensive development in the territory, it is doubtful if it will let the Great Northern revive its old project without a fight.

Employment Drop Considered Moderate

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Employment in manufacturing industries of the United States decreased six-tenths of one per cent in July, compared with June, but was 6.5 per cent higher than in July, 1928.

This was announced today by the Department of Labor, which said the manufacturing industry's decline from June was the smallest for any July since the monthly employment report was begun in 1922. A general decline of two-tenths of one per cent was reported.

Payroll totals for manufacturing industries dropped 4.5 per cent from the June figure, but were 7.7 per cent greater than in July, 1928.

DELIVERY DUTY NOT FORCED ON RAILS

Commerce Commission Says It Lacks Authority to Ask Extended Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—One point of importance in the long controversy waged on a national scale over "store door" freight delivery has at last been settled by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

That body, considering solely a New York City case, announced its finding on the element of national importance by declaring itself without power under the law to compel carriers to install the system in that city or at any other point.

Since 1918, business associations and professional bodies of national importance have contended that the roads ought to take the last step in extending transport service, and assume the duty of picking up all freight and delivering it at the points of origin or destination. Terminal engineers argue that this is necessary to cut down the congestion of modern cities; business executives on all sides see in it lower cost and greater expedition.

An actual attempt to get the system going was made under the wartime federal control of railroads. It was focused to a point in New York City freight litigation over various methods of going part way toward store-door delivery installed by some lines there, and propositions to alter or abolish those systems.

"It may be taken as settled that, at common law, there is no obligation on the part of a carrier by railroad to effect personal or store door delivery of freight," the commission said after passing on the points merely of interest to New York City. "Has the Interstate Commerce act changed that status? Nowhere in that act is there even a suggestion that the requirement that carriers must furnish reasonable and adequate terminal facilities is intended to supplement their common-law obligation to such an extent that delivery at their freight stations or public team tracks is not a complete satisfaction of their lawful obligations.

"It must be concluded that as the law now stands, a carrier cannot be required against its wishes to furnish personal or store-door delivery of freight. Learned and experienced minds have recognized tremendous advantages and possibilities in the service, and the various treatments of the subject, coming as they do from responsible organizations, command respect. But that change, under the present state of the law, will have to come with carrier co-operation and cannot come with carrier opposition."

This leaves a situation that Congress may look into in the near future. However, the matter of proceeding without new law is clearly made futile by the text quoted.

ALUMINUM CO. IN POWER PROJECT

Dams Along Tennessee River Figure in Development Costing $125,000,000

RICHMOND, Aug. 17.—A colossal power development by the Aluminum Company of America, exceeding in magnitude the electrical energy generated by Niagara Falls, is under way in Western North Carolina and Eastern Tennessee.

All but one of the eight dams will be in Western North Carolina and the total outlay will represent an investment of about $125,000,000.

The projects in their entirety represent one of the largest and most ambitious power developments in the United States, it has been disclosed.

The latest steps in the plans of the Aluminum Company of America for full development of the power possibilities of the Tennessee River and its tributaries is the formation of the Nantahala Power and Light Company with an authorized capital stock of $10,000,000. The company is backed by the same financial interests which are behind the Aluminum Company of America, Tallassee Power Company and the Knoxville Power Company.

PLAN TAKES TIME

The Aluminum Company of America is carrying out a plan which will require years to execute. It began work in 1905 with the acquisition of land for power development in Western North Carolina and Tennessee. The power company has built two dams and has another almost completed, while plans for others are under way. One dam is built at a time. When the power development has been completed and the Great Smoky Mountains National Park has been opened, Swain County, N. C., will have one-third of its area covered by the lakes of the power company and one-third in the national park.

The next great development of the company will be at Fontana, on the Tennessee River. Two will follow at Bushnell, one at Needmore and one at Acquone.

RELOCATE RAILWAY

The erection of these dams calls for the relocation of a portion of the Southern Railway tracks and a part of the state highway. It will call for the elimination of a branch line of the Southern Railway from Bushnell to Fontana, a distance of about 15 miles. The tracks of this line would be entirely under water upon the completion of the Fontana dam. The power company will handle the freight business now being handled by the railroad, including the copper ore from the Fontana mines, by means of a boat or barge line on the huge lake that will be formed by the dam. Freight will be taken in boats from Fontana to Bryson City, a distance of some 30 miles. Fifteen or 20 miles of the Southern Railway main line from Asheville to Murphy will be changed by the company and some five or six miles of state highway.

TWO DAMS NEEDED

The dam at Fontana, in the Tennessee River, will back water to Bushnell. At Bushnell plans call for the erection of two dams, near the junction of the Tuckaseegee and the Tennessee rivers. Water will be backed to a point near Bryson City, on the Tuckaseegee River. The two will be connected by penstock or tunnel line 11 feet in diameter. A powerful plant will also be located at this point. Plans call for another dam at Needmore, which will back water into Macon County, N. C., for several miles and for a dam on the Nantahala River at Acquone. The power company has owned this site for several years.

The lake created by this dam will extend several miles up the river. The power house will likely be located near the Nantahala station on the highway. The natural fall of the river from Acquone to Nantahala station is more than 80 feet. The dam, most likely, will be 200 feet. When the dam is constructed, a tunnel through the mountain from the dam site to the power house will be bored.

U. S. Freight Co. Earns $3.30 Share

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Net income of U. S. Freight Company for first six months of this year will approximate $1,000,000 or about double net of $512,167 in 1928 period. This will equal about $3.30 a share on 300,000 common shares outstanding, against $2.10 a share earnings on 250,000 average shares outstanding during 1928 first half. While it is too early to estimate full year's earnings, current returns indicate that the pace maintained in the first half is being held.

Mr. Bonwit, now head of Bonwit Teller & Company, began business in a tiny shop with $1,000 capital many years ago.

LEATHER TRADE ACTIVE

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—The sole leather market is active and strong as to heavyweight stock, the "Shoe & Leather Reporter" says. Light selections are in larger supply but are feeling to some extent the influence of the pronounced improvement in heavyweights. It is the swing of the pendulum again. Some time ago the call lightweight stock induced increased tanning of light hides. When the demand swung to heavy leather the stocks on hand and in process were inadequate. Coincidentally, the revival of activity at the shoe factories has compelled the purchase of larger quantities of sole leather.

During several weeks there has been what amounts almost to transformation in sole leather. Upper leather tanners are selling more leather, but there is general complaint that profits are impossible under present price and tariff conditions.

Activity abounds in shoe manufacturing plants everywhere. Orders are plentiful and in places where troubles limited production the situation has greatly improved. The style feature is better understood. It has been said that styles are "fewer and better." This does not mean they are not as important as ever, but that formerly they came so fast they obliterated each other. Most of the factories have enough orders on hand to keep them in operation till fall.

MARMON NET LOWER

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—On basis of Marmon Motor Car Company's operating schedules and shipments since May 31, it is apparent earnings for second fiscal quarter ending August 31, will be substantially below those for first quarter when net income was $1,238,637 after all charges except federal taxes, equal to $4.70 a share on 260,000 common shares outstanding.

May quarter earnings were obtained on shipment of slightly less than 15,000 Marmon and Roosevelt cars. In June shipments approximated 3,200 units, July about 2,800 and August production schedule calls for about 3,500 cars. If this schedule is attained the company will have shipped about 9,500 cars in August quarter, a decline of about 5,500 units or 35 per cent from the first quarter.

In face of these figures it can be assumed earnings for second fiscal quarter will decline at least 35 per cent from the first quarter. Decline is likely to be somewhat greater because profits usually shrink to a greater percentage than do sales when the trend is downward.

This would indicate Marmon's earnings in the quarter ending August 31 will range between $500,000 and $700,000 or from $1.90 to $2.70 a share on common before federal taxes. Indications are third quarter shipments will run above second fiscal quarter.

Improved Net for Economy Grocery

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—Economy Grocery Stores' report for the year ended June 30 net income $271,551 after all charges, equal to $2.71 a share on 100,000 capital shares outstand against $145,049 or $1.45 a share on the same basis in preceding fiscal year. Gross sales were $10,561,098 against $9,062,337. Company was operating 340 stores, an increase of 28 during the year.

Place Automatic Shops in Gas Stations

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—As initial steps in the installation of a chain of automatic vending shops in filling stations, Autosales Corporation this week completed installation of the first of its new "Autosaleshops" in four Standard Oil of New Jersey filling stations at Philadelphia, Newark and East Orange. Similar installations are now being carried out for the same company in Baltimore and Washington filling stations. Autosales Corporation is negotiating with other principal oil companies for installation of the vending machines.

The new shop, designed like a miniature Standard filling station with tile roof, etc., is actually an automatic confectionery store selling 20 articles.

WINDOW GLASS PROSPECTS IMPROVE

Better Conditions in Farm States Strengthens Trade; Bottle Business Increases

The outlook for the flat glass industry for the next few months has been materially brightened owing to the western grain crops being above the average in quantity and sold at an advantage, says the National Glass Budget.

Jobbers are anticipating the usual improvement in demand that is customary during the latter third of the year. Considering all features that have an influence on the situation there are substantial reasons for expecting better business than was in evidence last fall. If there is any change in the market it is a firmer tendency.

Manufacturers of window glass are encouraged on account of the increased number of orders booked the first half of this week. The glass wanted ran strongly to the popular and odd sizes which are not carried in large amounts. In some instances shipments from producers' warehouses will be slightly delayed as some stocks are low on these brackets. Another encouraging sign is that inquiries are increasing in number and are being received from all parts of the country. Production continues at a low point and will not be increased to any great extent for some weeks to come.

PLATE GLASS UNCHANGED

There is a slight increase reported in the demand for rolled and wired glass and manufacturers are looking for further improvement in the next 30 days.

No change has taken place in the plate glass situation other than a small falling off in the amount of orders coming from the automobile trade. Nevertheless, demand from other sources is just about keeping abreast with factory output.

New methods for making domestic plate glass are now in operation and, according to unofficial reports, are proving satisfactory. This applies particularly to the production of glass around one-eighth of an inch in thickness. It will be interesting to watch these developments in this industry which promise to be of a revolutionary nature.

PACKERS BUYING SUPPLIES

Conditions in the glass bottle industry continue satisfactory from the standpoint of ware produced and volume sold. One bottle manufacturing concern of considerable prominence is shipping a dozen or more cars each week more than it can produce, thus, materially reducing stocks on hand. Another equally prominent company is running its plants 24 hours a day, seven days each week.

It should be stated, however, that the companies to which reference is made are large producers of packers' ware and this is the season for it. This, with a strong demand for most other lines of ware, makes the situation very satisfactory to the bottle manufacturer.

FLINT GLASS STEADY

In manufacture and distribution of flint glass ware the present week shows little if any change from weeks just past. Generally, conditions in this branch of the glass industry maybe regarded as good.

BRITISH COTTON SETTLEMENT

LONDON, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald tonight sent a message to the press from his vacation retreat at Lossiemouth, Scotland, expressing gratification that the cotton dispute in Lancashire was ended yesterday and his hopes that the award of the arbitrators would be given without undue delay.

His message emphasizes that "the position of the cotton industry is not at all satisfactory."

"Certain sections of this industry must not be worked more, in restraint of, than in promotion of trade, as apparently has been the case. The inquiry which the government instituted must now be pushed as quickly as possible so that the temporary accommodation which will follow arbitration may be used as an opportunity for both sides and all sections to get together, face the facts and overcome them."

The Premier declared that his intimate knowledge of the operatives' representatives and the "improved spirit" which he found when he met some of the employers at Edinburgh have given him hope the Lancashire cotton industry can be made to flourish. He hoped that the arbitration award would be accepted and loyally worked by both sides.

Week's Commercial Failures Decrease

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Business failures in the United States this week totaled 368, a decrease of 67 from last week's total, and a reduction of 41 from the number two weeks ago, R. G. Dun & Co. reports. The number of failures for the corresponding week last year was 404.

Find Credit Plan Of Auto Buying Decreases

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—The prevailing belief that an increasing percentage of autoists were buying cars on the installment plan was discounted by statistics issued yesterday by the American Motorist Association and the Automobile Club of Illinois.

Credit sales on new cars last year were 10 per cent smaller than in 1926, when 68.2 per cent of all new cars were sold on time payments. The report stated, however, in the past four years there has been only a 2 per cent decrease in the percentage of used cars bought on the installment plan. Last year's figure was 60.8 per cent as compared to 62.2 per cent for 1925.

LAKE LOADINGS OF COAL AT RECORD

Lake Erie Coal Movements Above Peak Established By Carriers in 1927

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 17.—Coal loadings on Lake Erie totaled 19,156,010 tons for the season to July 31, a record for any year and comparing with 15,157,632 tons in the similar period of 1928 and 19,015,809 tons in the similar period of 1927.

Loadings are now about 200,000 tons ahead of the same date two years ago when the ports made the standing record of 35,500,000 tons. Later opening of navigation this year and scarcity of vessels due to their activity in the grain trade held coal traffic low for the first few months this season, but July dumpings of 5,563,618 tons were 1,100,000 tons ahead of those in the similar month of 1927, the record year, and 350,000 tons ahead of the similar month of 1928.

LOWER FREIGHT RATES

The slightly lower freight rates for cargoes to ports such as Ashtabula, Sandusky, Conneaut, Erie and Cleveland are reflected in the increased loadings at those ports while the Toledo docks, which heretofore have led all others by loading more than 50 per cent of the Lake Erie coal, are losing their supremacy.

Among the leading coal-carrying roads touching at Lake Erie the, Pennsylvania Railroad has carried more than 6,200,000 of the 19,156,010 tons loaded this season on Lake Erie to make a gain of about 1,900,000 tons over the similar period of 1928. The Hocking Valley is 120,000 tons behind last season and 1,800,000 tons behind 1927.

RAIL LOADINGS UP

The Erie Railroad, the New York Central Ohio Central Lines and the Bessemer & Lake Erie are among other roads making excellent gains over previous years while the Baltimore & Ohio is holding about steady with 1928 but is behind its 1927 mark.

The Pennsylvania's large dock at Sandusky, O., is leading in individual loadings with 4,445,708 tons handled there during the season to July 31. This is 1,100,000 tons ahead of the next closest road. In July that dock loaded 1,145,575 tons of the 5,563,618 tons loaded on Lake Erie, or slightly more than 20 per cent of the total.

Within a few weeks the demand for Great Lakes freighters in transporting the present blockade of wheat is expected to subside and records may be set during the remainder of the season. Shortage of freighters in the ore and coal trades has caused several new 600-feet, freighters to be started for the 1930 season.

Improvement Seen For Hollinger Mine

MONTREAL, Aug. 17.—Improvement is shown in the Hollinger situation. The new vein being worked on the 2,700 and 3,900 foot levels of Schumacher property is shaping up satisfactorily, and an effort will be made to reach it by drifting at various levels between these two. Some other veins on the Hollinger property are showing increases in values.

Amoskeag Closes Manchester Mills

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 17.—Worsted and cotton divisions of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company have been closed down until September 3, affecting about 10,000 operatives. The Rayon Yarns department will not curtail.

Freight Traffic Records New High Mark

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—The volume of freight traffic handled by class one railroads in the first six months of this year was reported today by the Bureau of Railway Economics, an organization maintained by the carriers, to have been the greatest ever recorded.

Traffic for the first half of 1929 totaled 238,638,592,000 net ton miles, an increase of 4,634,565,000 net ton miles or 2 per cent over the previous high mark established in 1927. It was also a gain of 14,687,726,000 net ton miles or 6.6 per cent over the first six months of last year.

Railroads in the eastern district for the first half of this year reported an increase of 8.9 per cent in the volume of freight traffic handled, compared with the same period in 1928. The southern district reported an increase of 1.6 per cent and the western district 5.3 per cent.

New Gypsy Program Billed For Broadcast Tonight

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Sun Telegraph Radio Editor

A PICTURE of a campfire at night with talented gypsies playing stringed instruments is conjured in our mind as we focus this evening's spotlight on Romany Patterns, a new feature for WJAS. Details are meager but we hope the serenade at 9:30 is confined to instrumental music. We never cared much for gypsies' singing.

Such favorites as Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 6," Sullivan's "The Lost Chord," excerpts from Herbert's "Fortune Teller" and Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Flight of the Bumble Bee," will be given an audition by the General Electric Orchestra in a request program, WCAE, at 9 o'clock.

Voices of Al Jolson, Nick Lucas, Harry Richman, Dick Robertson, Scrappy Lambert will be projected to Antarctica by KDKA during the Byrd broadcast at 11:05 tonight. They will be electrical transcriptions specially prepared for this occasion.

Immediately following the Byrd broadcast KDKA will conduct experiments to locate "dead" spots. Listeners will hear a long "buzz," which will continue for five minutes. This test will be sponsored by the United States Navy not merely in the interest of science but also of national defense, as dead spots occur at sea as well as on land and often interfere with naval operations.

We note a decided improvement in the type of entertainment offered by the Babson period, WJAS at 8:30. On tonight's program we find "Invitation to the Dance," "Pomp and Circumstance," "Liebestraum" and the popular "Barcarolle" from "Tales of Hoffman."

We Now Present

We enjoyed the buggy ride with Mary and Bob in Schenley Park last night via WJAS. Mary and Bob failed to register enough emotion to excite us about the suspicious character trailing them in an automobile. Instead of a thug with a lead pipe, the "s. p." turned out to be a story teller.

We made a psychological analysis for the popularity of this feature and decided that it was the music, and not so much Mary or Bob, although the romance between these characters does much to hold interest. Can't you just see Mary and Bob rolling along in their automobile when you hear that peppy music?

Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" will be the opening number on the Slumber Music over WJZ at 11 p. m. tonight. And another good WJZ feature is the Goldman Band at 8:45 p. m., offering excerpts from "Carmen," excerpts from "Die Valkyrie," "1812 Overture" and a cornet solo, "Hazel Waltz Caprice."

Accident! Marcella Deverson, beautiful Spanish-type secretary at WJAS, and Adrian "Bud" Cooper, handsome program director at KQV, called on us at the same time yesterday, and, despite the rivalry between these stations, became real friendly when introduced.

Leave it to P. A. Boyd, KDKA publicity engineer, to discover any discrepancies in the mention of "first appearances" at stations other than the pioneer. At 1:30 yesterday we received a news release from the National Broadcasting Company stating that Harry Lauder would make his first radio appearance in America over the WJZ network. Mr. Boyd must have received the missile at the same time, for no later than 2 p. m. he was in the Sun-Telegraph office to inform us that Harry Lauder appeared over KDKA in the fall of 1922, his "first appearance in America."

Cousin Lora, acting director at WCAE, has booked Phil Spitalny for 7:15 tonight. She's doing a good job for Frances Doherr, who yesterday was reported in Yellowstone National Park on her vacation tour.

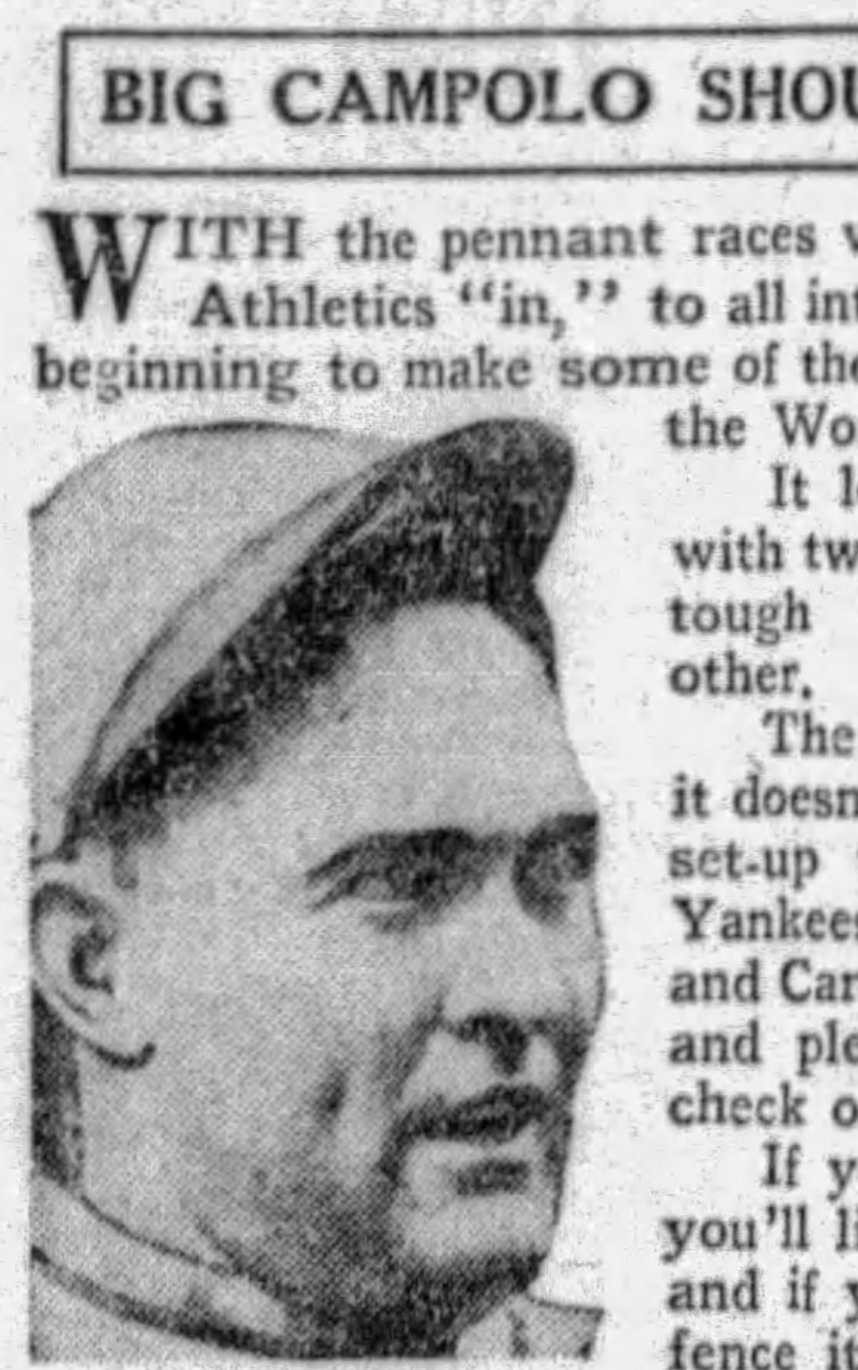
The World Series.
Macks vs. Cubs.
Both Are Tough.
Should Be Close.
Two Pitching Records.
Tommy Grant Returns.

BIG CAMPOLO SHOULD BE ATTRACTION

WITH the pennant races virtually over and the Cubs and Athletics "in," to all intents and purposes, the boys are beginning to make some of those odious comparisons between the World Series contenders-to-be.



Rogers Hornsby.

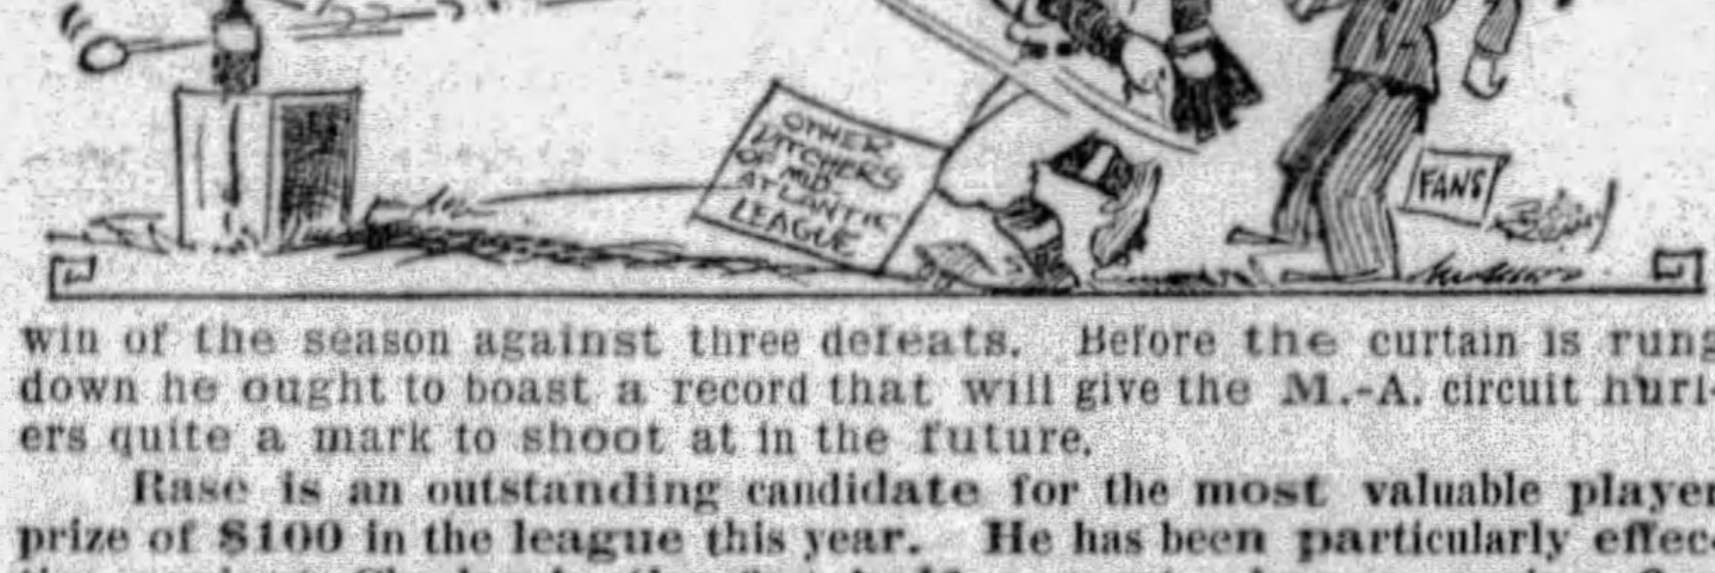
It looks like a hot series, at that, with two fine pitching staffs and a lotta tough hitters arrayed against each other.

The winner will be hard to pick and it doesn't size up as one of those recent set-up tussles in which the slugging Yankees made muggs out of the Pirates and Cardinals. There's plenty of power and plenty of pitching to hold it in check on each side.

If you're an American League fan you'll like Connie Mack's Ath-a-letics, and if you're on the other side of the fence it will be Hornsby and Co., or nothing for you.

The best sizeup so far advanced would appear to be the crack of Bill Corum, New York columnist, to the effect that Chicago is tough, but Philadelphia is where they place the Chicago gunmen in jail when the time comes for them to go, which may or may not apply insofar as the impending World Series is concerned.

CREDIT Pitcher Irvin (Stub) Rase, of the Cumberland Colts, with chalking up a new record for the Mid-Atlantic League. He boasts 20 victories this season. He passed the old record of 19, established by John Schmutte, the Johnstown southpaw, in 1925, when Schmutte finished the season with that many triumphs and only four defeats chalked against him, last Tuesday, when he turned in his twentieth win of the season against three defeats. Before the curtain is rung down he ought to boast a record that will give the M.-A. circuit hurlers quite a mark to shoot at in the future.



Rase is an outstanding candidate for the most valuable player prize of $100 in the league this year. He has been particularly effective against Charleroi, the first half pennant winner, scoring five consecutive wins over that club. He boasts three victories over Wheeling and the same number over Fairmont and Johnstown.

ALL three of Rase's defeats have been by close margins. Clarksburg beat him, 3-2, in 14 innings, early in the season; Jeannette won, 4-1, and Scottdale defeated him by 1-0 to break a streak of six straight victories. He has won his last seven games and 13 of his last 14 starts. His record against Jeannette, Clarksburg and Scottdale, the other teams in the league, is two victories over and one defeat by each.

Rase is a native of Frostburg, Md., and is 26 years old. He is completing his third season with the Colts. Last year, he won 16 games and lost 11, and in his first season he won 14 and lost 7. He has participated in almost one-third of the Colts' games this year and his earned run average is 2.20 per nine-inning game.

Here is a player who is due for a chance in faster company. In fact, the big league scouts have had their eyes on him for some time and he ought to go up for a trial in the fall or next spring.

WHILE on the subject records, one Lefty Huffman, star of the Vesta No. 6 team of the Monongahela Valley League, also has been doing some tall and fancy chucking of the pill this season. In eight games, he has lost only one, has struck out 91 batters in 51 innings, allowed only two runs, both in the same game, held the opposition to 25 hits and pitched a perfect seven-inning game in which he fanned an even dozen. His complete record follows:

	Innings.	Runs.	Hits.	Strike-outs.
July 16	7	0	3	12
July 21	5	0	3	12
July 24	7	0	1	9
July 27	7	0	5	13
July 31	7	0	0	12
August 6	6	2	6	16

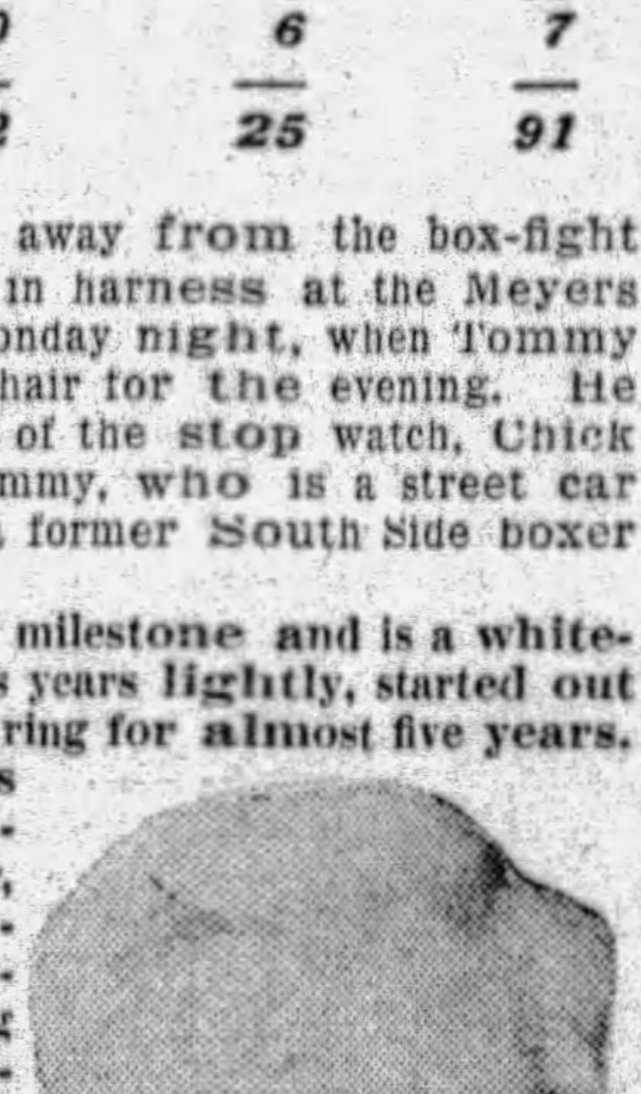
AN OLD familiar figure that has been away from the box-fight racket for some years will get back in harness at the Meyers Brothers' Bowl in North Braddock next Monday night, when Tommy Grant, of Rankin, steps into the timer's chair for the evening. He will be subbing for the regular custodian of the stop watch, Chick Chulick, who will be off vacationing. Tommy, who is a street car man working out of the Rankin barn, is a former South Side boxer and later a manager and promoter.

Grant, who has just passed his fiftieth milestone and is a white-haired, mild-mannered gent who carries his years lightly, started out as a boxer at the age of 16 and was in the ring for almost five years. During that time he met such notable as Jack Kinlow, of McKeesport; Billy McIsaacs; Jimmy Frazier and Eddie Gardner, of Wheeling. He trained with Jack McClelland. Back in 1897, he won a bag-punching contest on the South Side, doing his stuff blindfolded while the other competitors were not thus handicapped. He still can make the old leather play a merry tune.



Tommy Grant.

AS A manager, Grant handled Matt Gorman, Grant (Kid) Clark, of Columbus; Joe Bedell, Steve and Johnny Pendro, Joe Korch, Johnny Garrity, Jimmy Jordan, Joe Thomas, Jimmy Parrish, Mickey Ward, Mike Milko, Joe Kline and Hughey Madole, among others. As a promoter he staged bouts in Braddock, McKeesport, Hyde Park and Piedmont, W. Va. He is not entirely new to the role of timekeeper, for he has manipulated the watch in shows in several towns and has been a regular official in this capacity at the local Police meets. For years he has been a friend of Frank Klaus, former middleweight champion, in Braddock.

Boxing is Tommy Grant's game. He dropped out of it as an active figure when he married, but always has attended the shows when the opportunity afforded and welcomes the chance to step back into it in an official capacity at this time.

THE decisive victory of Vittorio Campolo, the new giant from the Argentine, over Tom Heeney, of Australia, by a technical knockout in the ninth round of their battle in Brooklyn, Thursday night, does not necessarily mean that the 6-foot 7-inch South American already is a real menace in the heavyweight division, because of the fact that it has been patent ever since the slaughter of Heeney by Tunney a year ago that Tom is all washed up and through. However, it must be admitted that a man as big as Campolo who gets around as well as he does in the ring and can stand the gaff while he hammers home his own blows is a fighter who

KNOX YOUNG BEATEN BY 3 AND 2

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

The veteran Irishman, John Graham, idol of the South Hills Country Club, of which he is chairman of the green committee, at last has come into his own. After a score of years competing for the honor, in which time he has on several occasions gone as far as the final round, Graham is now the holder of the Western Pennsylvania amateur championship.

It was fitting that the South Hills and Oakmont star should win the championship yesterday over his home links. At the height of his glory as president of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, he now also holds the title, for the year at least, of being the district's leading amateur.

GOOD MATCH

Knox M. Young, Jr., of the Highland Country Club, made a hearty bid for the championship, but just when things appeared to be going along smoothly in his favor and Graham appeared to have spent his best golf, the South Hills star threw a flock of birdies at the boy who was recently beaten on the nineteenth hole in the Maine amateur championship final, and, as they say in soccer circles, he was not to be denied.

The score of the encounter was 3 and 2, and the championship final, refereed by the mainspring of all Western Pennsylvania golfdom, George Ormiston, secretary of the W. P. G. A., was a hard-fought and interesting match. Going out, Graham held a two-stroke medal advantage over Young, having a 37, and was 1 up at the turn. They had halved the first four holes in a row, Knox dropping the fifth and sixth to become 2 down, halving the seventh and eighth, and copping the ninth.

WINS ON SIXTEENTH

They evened strokes on the tenth and eleventh, and Young regained any margin of disadvantage by grabbing the thirteenth to make the tilt level.

Then Graham started playing his hole card. He won three holes in a row with 3s, and the best the Highlander could do was 4s. With the match dormie, they halved the sixteenth in 4s, and the title was in the bag for Graham. Their cards:

Graham, out	4	5	4	4	3	4	3	4	6—37
Young, out	4	5	4	4	4	6	3	4	5—39
Graham, in	5	4	4	3	3	3	4

FRENCH TAKES ON BRAVES

NEW PIRATE LINEUP SHINES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—A couple of swift hitters today were given credit with having transformed the docile Buccos into sea-faring Pirates. When the Pirate family sat down to breakfast this morning, Donie B . took Fred Brickell up from the neck-of-the-chicken end of the table and ordered the waiters to take Fred's order, first of all. George Grantham resumed his honor seat.

Wichita Freddie, one of the fastest runners in the league, and a sturdy boy who knows how to clout the apple, is at the head of the class largely on account of a three-base hit with three on which [illegible] yesterday's ball game in fa[illegible] of the Pirates. GRANTHAM DOES WELL

Brick drove in four runs. He scored one himself, connected for three hits and played a whale of a game in the outfield while Brother Paul was starring at first base. Grantham spent a lot of his time on the bases and while he did not get any hits, his bat was prominent and his movements around second were beautiful to behold.

Bush's new battlefront didn't lose a minute's time in convincing the manager that he had moved properly. In the first inning the new lineup stepped out, and when Brickell tripled in the third, it was all over so far as the Braves were concerned. The final score of the contest was 9 to 3.

Bush was a changed person this morning. The performance of the new lineup carried added sweets through a setback handed the Bears, which brought their advantage back to seven and one-half games. The Buccos feel that things are looking up in their camp with Grantham and Traynor back in the fight and Burleigh Grimes working hard to get in shape again.

FRENCH ON MOUND

Bush stated that Larry French would heckle the Braves this afternoon in the Pirates' last appearance of the season in Boston. Acting Manager Evers is expected to send Bob Smith to the mound.

Capt. Traynor appeared to take a fresh hold with the revamping of the club. In the victory over the Braves the native son whacked out four hits, including a double, his other visit to the plate bringing a valuable sacrifice.

Ervin Brame started and finished the contest for the Buccos, although the tall fellow was not feeling strong. The Braves nicked the recruit quite merrily, Les Bell featuring the attack with a bunch of long clouts, including a homer into the rightfield bleachers.

Brickell took a triple off Main-Line Les in the seventh. The Harrisburg slugger smacked the long-

BUD DEMPSEY TO OPPOSE BILLICK

Bud Dempsey, of Ambridge, has been signed as the opponent of Dan Billick, of Duquesne, in the second eight-round bout at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, Monday night. The club tried to rematch Jackie Rodgers, local Negro star, with Billick, whom he recently knocked out in the first round in the same ring, but Rodgers' manager refused to permit Jackie to appear on the card unless the bout was billed as half of a double wind-up, a demand to which the club refused to agree.

Dempsey is a veteran who has boxed Willie Davis, Bud Taylor and others of note. He returned to Ambridge several months ago after campaigning for several years around Detroit. In his first start following his return he put up a good fight with Carl Cavelli at New Castle.

The Jackie Murray-Johnny O'Keefe bout, originally arranged as the second event at the Bowl, Monday night, has been moved up to the semi-final position and will be fought after the main bout, Matchmaker Beck announced this morning. Andy Andrucci and Harry Taylor meet in the six-round opening bout.

Tommy Crawley and Phil Goldstein, keen local lightweight rivals, will wind up their training today for the 10-round main bout. Goldstein is in New York, while Crawley has done his prepping in the Pittsburgh Lyceum gym.

M'KEESPORT CARD FULL

Jim McGirr, of McKeesport, has completed the card for his show at Cycler Park, McKeesport, next Thursday night. He has Cuddy DeMarco, of McKeesport, and Tiger Joe Randall, of Elizabeth, in the 10-round main bout; Frankie Nanci, of Swissvale, and Battling Gizzy, of Donora, in the six-round semi-final; Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, and Steve Pollock, of the North Side, in the second bout and Jack Banty, of McKeesport, and Thad Yarocz, of Monaca, in the opening event.

Ed Fritz, matchmaker of the Jolly Bowl, of New Castle, has rounded out his program for Monday night's show, in the main event of which Paris Cangey, of New Castle, boxes Frankie Ferro, of

Ruth Slams Out 32nd Homer, Passes Rajah

Associated Press.

Babe Ruth monopolized the Big Six spot light yesterday with his thirty-second home run, two singles and three runs batted home. This burst of speed lifted his average five points, to .362, and enabled him to pass Rogers Hornsby, who got only one hit in Brooklyn and lost one point in the figures. Al Simmons gained a point with two hits against the Indians, but Jimmy Foxx, Babe Herman and Chuck Klein had to be satisfied with one safety apiece. The standing:

FRED BRICKELL FLEET ON PATHS

By Staff Correspondent.

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—Lloyd Waner might be able to outrun Fred Brickell if he hit a slow roller on the infield with two out and the winning run on third, but the frail little fellow would have to step on the gas under any circumstances to defeat Brick, the way the latter is running now. Wichita Fred is one of those "strong" runners—he is a real treat to all who have a side view of him as he carries the mail to first base. There is muscular power in every move as he flies over the ground, while Brother Lloyd is more of the phantom.

POOR SPRINT FORM

He defies the forms of a sprinter by learning forward and holding his arms comparatively still. The fact that Lloyd falls occasionally after turning first is due, it is felt, to the position of his arms. Apparently, he has not been taught any track work, but Mel Ingram, who starred on the track in his college days, was quick to note the peculiar style adopted by the Oklahoma Jack-rabbit. Brickell has the strength of a tackle or a guard and the speed of a panther; he is short of stature, which may be an asset to him as he swings at the plate. Certainly the pitcher must get the ball "in there" for him and when he clicks the rocket fairly, he gives it a real ride.

Fred Brickell.

When Fred, as a 17-year-old boy, joined the Pirates, his professional experience consisted of just a few games with the Wichita club. The Western League team of his home town plucked him from high school, and he was placed in the lineup. Chick Fraser saw him hit a couple and run, and he was quick to grab him up for the Buccos.

LEARNS QUICKLY

Brick was such a confirmed rightfielder batter when he came to the Pirates he "couldn't throw a ball to leftfield," as the players strikingly

ARKLE BEATS RINEHART IN NET FINAL

Hear About the Conceited Actor Who Bowed to a Thunderclap?

★ SUN-TELEGRAPH ★ SPORTS ★

FOURTEEN SATURDAY, AUGUST 17, 1929

LOCAL STAR ALSO LOSES IN DOUBLES

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN,
Staff Correspondent.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, Md., Aug. 17.—B. F. Arkle, blonde ace of Wheeling, bore off Western Maryland titular tennis honors at the expense of Marion Rinehart, powerful Pittsburgher, in an impressive straight-set exhibition on the gallery court of the Women's Civic Club here yesterday. The verdict read 6-3, 6-0, 6-2, but really fails to tell the story of Rinehart's brilliancy in spots, the ever-consistent Arkle checkmating his opponent's flashier game with truly airtight cavorting.

A break in service superinduced by two clean enemy passing shots in the fifth game of set one sent Rinehart on the road to reversal. Encouraged by the lead thus acquired, Arkle opened up an exceedingly fancy display of back-court shots that completely disorganized his rival's usually effective net game and paved a broad path to a Wheeling triumph.

ARKLE FORCES PLAY

Rinehart suffered from lack of accurate ground strokes. Not until game seven of set three was he able to crack Arkle's delivery, a state of affairs due entirely to the fact that he was unable to keep the ball in play long enough to work up proper openings, and as a result he was forced to seek opportunity before it beckoned. Arkle, with low drives, caught him off balance repeatedly coming in, and frequently passed him cleanly with both backhand and forehand when the Steel Citian failed to volley returns of service deeply enough to run the West Virginian to the corners.

Arkle, with his townsman, Fred Selby, also trimmed Rinehart in the men's doubles semi-finals, 6-3, 6-4, the Stanton star pairing with George Sawin, another Pittsburgh luminary. Lobs turned the trick.

MISS SULLIVAN BOWS

Miriam Sullivan, Pittsburgh Athletic Association satellite, pushed Marywill Wakeford, brilliant Washington driver, to the limit in set one of their women's semi-final tilt, but lacked the experience to stay along with her clever foe, and succumbed, 6-4, 6-0. Miss Wakeford will meet Margaret Carspecken, spectacular Morgantown volleyer, for the title this morning. Miss Carspecken overcame a 5-2 lead to defeat Ruth Martinez, hard-hitting Washingtonian, in the other semi-final fray, and in so doing gave the finest show of barrier play ever offered by a feminine performer on local courts. Miss Carspecken and Miss Sullivan together attained the women's doubles final, their victims being the Pittsburgh-Baltimore duo of Betty Wattles and Mrs. Winchester, 6-2, 6-4, and Miss Wakeford and Mrs. Graham, Washington twain, 4-6, 10-8, 6-3. They will clash with Mrs. Martinez and Dolly Harris, an Edgewood girl, today. The summary:

BUD DEMPSEY BOXES BILLICK

Philadelphia, in a return battle. Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, boxes Joe Dinger, of New Castle, in the six-round semi-final and Johnny Jennings, of New Castle, meets Barney Davis, of Cleveland, in another six-rounder, while Sammy Paris, of the Hill, boxes Pete Mazzeo, of Cleveland, and Jimmy Myers, of Cleveland, meets Red Hartley, of the North Side, in the two four-rounders.

Manuel Quintero, the Spanish southpaw lightweight, who recently substituted for Billy Wallace against Joe Glick and carried off the decision in a bout at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, wants to box here. He is highly touted as a contender in the lightweight class. Dave Lumiansky, of New York, is his manager.

NEW BOXER FOR BROWN

Reed Brown, manager of Frank Monroe, the middleweight, and Patsy Gallagher, the featherweight, has a new boxer, Jimmy Ring, a middleweight, whom he is ready to turn loose against the field. Monroe boxes Chuck Zelnack for the third time at Butler Tuesday night.

Jackie Rodgers has bouts pending with Dave Adelman at the Arena, Philadelphia, Monday night of next week, and against Frisco Grande at Johnstown early next month.

Leo Lomski and Mickey Walker will use the same ring for their bout at the Sesquicentennial Stadium in Philadelphia Monday night that Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney occupied in their first meeting on the same grounds. Jack Kearns, former manager of Dempsey, will pilot Walker in the match, which will not be a title affair.

Fight Results

At Erie, Pa.—Jimmy Reed defeated Eddie Reed, 10 rounds; Leo Mozdy defeated Frisco Grande, 8 rounds; Fred Dawson defeated Dandy Allen, 6 rounds; Matty Oldach and Mike Mulligan drew, 6 rounds; Frank Bojorski knocked out (technical) Merle Rogers, 2 rounds.

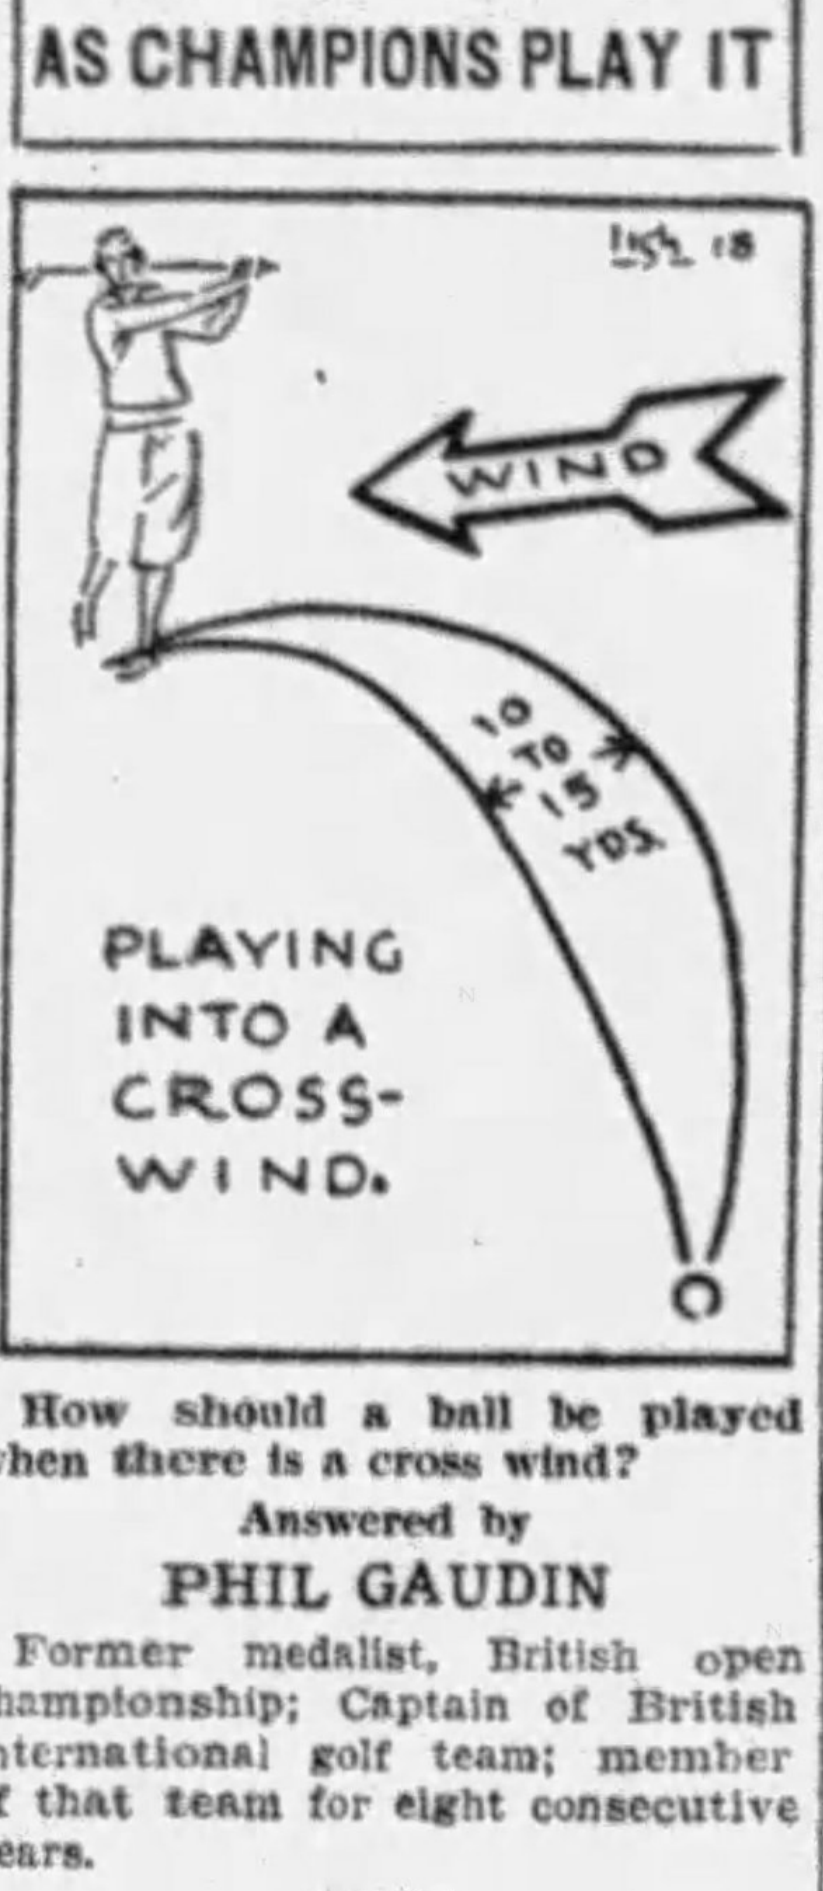
GOLF
AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT



How should a ball be played when there is a cross wind?

Answered by
PHIL GAUDIN

Former medalist, British open championship; Captain of British international golf team; member of that team for eight consecutive years.

Always play the ball 10 or 15 yards into the wind, as shown in the diagram above. (The arrows indicate the direction in which the wind is blowing, not the direction from which it comes.) Playing a ball in this manner gives better control both as to distance and direction. Attempting to play the ball so that it does not go "into the wind" surely will result in loss of distance and accuracy on the shot.

UNIONTOWN VICTOR

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Uniontown, Pennsylvania state champion, defeated Washington, D. C., 9 to 5, in a regional ball game here yesterday in the American Legion Junior League tournament. By virtue of its victory, Uniontown moves into the final Eastern Regional games to be played in Washington next week. The Eastern winner will meet the Western winner for the championship at Louisville, Ky., September 4, 5 and 6.

Uniontown got away to a good start, scoring two runs in the first inning and adding three more in the second. Yasenka's hard hitting played an important part in his team's victory, and with Smith pitching first-class ball, the Pennsylvanians were never in serious danger. Smith had the situation well in hand except in the fourth when Washington flared up and scored four runs. They got their fifth and last tally in the next inning. Smith was a puzzle most of the way, yielding but seven hits and retiring 13 on strikes. The score:

SCHEDULE FOR TODAY.
SECTION I.
No matches scheduled.
SECTION II.
Mt. Lebanon at Wilkinsburg; College Avenue at Philadelphia Company; Minnetonka at Westinghouse Seconds.

Tom Hadden's Wilkinsburgers and the Mt. Lebanon stars of Russ Unger will monopolize the attention of followers of Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League destinies this afternoon. The Holy City aggregation, leading the Section 2 title chase by a rather narrow margin, will entertain the Mountmen, their chief and most pressing rivals, on the Wilkinsburg lot, and upon the outcome of the impending tussle almost certainly depends the destiny of the second division championship.

At the moment, Wilkinsburg leads the Unger host by half a match, though this edge is not quite so slender as at first glance it might seem, for Wilkinsburg has a postponed affair with the tail-end Minnetonka combine to be played off a fortnight hence, while Mt. Lebanon has completed all its contests to date. A decisive win for the Lebanonites, nevertheless, will land them on top of the heap, and, as the campaign is quite close to termination, Wilkinsburg might find trouble aplenty in striving to dislodge them in the concluding stage of the race.

CLOSE MATCH LIKELY

The previous fracas between the pair, staged on the Mount rectangles, resulted in a 6-3 victory for Wilkinsburg, Capt. Unger has strengthened his outfit considerably since the date of that setback, however, and hopes to reverse the verdict today. But Wilkinsburg, with the advantage of battling in the home bailiwick and with the added incentive of a crack at University Club, Section 1 cellar-holder, for the right to compete in the upper loop next season, can be depended upon to put forth sturdy effort to turn back the Lebanon assault, all of which forecasts a torrid engagement.

College avenue will seek to continue its triumph string by taking on Philadelphia on the Stadium courts in another Section II debate, while Minnetonka and Westinghouse Seconds will round out the card with a session at East Pittsburgh.

No Section I combats are billed for the current week-end. Only one fray remains to be reeled off in the higher sector, P. A. A. and South Hills having a postponement that will probably be cared for next Saturday. The tussle is exceedingly important, for if the Winged Head satellites can sweep the board clean for a 9-0 success, they will pass into a tie with the pase-setting Edgewood combine and necessitate a play-off for district team laurels.

INTER-CITY MATCH

An interesting racquet feature of the morrow will be the Pittsburgh-Fairmont inter-city contest in the West Virginia municipality. The melee has more than ordinary significance inasmuch as Fairmont tennis enthusiasts are banking strongly upon it to stir up sufficient comment to persuade the city fathers of the existence of a very genuine need for public courts down Mountaineer way. The match will be a six-man skirmish and the Fairmont Country Club will be the scene of hostilities. Austin Famariss, College avenue southpaw, who has lately returned to Pittsburgh after several months in Fairmont, arranged the get-together and will have charge of the Steel City troops. He hopes to swing Dave and John O'Loughlin and Paul Sullivan, P. A. A. netmen, J. Howard Moore, College avenue, captain, John Brown, Latrobe ace, and perhaps Art Glaser and B. P. Hoover, famed Tartan doubles duo, into action against the West Virginians and quite a speedy struggle is anticipated.

Uniontown Abandons Grid Camp Plans

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 17.—Plans for a pre-season football training camp were abandoned by the Uniontown High School. However, practice sessions will be arranged by Coach A. J. Everhart to start Monday afternoon, August 26. Thirty candidates turned out at a meeting of players and it is expected one of the largest squads in the school's history will turn out for preliminary practice.

13-Year-Old Lad Gets Contract With Cubs

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Samuel (Red) Solomon, 13-year-old player-manager of a boys' team in the Bronx, yesterday became the youngest person ever to sign a major league contract by coming to terms with Joe McCarthy, of the Chicago Cubs. But this does not mean Red will begin his major league career immediately.

His father intends to keep Red in school at least one more year, during which time his activity with the Cubs will be limited to serving as bat boy upon their visits to New York and Brooklyn.

Master Solomon will, however, take time off from studies to see the world series if the Cubs are participants, as a guest of the club. The boy, now in the seventh grade, may attempt two years at high school before becoming a full-fledged professional.

Red is third baseman and manager of a team of boys representing the New York Kiwanis Club in the league of about 1,000 teams directed by Capt. George H. Maines, boys' baseball enthusiast and former president of the Michigan-Ontario League. Red is considered one of the best of the 15,000 boys playing in the league.

SPORT COMMENT

—By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

must be considered in the running. Campolo, who is taller than Jess Willard, former champion, may need some polishing, but already he has the makings of a great drawing card in a class in which there are few really good fighters and little is required to get by.

THE State Athletic Commission code contains a peculiar ruling which stipulates that any licensed boxer or official who has been suspended is not permitted to loiter about the premises or enter a licensed club even as a spectator. When one considers that it takes very little to bring about a suspension this stands out as a rather harsh penalty. A boxer can be suspended for illness or injury or for accidentally fouling an opponent or for incurring the displeasure of the commission in some other minor way. It is doubtful if the clause is strictly adhered to, although all licensed clubs are subject to punishment if they fail to live up to it. Just what harm can be done by having a suspended boxer or second or manager buy a ticket to witness bouts while he is under suspension is not clear and on the surface the rule appears trivial and entirely unnecessary and one that easily could be dispensed with.

COPS CROWN

CEDAR POINT, O., Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Asa A. Long, Toledo, won the American checker championship yesterday by beating Louis C. Ginsberg, of Brooklyn, N. Y., in an eight-game final.

TWO BIG MEETS SLATED FOR TODAY

Two big track and field carnivals, annual events on the Pittsburgh district sports calendar, are being staged today at Schenley Oval and at the Pitcairn Athletic Field.

One of the biggest crowds ever to attend a track and field competition here turned out for the meet at the Oval, sponsored by the Philadelphia Company and affiliated corporations. Special trains brought hundreds of sports enthusiasts to Pitcairn, where athletes representing the Pittsburgh, Conemaugh and Monongahela divisions of the Pennsylvania Railroad vied for honors.

Baseball shared the spotlight with the track and field events on the Pitcairn program, which got under way at 12 o'clock, and the McKeesport High School and Pitcairn bands helped to entertain.

A modified marathon run from the Philadelphia Company Building in Sixth avenue to Schenley Park marked the opening of the Philadelphia Company meet. The runners started at 12:30 o'clock, and a parade, in which the athletes and officials participated, was to be staged immediately following their arrival at the oval. The Pittsburgh Railways Company Band headed the procession.

More than 30 events are on the program, approximately one-half of which are closed to employes of the Philadelphia Company and affiliated corporations. The remainder of the events are open competitions which have attracted a majority of the track and field stars of the Pittsburgh district.

Police Meet Entry List Closes Today

Today is the last day for the acceptance of entries for the track and field events and modified marathon which are to feature the eleventh annual Police Pension Fund meet next Saturday afternoon at the Stadium.

The entries close this evening. Whether there is a last minute rush of applicants or not, the artistic success of the meet is assured, for there are scores of well-known performers in line, and every event on the card will be well filled.

The police meet annually brings to a close the outdoor track season in the Pittsburgh district, and every athlete of note likes to strive for the fine prizes that the police organization puts up for them.

In addition to the Marathon and the track and field events for both sexes, there will be several other features, including a fine boxing program.

SETS BOAT RECORD

HUNTINGDON, Ind., Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Ben Poler, Gary, Ind., yesterday established a new world speed record for outboard motorboats at Lake Wawasee with a speed of 43.09 miles per hour. The former record was 41.23.

CUBS LOSE GROUND TO BUCS IN N. L. RACE

MACKS, YANKS BOTH WIN IN AMERICAN

By Associated Press

Novelty was injected into the two major league races yesterday when the Athletics failed to increase their lead and the Cubs actually lost ground. The Macks won a spirited game in Cleveland by 6 to 5, but the Yanks won with them—from Detroit by 12 to 2—leaving the Philadelphia margin stationary at 14 games. In the National League, the Cubs were defeated in Brooklyn, by 5 to 2, while the Pirates were scalping the Braves, by 9 to 3, to reduce the Bruin advantage to 7½ engagements.

RUTH HITS ANOTHER

George Earnshaw held the Indians well in hand for eight innings in the Brush at Cleveland while his mates prodded the Messrs. Shaute, Holloway and Shoffner with such vigor that the A's took the field in the home ninth with a lead of 6 to 3. At this point, the home forces launched a series of blows at Earnshaw and young Bill Shores was called upon to stop the trouble, which he did.

The Yankee victory at Detroit was notable for Babe Ruth's thirty-second home run. The champions drove Uhle from the box in three innings.

Eddie Wells was right all the way. Al Thomas pitched well enough to bring the White Sox home ahead of the Senators by 8 to 6, and Charley Ruffing tossed the Red Sox to a 3-to-2 decision over Alvin Crowder and the Browns at St. Louis.

MOSS HURLS WELL

Ray Moss, young Brooklyn right-hander, set the Cubs down without a run until the ninth at Ebbets Field. The Robins themselves had no little trouble with Charley Root, being held to two hits in the first six rounds, but they finally broke through for three runs in the seventh. Johnny Frederick placed this decision definitely beyond the Bruins by slapping Root for a homer in the next round after Moss had singled.

Frank O'Doul celebrated with his twenty-fourth homer at Philadelphia, but Cincinnati pounded Lou Koupal and others to trim the Phillies by 7 to 3. Ray Kolp was the winning pitcher, but had to have the aid of Rube Ehrhardt at the finish.

The Giants and the Cardinals had an open date in their schedule, but are due to mix in a double-header today.

German Boatmen Lead Americans

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Aug. 17.—(AP.)—The German skippers went into the lead over their American rivals in the national 30-square-meter class yacht series for the President Hoover and Marblehead Cups yesterday by taking the third of the five races being sailed off here.

Yesterday morning's race went to the visiting yachtsmen, 11 points to 10. The afternoon victory was more decisive, Germany capturing both first and second places and scoring 12 points to the Americans' 9. Germany now has 33 points to the Americans' 30.

FRED BRICKELL SPEEDY

put it. Well, Fred was quick to learn. His three-sacker of yesterday afternoon was a liner down the leftfield line. The cleanup smash represented the high spot of the Pirate play since the club left Pittsburgh one week ago.

Burleigh Grimes pitched to the hitters yesterday, but his index finger is still bruised, making it impossible for him to get all his stuff on a fast pitch or a "spitter." Moreover, Grimes' arm is weak from lack of use. From this distance it does not seem likely that Burleigh will start a game before the team reaches the Polo Grounds next Thursday.

Grantham celebrated his return to second base by some clever play. He made one thrilling catch of a liner and in a general way seemed to be close to top form.

The switch across the bag to the shortfield did not affect Dick Bartell one iota. The ball hawk featured the contest with his fielding, he making a couple of marvelous one-hand plays that did not reach the box score for the reason that fleet runners beat the attempts.

The main body of Pirates will leave for Binghamton tonight, where tomorrow they will stage an exhibition game with the Binghamton club of the New York-Pennsylvania League

The first-string pitchers will go direct to Philadelphia to be in readiness for the series with the Phillies, which gets under way on Monday with a double header.

FRENCH TAKES ON BRAVES

est ball of the contest to deep right-center, where Brick engineered a one-hand catch after a long run.

Timely hits by Traynor and Brickell gave the Pirates two runs in the first round. Brick's cleanup three-sacker to left accounted for three tallies in the third, and the youngster scored a moment later. Doubles by Bartell and P. Waner and Traynor's single added two more in the fourth, the final counter going across in the sixth on singles by P. Waner and Traynor and Harper's fumble of Pie's slashing hit.

The Tribe had a neat greeting for Brame in the first, but only one run was made. Brickell's long throw to Traynor, checking Sisler, helped to flag down the home boys in this round. Bell's four-sacker came in the fourth, and Sisler worked his way around in the fifth, after Bartell had put him on second with a high throw of a grounder.

JIMMY REED BEATS EDDIE

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 17.—Jimmy Reed, of Erie, made a great comeback in his 10-round main event with Eddie Reed, of Philadelphia, here last night, and was awarded a close decision over the Quaker City Negro. Four knockdowns figured in the bout. Eddie had Jim down in the first and again in the fourth, while Eddie found himself being counted over twice in the eighth.

Leo Mozdy, of Erie, surprised his local followers with a wonderful exhibition against Frisco Grande, of Buffalo, to carry off a well-earned decision.

Fred Dawson, of Syracuse, won by a wide margin over Dandy Allen, of Philadelphia, in six rounds. Matty Oldach and Mike Mulligan, local rivals, fought six rounds to a draw. Frank Bojorski, of McKean, won by a technical knockout over Merle Rogers, of Jamestown, in the second.

MAX AND JACK IN CONFAB

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Whether Max Schmeling, German contender for the vacant heavyweight throne, will fight Jack Dempsey, or at least box under the former champion's direction, may be determined today at a meeting in Chicago between Dempsey, Schmeling and the latter's manager, Joe Jacobs.

Dempsey, Jacobs said, may return to the ring next summer for a bout with Schmeling. This match, he believes, would draw a gate of $2,000,000.

Besides conferring with Dempsey, Jacobs said he also would talk with Paddy Harmon, who is bidding for a match between the German heavyweight and Otto Von Porat, the Norwegian.

Scranton Fielder In Unusual Double Play

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 17.—(AP.)—One of the most unusual plays in baseball was made in yesterday's game between the Elmira Colonels and Scranton Miners, when Cowboy McHenry, Miners centerfielder, completed a double play unassisted at first base.

The play was made in the seventh inning. With one man retired and Pritchard on first base Hartford hit a drive to short centerfield. It looked like a sure hit, but McHenry raced in and made a sensational shoestring catch. Pritchard, figuring it a clean single, was past second with little or no chance of getting back to the initial bag.

McHenry, after making the catch, continued running to first base and touched the bag.

ZIVIC STOPS M'CONNELL

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 17.—Jack Zivic, of Pittsburgh, clipped Dave McConnell, another Pittsburgher, on the chin in the first round here last night and McConnell went down and out.

Sammy Paris, of Pittsburgh, and Tony Datto, of Wheeling, fought a six-round draw in the best fight of the card.

Zivic meets Buddy McDonald, of St. Paul Friday night in Ashland, Ky.

POLISH BOXER SUICIDE

KATTOWITZ, Poland, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—The Polish heavyweight prizefighter, Kupka, was found shot dead here yesterday. He was disqualified in a bout at Beuthen Saturday and is believed to have committed suicide as a result of disappointment.

Ann Marie Argues With John After Refusing to Let Him Kiss Her

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ann Marie Macy wanted to be an artist. She told John Lawler, handsome son of a banker and "catch of the town," that she would never marry. But when John came in his car to take her to her father's tiny book store, Ann Marie's heart pounded violently. Later when she knew he wanted to embrace her, she resisted.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER II

"YOU don't want me to do—what?" His arms tightened around her.

"I don't want you to put your arms around me like this." She pushed him away from her.

He sat still, looking at her for a minute or two more.

Then suddenly he leaned over and started the engine of his car. It leaped forward through the puddles of Front street.

"Plenty of girls in this town don't feel about me the way you do," he said sullenly when the car was turning into Pleasant street. "Jeanie and Alice don't, for instance."

Jeanie and Alice were Ann Marie's sisters.

"Jeanie and Alice don't like you a bit better than I do," Ann Marie answered in her soft gentle little way, after a pause. "Just because they're always calling you up, asking you to come over to our house, you mustn't think they're crazy about you . . . They're always calling up to ask boys to come over and 'make whoopee' all over the house. They're full of pep—and I'm not. I'm the sober one of the family."

That, of course, was miles from the truth.

For Ann Marie, who got up at six every morning, was Pep personified. She could do a day's work—and often did!—before Alice and Jeanie were dressed. And she always looked fresh as a white-and-yellow daisy.

"I don't see why you don't get a case on Alice or Jeanie, anyway," she said slowly as the car drew up before the house. "They're both so pretty and—"

"Well, I'll tell you why I don't! Because I'm crazy about you!" John's voice sounded now as if he were angry "But I'm not going to be crazy about you very much longer— Let me tell you something, Ann Marie!"

And then he told her something that some women never learn no matter how long they live.

"When a man's in love with a girl and she won't let him make love to her, "Johnny Lawler began, "why, naturally, he thinks she doesn't care very much for him. And, if he has any sense at all, he stops wasting his time on her. He forgets her. Puts her out of his mind."

Ann Marie gave a soft little laugh. "You talk as if love could be turned off and on like a water faucet," she said. "How can a man forget a girl that he's crazy about?"

It took Johnny a minute or two to think up an answer for her.

"Oh, he starts running around with some other girl," he said at last. "You know, there are a lot of pretty girls in the world, Ann Marie."

"Girls who will let a man make love to them all, he wants to, you mean?"

Sure. Plenty of them! Johnny nodded. "Most girls expect a man to make a fuss over them, and they're disappointed if he doesn't. It's a thrill to make love and who doesn't want a thrill, I ask you?"

Ann Marie sat perfectly still. . . But she knew that she, for one, had not wanted a "thrill" a few minutes ago when she had put off getting into Johnny's roadster as long as she could. . . She knew she did not want one now if a "thrill" meant being kissed by Johnny Lawler. He never would be able to thrill her!

"So that's the way a man looks at it," she said to him softly. "If the girl he loves won't—won't neck—why he gives her up for the girl who will. Is that it?"

"Well, that's a crude way of putting it," Johnny answered. 'But it hits the nail on the head. You see, Ann Marie, when a man's crazy about a girl he wants her to show a little pep when he's round."

He stopped the car beside the old shabby brown house.

The windows of the lower floor were bright with yellow lamp-light and from within came the sound of swift lively music.

In the driveway at the side of the house a car was parked—a large light-colored closed car.

"Brooke Walters' old bus," said Johnny, opening the door of his own car for Ann Marie.

"He probably brought Jeanie and Alice home from downtown. They've been shopping all afternoon—and I suppose he's been tagging Jeanie around as usual," Ann Marie answered as she stepped out into the mist of rain. "He's going to take her to the dance to-morrow night—"

She stopped suddenly, and lifted her face to Johnny Lawler's face. It was like a pearl against the gray darkness, and her smile — even in the darkness — was enchanting.

"Perhaps you won't want me to go to the dance tomorrow night, Johnny," she said, "now that we've had this quarrel."

Her spirits sank at the thought of giving up the dance and all that it meant — the Country Club ballroom decorated with holly and fir branches — the lights — the dance music — the gay holiday crowd. Good times did not come Ann Marie's way very often, and she looked forward to a party with the happy eagerness of a child.

"Sure I want you to go," Johnny Lawler said, and he sounded cross and impatient, "You know I'm crazy to have you go with me — only I wish you wouldn't act like a Sunday school teacher all the time."

They went up the steps of the old house, side by side. Ann Marie fished in her handbag for her key.

"Well, even if we have quarreled I feel as if we know each other better than we ever did before," she remarked as Johnny unlocked the front door and opened it for her.

Late afternoon always meant certain things in the Macys' house.

It meant the opening and closing of the big front door as the family came home, one by one, from their day of business or pleasure.

It meant the lighting of lamps and the rustle of the evening newspaper from the back parlor where Mr. Macy read and smoked in his easy chair.

It meant the pleasant clatter of dishes and silver from the dining-room where Mrs. Leasure, who had been housekeeper in the motherless home for almost twenty years, would be setting the table at this time of day. It meant the appetizing smell of supper cooking in the kitchen.

It meant, almost always, the rattle and bang of jazz-music from the upright piano in the front parlor, as Jeanie or Alice attacked it.

Jeanie played fairly well, but Alice was a wonder when it came to piano playing. She could play "by ear," and she had a crooning voice that was just made for popular songs.

She was singing one now, when Ann Marie and Johnny Lawler stepped into the hall, and Brooke Walters was joining in the chorus:

"—I MUST have a miss
"Who'll long for a kiss—
"Who'll not say
"'Oh, don't be so silly-o!'"

Ann Marie heard so much playing and singing from one day's end to the other that she hardly ever listened to the words of the songs that Jeanie and Alice were forever memorizing.

But she found herself listening to these words and turning them over in her mind as she took off her hat and let Johnny help her out of her coat.

"That song sounds like you, Johnny," she said to him with a little laugh. 'That's what you've just been telling me—that you must have a miss who'll long for a kiss. Well, good luck, I hope you pick that kind next time, old bean!"

Johnny nodded grimly, straightening his necktie before the hall mirror and running a hand over his smooth blond hair. In the glass she could see his face, the mouth drawn tight and straight at the corners, his eyes narrowed.

"All right. Laugh at me all you want to, Ann Marie," he said without turning to look at her. "If you cared a hang about me you wouldn't do it. You'd know how I feel. You'd know how rotten it feel to be goofy about a girl who—Oh, what's the use of talking about it ny more?"

"I wasn't laughing at you, Johnny—" And then Ann Marie stopped talking and swung around as the door of the front parlor opened and her sister, Alice, stepped out into the hall.

"I thought I heard you two out here," she said brightly, facing them. "Hello, Johnny Lawler! Haven't seen you for perfect ages!"

She held out her hand to him and smiled, showing dazzling white teeth.

Everything about Alice was bright, somehow or other. The blue glint of her eyes, the crinkled gold of her hair, the scarlet of her lipsalved mouth, her polished finger nails, the sheen on her black satin dress, her black silk stockings, her patent leather slippers with their two-inch heels.

Alice made a great fuss over all men.

To be nice to them — to flatter them—to try to make them lose their heads over her was not a game with Alice, but a business.

For Alice had one ambition in life. To marry and to marry well—that is, to marry MONEY!

In the bosom of her family she made no secret of her great hope.

"The only way for a girl to get the things she wants is to marry a man with money," she often said. "And I, for one, am going to see that I get everything I want that way." She was quite open and frank about it.

"Anyone can marry a nobody" she declared and Jeanie always said that she felt the same way about marriage in general.

Jeanie's "boy friend," Brooke Walters, might be the black sheep of the wealthy Walters family, and the town bum, but he had a big car and a lot of money — and Jeanie had him lassoed.

"I was going to telephone you the other night," Alice said, looking straight up into Johnny Lawler's face and still shaking his hand. "I asked Ann Marie if you had asked her to go to the Christmas dance at the club tomorrow night, and she said you hadn't so I was going to ask you to be a big brother to me and take me."

She laughed aloud as if this were a great joke, but her eyes were serious and they never left his face as she spoke.

"I—I just asked Ann Marie to go with me. Just asked her this afternoon," the man answered, looking from her to Ann Marie. "I'm sorry, Alice."

Ann Marie spoke up without a second's pause. "Why don't you take her, Johnny, instead of me?" she said. "You know—you know—I don't care so very much for a dance. And I'll be so tired after I help dad in the store tomorrow—"

Johnny Lawler's gaze swept her face, and a hard angry look came into own. "Yes, I get you, all right, all right," he told her. "You don't have to go with me, Ann Marie. I don't want you to go with me—feeling the way you do about it. About me."

Paul Is Sent Back to the Front Line After His Wounds Are Healed

CHAPTER XXXI.

GRADUALLY a few of us venture to stand up. And I am given crutches to hobble around on. But I do not make much of them! I cannot bear Albert's gaze as I move about the room. His eyes always follow me with such a strange look. So I sometimes escape to the corridor—there I can move about more freely.

On the next floor below are the abdominal and spine cases, head wounds and double amputations. On the right side of the wing are the jaw wounds, gas cases, nose, ear, and neck wounds. On the left the blind and the lung wounds, pelvis wounds, wounds in the joints, wounds in the intestines. Here a man realizes for the first time in how many places a man can get hit.

Two fellows die of tetanus. Their skin turns pale, their limbs stiffen, at last only their eyes live—stubbornly. Many of the wounded have their shattered limbs hanging free in the air from a gallows; underneath the wound a basin is placed into which the pus drips. Every two or three hours the vessel is emptied. Other men lie in stretching bandages with heavy weights hanging from the end of the bed. I see intestine wounds that are constantly full of excreta. The surgeon's clerk shows me X-ray photographs of completely smashed hip-bones, knees and shoulders.

A man cannot realize that above such shattered bodies there are still human faces in which life goes its daily round. And this is only one hospital, one single station; there are hundreds of thousands in Germany, hundreds of thousands in France, hundreds of thousands in Russia. How senseless is everything that can ever be written, done or thought, when such things are possible. It must all be lies and of no account when the culture of a thousand years could not prevent this stream of blood being poured out, these torture chambers in their hundreds of thousands. A hospital alone shows what war is.

I am young, I am 20 years old; yet I know nothing of life but despair, death, fear and fatuous superficiality cast over an abyss of sorrow. I see how peoples are set against one another, and in silence, unknowingly, foolishly, obediently, innocently slay one another. I see that the keenest brains of the world invent weapons and words to make it yet more refined and enduring. And all men of my age, here and over there, throughout the whole world, see these things; all my generation is experiencing these things with me. What would our fathers do if we suddenly stood up and came before them and proffered our account? What do they expect of us if a time ever comes when the war is over? Through the years our business has been killing—it was our first calling in life. Our knowledge of life is limited to death. What will happen afterwards? And what shall come out of us?

After a few weeks I have to go each morning to the massage department. There my leg is harnessed up and made to move. The arm has healed long since.

New convoys arrive from the line. The bandages are no longer made of cloth, but of white crepe paper. Rag bandages have become scarce at the front.

Albert's stump heals well. The wound is almost closed. In a few weeks he should go off to an institute for artificial limbs. He continues not to talk much, and is much more solemn than formerly. He often breaks off in his speech and stares in front of him. If he were not here with us he would have shot himself long ago. But now he is over the worst of it, and he often looks on while we play skat.

I get convalescent leave.

My mother does not want to let me go away. She is so feeble. It is all much worse than it was last time.

Then I am sent on from the base and return once more to the line.

Parting from my friend Albert Kropp was very hard. But a man gets used to that sort of thing in the army.

We count the weeks no more. It was winter when I came up, and when the shells exploded the frozen clods of earth were just as dangerous as the fragments. Now the trees are green again. Our life alternates between billets and the front. We have almost grown accustomed to it; war is a cause of death like cancer and tuberculosis, like influenza and dysentery. The deaths are merely more frequent, more varied and terrible.

Our thoughts are clay, they are moulded with the changes of the days;—when we are resting they are good; under fire, they are dead. Fields of craters within and without.

Everything is so, not only ourselves here—the things that existed before are no longer valid, and one practically knows them no more. Distinctions, breeding, education are changed, are almost blotted out and hardly recognizable any longer. Sometimes they give an advantage for profiting by a situation;—but they also bring consequences along with them, in that they arouse prejudices which have to be overcome. It is as though formerly we were coins of different provinces; and now we are melted down, and all bear the same stamp. To re-discover the old distinctions, the metal itself must be tested. First we are soldiers and afterwards, in a strange and shame-faced fashion, individual men as well.

It is a great brotherhood, which to a condition of life arising out of the midst of danger, out of the tension and forlornness of death, adds something of the good-fellowship of the folk-song, of the feeling of solidarity of convicts, and of the desperate loyalty to one another of men condemned to death—seeking in a wholly unpathetic way a fleeting enjoyment of the hours as they come. If one wants to appraise it, it is at once heroic and banal—but who wants to do that?

It is this, for example, that makes Tjaden spoon down his ham-and-pea soup in such tearing haste when an enemy attack is reported, simply because he cannot be sure that in an hour's time he will still be alive. We have discussed at length, whether it is right or not to do so. Kat condemns it, because, he says, a man has to reckon with the possibility of an abdominal wound, and that is more dangerous on a full stomach than on an empty one.

Such things are real problems, they are serious to us, they cannot be otherwise. Here, on the borders of death, life follows an amazingly simple course, it is limited to what is most necessary, all else lies buried in gloomy sleep;—in that lies our primitiveness and our survival. Were we more subtly differentiated we must long since have gone mad, have deserted, or have fallen. As in a polar expedition, every expression of life must serve only the preservation of existence, and is absolutely focussed on that. All else is banished because it would consume energies unnecessarily. That is the only way to save ourselves. In the quiet hours when the puzzling reflection of former days, like a blurred mirror, projects beyond me the figure of my present existence, I often sit over against myself, as before a stranger, and wonder how the unnamable active principle that calls itself Life has adapted itself even to this form. All other expressions lie in a winter sleep, life is simply one continual watch against the menace of death;—it has transformed us into unthinking animals in order to give us the weapon of instinct—it has reinforced us with dullness, so that we do not go to pieces before the horror, which would overwhelm us if we had clear, conscious thought—it has awakened in us the sense of comradeship, so that we escape the abyss of solitude—it has lent us the difference of wild creatures, so that in spite of all we perceive the positive in every moment, and store it up as a reserve against the onslaught of nothingness. Thus we live a closed, hard existence of the utmost superficiality, and rarely does an incident strike out a spark. But then unexpectedly a flame of grievous and terrible yearning flares up.

Those are the dangerous moments. They show us that the adjustment is only artificial, that it is not simple rest, but sharpest struggle for rest. In the outward form of our life we are hardly distinguishable from Bushmen; but whereas the latter can be so always, because they are so truly, and at best may develop further by exertion of their spiritual forces, with us it is the reverse;—our inner forces are not exerted toward regeneration, but toward degeneration. The Bushmen are primitive and naturally so, but we are primitive in an artificial sense, and by virtue of the utmost effort.

And at night, waking out of a dream, overwhelmed and bewitched by the crowding faces, a man perceives with alarm how slight is the support, how thin the boundary that divides him from the darkness. We are little flames poorly sheltered by frail walls against the storm of dissolution and madness, in which we flicker and sometimes almost go out. Then the muffled roar of the battle becomes a ring that encircles us, we creep in upon ourselves, and with big eyes stare into the night. Our only comfort is the steady breathing of our comrades asleep, and thus we wait for the morning.

Every day and every hour, every shell and every death cuts into this thin support, and the years waste it rapidly. I see how it is already gradually breakinig down around me.

There is the mad story of Detering.

He was one of those who kept himself to himself. His misfortune was that he saw a cherry tree in a garden. We were just coming back from the front line, and at a turning of the road near our new billets, marvelous in the morning twilight, stood this cherry tree before us. It had no leaves, but was one white mass of blossom.

In the evening Detering was not to be seen. Then at last he came back and had a couple of branches of cherry blossom in his hand. We made fun of him, and asked whether he was going to a wedding. He made no answer, but laid them on his bed. During the night I heard him making a noise, he seemed to be packing. I sensed something amiss and went over to him. He made out it was nothing, and I said to him: "Don't do anything silly, Detering."

"Ach, why—it's merely that I can't sleep—"

"What did you pick the cherry branches for?"

"I might have been going to get some more cherry branches," he replied, evasively—and after a while: "I have a big orchard with cherry trees at home. When they are in blossom, from the hay loft they look like one single sheet, so white. It is just the time."

"Perhaps you will get leave soon. You may even be sent back as a farmer."

He nodded, but he was far away. When these peasants are excited they have a curious expression, a mixture of cow and yearning god, half stupid and half rapt. In order to turn him away from his thoughts I asked him for a piece of bread. He gave it to me without a murmur. That was suspicious, for he is usually tight-fisted. So I stayed awake. Nothing happened; in the morning he was as usual.

Apparently he had noticed that I had been watching him—but the second morning after he was gone. I noticed it but said nothing, in order to give him time; he might perhaps get through. Various fellows have already got into Holland.

But at roll call he was missed. A week after we heard that he had been caught by the field gendarmes, those despicable military police. He had headed toward Germany, that was hopeless, of course—and, of course, he did everything else just as idiotically. Anyone might have known that his flight was only homesickness and a momentary aberration. But what does a court-martial hundreds of miles behind the front line know about it? We have heard nothing more of Detering.

KLINE PRAISED IN RADIO TALK

A comparison of the Pittsburgh of today with the Pittsburgh of 1925 shows the accomplishments of the administration of Mayor Charles H. Kline, declared Councilman John S. Herron, speaking last night over Radio Station KDKA.

He mentioned the widening of Grant street, the improvements being made by the Pennsylvania Railroad in the vicinity of the Union Station, the extension of the Boulevard of the Allies, the completion of the Mt. Washington boulevard, the raising of the flood streets on the North Side, the improvements at the City Home at Mayview and the establishment of a modern traffic control system in the downtown triangle as examples of the achievements of the present administration.

Herron stressed the manner in which the Kline administration has co-operated with the county in public improvements, enumerating the new airport, the Liberty Bridge, the Pittsburgh-McKees Rocks Bridge, the West Carson street improvement and the extension of the Ohio River boulevard into the city.

U. S. TO GROUP OFFICES HERE

At the conclusion of the final organization meeting of the Pittsburgh Federal Business Association yesterday, Dr. Henry R. Brown, president, announced that work will begin immediately on the program of co-ordinating all the 38 departments of the Federal government in Pittsburgh.

By merging the various departments into a single unt, and housing a majority of them in the same building, hundreds of thousands of dollars can be saved the government yearly in the Pittsburgh district alone, Dr. Brown said.

At present government offices here are scattered through at least 20 buildings, it was said. Pending erection of the new Federal building, it is planned to move the offices into a central building, which not only will reduce rentals but make it more convenient for citizens visiting them on official business.

LIGHT BRIDGES FOR JUBILEE

Co-operation with the committee for the celebration of the Golden Light Jubilee was voted yesterday by the general executive committee of the Pittsburgh Ohio River celebration at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce.

The river pageant will begin the week of October 12 and the light jubilee October 21.

At the meeting it was decided to decorate all bridges in Pittsburgh with colored lights, as well as many buildings in the downtown district.

C. W. Forcier, assistant to George R. Hann, president of the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries, Inc., attended the meeting and offered the facilities of his company to supplement the celebration with an air pageant preceding the river parade from the downtown wharf to Cairo.

Real Estate

With an increasing demand for sites for gasoline filling stations, automobile service buildings and accessory shops and various grades of refreshment stands, the motor car user is giving an impetus to real estate movement. Nearly every crossroads on the improved highways in Allegheny County has been grabbed up or optioned for some kind of enterprise catering to motorists. In Pittsburgh there is an average of two applications a day for building permits for the erection of new filling stations, and in the country districts the proportion is even greater. High prices for the land or liberal rentals for the sites prevail, and in many cases the improvements are of a permanent character and put surrounding realty values on an upward trend by opening a community for other commercial ventures.

There is also activity in the exchange of automobile service stations. C. L. Saxton Company sold for Emma E. Nolan to A. W. Duncan a two-story building containing two storerooms and eight living rooms on the Butler plank road in Undercliffe, Shaler Township. The consideration was $30,000 and the conveyance included a large stock of confectionery supplies, automobile accessories and the equipment of a filling station. The lot is 185 by 260 feet.

In a $115,000 exchange deal, Louis Goldman sold to Gustav Bastheim his holdings at Aliquippa, comprising a two-story brick building of two stores and six living apartments on a lot 50 to 100 feet at 213-17 Franklin avenue, the consideration being $65,000. At the same time Bastheim sold to Goldman property at 1623-35 Forbes street, Pittsburgh. The lot is 76 by 120 feet, on which are erected 14 brick buildings. The consideration was $50,000. The deal was handled by Ira Ericson, representing White & Co. Mr. Ericson sold for S. Stewart a lot 50 by 162 feet in Northumberland street to S. Lando for $10,200 cash.

James Klein will erect a brick dwelling in Sunset street, Twenty-sixth Ward, at an estimated cost of $8,000.

Anna Free has applied for a permit to erect a brick dwelling at 2831 Castlegate street, Nineteenth Ward. It will cost about $5,000.

PITTSBURGHERS ON AQUITANIA

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Refreshed by a summer's vacation abroad, Miss Lorain Mace, of 1728 Wightman street, and Miss Louise Friedlander, of 1128 Wightman street, Pittsburgh, have returned from Europe in the S. S. Aquitania. Miss Mace said most of her time on the other side was occupied in touring through England and France.

The Aquitania also brought in L. E. Einstein, United States minister to Czecho-Slovakia, three international polo stars, Stephen Sanford, Capt. C. T. I. Roark and Capt. C. H. Tremaine, in adition to a group of 75 engineers from Moscow on their way to the Ford plant in Detroit. There they will study the automobile and tractor industry, and the knowledge gained will be applied later in the new Ford factory in Moscow.

STRIKE LEADER WILL SPEAK

Miss Vera Bush, one of the Gastonia, N. C., textile strikers, accused of killing a police chief there, will address a meeting of the Workers Party tonight in Labor Lyceum, 35 Miller street. She is free on $5,000 bail.

The meeting is being held under the auspices of the International Labor Defense, the Workers International Relief and a committee of labor organizations. Pat Devine, organizer of the Communist Party; Pat Toohey, secretary of the National Miners Union; Max Saltzman, of the International Labor Defense and Elbert Tetherow, Gastonia striker, also will speak.

BUGS BAER Says

AROUND THE WORLD IN EIGHTY DAZES

ENDURANCE flights in St. Louis prove that it's possible to fly around the world without sticking your head out of the window.

"Bugs" Baer

Science and research have made such remarkable strides that all a man has to do is to think of the 18-day diet and he's hungry again.

So far as the average franchised suburbanite is concerned, flying is something like harpooning whales.

We can talk about these marvelous sports all day and win nothing but the rocking-chair championship.

To fly around the world without a stop is comparable only to trying to drink up the Great Lakes without being thirsty.

Suppose you did leave New York, buzz around this world, and arrive back in New York without having set foot on land, sea or restricted zone.

The same friends who waved you goodby would be there to wave you away again when you got back.

They would welcome you with retrograde gestures and much cheering.

Then they would ask you where you had been.

Your answer would have to be, "Darned if I know."

Flyng over Paris without stopping is the ideal way of touring France. Just imagine being able to drop a 16-pound sash weight on your favorite concierge.

You would go over England in the usual close-fitting channel fog. Looking south over Siberia, and points worse, you would observe the Russians and the Chinese enjoying their daily dozen peaces-without-victories.

The rest of the trip would be over the Pacific and 3,000 miles of civic traffic jams.

The first thing you know you would be in Chicago which is usually the last thing you know.

There would be no stops anywhere. Even though some stubborn red-nosed passengers would insist on hovering over the chimney of a Scottish distillery and refueling in midair.

What we cannot understand is why anybody should pack a trunk, put it in an airplane and fly it 24,000 miles around the world.

Thus depriving the border gendarmes of the pleasure of kicking the contents of his baggage around Europe in an insolent Bulgarian manner.

A tourist in Europe is hamburgered by the slow process of efficiency and elimination. If you buy anything in France the Germans search you. If you buy anything in Germany the English search you.

Which is a good reason for flying. Your life is in danger. But your baggage is safe.

No-Accident Mark Gives Careful Men Trophy

A conspicuous achievement is the gaining of permanent possession of a trophy for a no-accident record by the building and maintenance department of the sub-stations and shops division of the Duquesne Light Company. Winning it for the third time gives the department the honor of taking this particular trophy out of competition, which has been conducted for periods of a year, the winners having gone through their final period and some time previously without an accident causing loss of time. Surely this is a record to be proud of.

The trophy was donated by F. R. Phillips, senior vice president of the Philadelphia Company, who will offer another in view of the fact that the first no longer is a prize for which careful employ may strive.

Such competitions are commendable—and profitable. In this one department no man lost time in a year because of an accident. That means a lot to the men and to the company and to the families of the men depending upon their earning capacity. The departments that came second and third also benefited in whatever extent special care cut down the number of time-loss accidents.

It pays to avoid getting hurt even if no trophy is won as a result.

Rotarians Gain Merit By Giving Lads Outing

Honor to the members of Rotary Clubs of various East Boroughs, who have arranged to finance vacation outings of several hundred boys at the East Boroughs Scout Council Camp near Ligonier! The plan arranged will give deserving lads financially unable to take such a trip just the kind of a vacation every young male enjoys. They will have every privilege of a regular Scout while in the camp.

That is the kind of news, appearing amidst the daily grist of all kinds of happenings, that makes one think this is not such a tough old world after all and "that man's inhumanity to man" is more or less a myth.

Cancer a Menace

But Even Cancer Might Be Worse.

If you try, you can find something cheerful to say, even about cancer. The mysterious disease that attacks and kills so many.

A high percentage of human beings are immune to cancer, and have no reason to fear it. The difficulty is to identify the immune. One per cent inherit a TENDENCY to cancer. The disease itself is NOT inherited.

Those that have the hereditary predisposition to cancer are in the greatest danger from injury or constant irritation of one spot. To such individuals the injury of constant irritation, according to the distinguished surgeon, Dr. Rudolph Magas, is "like a lighted match in a powder magazine."

Take surface cancers early and there is little danger. The irritation of a cigar or pipe held in the same place in the mouth, often in spite of soreness, is a frequent cause of cancer.

Use Copper

Save Money.

Copper, delivered in London, recently went up 12 pounds, $60, a ton, and London wants an explanation.

The explanation is that many are learning that it is cheaper to use copper, which LASTS, than to use something that doesn't last.

In 1928, for instance, this country used 76,777,400 pounds of brass pipe, five times as much as in 1922. So says the Copper and Brass Research Association.

The year 1928 used 14,000,000 pounds more brass pipe than 1927 used. Brass pipe, which will still be in good condition in 2029, makes copper, even at 24 cents a pound, economical sometimes.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

TWO things are necessary if you would make a great adventure of life—

YOU MUST BE ABLE TO STAND . . . AND UNDERSTAND.

Understand Yourself, first of all.

That may seem to you an easy job, but it isn't. The wisest men on earth have never completed that job. We know less about ourselves than about any other subject on earth. It's harder to understand yourself than any other creature—AND IT TAKES MORE COURAGE TO FACE THE TRUTH ABOUT YOURSELF THAN TO DO THE MOST HEROIC FEAT.

If you're studying anything else you WANT to learn the truth.

But if you're studying yourself you want to DUCK the truth.

Yet your whole success as a human being depends on understanding yourself.

Start today. Study yourself—ruthlessly. Cut out your alibis, your self-pity, your evasion, your self-coddling. Study exactly why you do things, and don't pretty up the diagnosis. Get books to help you—sound, simple books on psychology and physiology. Read—and then don't apply the facts to the other fellow apply them to YOURSELF.

Understand yourself as thoroughly as possible—

THEN TRY TO UNDERSTAND THE OTHER FELLOW.

There, too, you're up against a tough job—a job made tough by your own egotism. You've always felt that it was quite easy for YOU to understand your fellow man. You MIGHT need instructions on how to operate a new fangled can opener or make a special cake, but when it came to judging another soul, YOU HAD ALL THE DOPE!

Well, you haven't. Only God has the dope on the other fellow. So stop judging, and study. Look behind his orneriness and discover the source of his impulse. Hidden hurts and hidden hopes influence you—they influence him too. You're both better and worse than you seem—so is he. Feel as tolerant for his weakness as you do for your own. UNDERSTAND HIM, EVEN IF YOU HAVE NO NOBLER REASON THAN TO USE HIM FOR YOUR ENDS.

Understand yourself—understand the other fellow—

THEN TRY TO UNDERSTAND THE WORLD IN WHICH YOU LIVE.

Try to understand the great currents of human progress and your own place in that current. Learn to think for yourself, not only as a member of your own family, an inhabitant of your own village, a citizen of your own nation—BUT AS A CITIZEN OF THE WORLD.

Then, when you have come to an end of your understanding, seek for the strength to STAND that which is not understandable.

You will never be able to understand life—nor death—nor pain—nor injustice—nor God himself. You must spend your life in a riddle, but you may spend it as a conqueror if you have learned how to STAND.

Stand gallantly! Do not sneer, or whine or try to run away or fly into tantrums at destiny. Stand firm, with your head high and your heart unshaken, whatever may happen to you. For though you cannot have the wisdom of a God, you may have the bearing of a Man.

And if, at the end, other men shall say—"He was honest and kind in his understanding and brave and patient in his endurance"—that is enough!

Bible Passages

All Things Through Christ

(Philippians 4; 4-13.)

REJOICE in the Lord always: and again I say, Rejoice.

Let your moderation be known unto all men. The Lord is at hand.

Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God.

And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.

Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things.

Those things, which ye have both learned, and received, and heard, and seen in me, do: and the God of peace shall be with you.

But I rejoiced in the Lord greatly, that now at the last your care of me hath flourished again; wherein ye were also careful, but he lacked opportunity.

Not that I speak in respect of want: for I have learned, in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content.

I know both how to be abased, and I know how to abound: everywhere and in all things I am instructed both to be full and to be hungry, both to abound and to suffer need.

I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

At the Botanist's

In the Garden:

GARDEN ways wear lilies white
At the botanist's,
Red rose flaunting her delight
Through morn's pearl-pale mists:
Mignonette all drenched with dew,
Bee and primrose kiss . . .
Was that garden Adam knew
Half so fair as this?

In the Study:

THE study is a book-lined, dusty place
That knows the aster's history, not her grace,
And here the botanist, so wizen, old,
Pastes on a staring page a marigold.
A master, he, still keen of mind and sight,
Who catalogs this April hour's delight,
"Calendula officinalis," there;
But has forgotten spring twines them in her hair.
"And so you come to study here with me?"
He asks; I glimpse, outside, a pollened bee.
"It was my wish, but now I beg you, sir,
Make me not botanist, but gardener!"

NO MANNA THIS YEAR

By Herbert Kaufman

THE ghosts of several ancestors blushingly apologize for your whines.

Picture their handicaps and realize what they made OF and for themselves in an untrod wilderness.

They found only Indian trials; they were forced to create their own roads as they journeyed.

They slept under the stars, slaughtered their meat on the hoof with musketoon and flintlock, and drove ox-teams three thousand miles over unmapped plains and pathless ranges.

While you can rove at random, assured of a roof, provisions and official safeguards wherever you land.

WITH airships above, automobiles below, radios flashing space, surgeons transplanting bones, chemists producing dyestuffs and drugs from coal tar, waterfalls lighting cities and driving engines, what further inspiration can you demand, what other guarantees do you require, what extra incentive can you seek for success?

If you aren't making headway, you're either a moron, a don't-give-a-damner or an erratic untrustworthy JUMP-ABOUT.

The world is giving every energetic, enthusiastic, persistent man a square deal.

When you start to grumble to yourself, it's time to tumble to yourself.

You revel in comforts that Xerxes and Charles the Fifth or Louis Quinze couldn't command at the price of provinces—sanitary plumbing, elevators, electric lights, gas ranges, telephones, daily papers, trolley cars, automobiles, steam heat and frozen air.

THE fastest gait at which Caesar ever rode was under fifteen miles an hour.

Charlemagne could create kings with a nod, but no skill in all his domains could ease the Emperor's gum boil.

Napoleon's physicians weren't half so clever as your family doctor.

Cease grouching. You're better off than a medieval millionaire. And a mightier lord than any Elizabethan baron—a sovereign in the full enjoyment of every liberty—subject to no outside will or whim—privileged to go WHERE you please and do WHAT you like.

And even Law must prove you're WRONG before it can exercise its RIGHTS.

SO how do you figure that "NO CHANCE" stuff?

Opportunity's a magic purse—the more you take from it, the more you put in it. Only asses and idlers find it empty.

There are two basic classes of men—those who SIGH for a chance and those who VIE for it—the WISHERMAN who sticks to the SHALLOWS, and the FISHERMAN who keeps sailing, until he arrives where the "big ones" are biting.

The last crop of manna failed when Moses left the neighborhood. The offspring of Elijah's ravens can scarcely locate food enough for home needs.

The ear of Providence manages to catch most of the prayers of misfortune, but there is no sympathy in Heaven, or on earth, for the invertebrate who won't risk a BLISTER to get ahead.

IS THE UNIVERSE FINITE?

By Archibald Henderson

NOT all scientists by any means, in the past, have accepted Newton's formulation of the law of universal gravitation. It is true that this law, with but one exception, holds with remarkable accuracy for our planetary system. But does it also hold for the bodies at immeasurably great distances apart? In his famous paper in 1895, "Concerning Newton's Law of Gravitation," Seeliger affirms—whether truly or not need not be argued here—that we have only two alternatives. These alternatives are as follows:

First, let us suppose the common mass of the universe to be immeasurably large. In that case the Newtonian law is not valid, as a mathematically strict expression, for the controlling powers.

Second, if the Newtonian law is absolutely exact, then the common mass of the universe must be definite. With the Newtonian law, we could not have an absolutely empty space—for in that case the common mass would be zero. A universe filled with infinitely tenuous matter would not be in conformity with the Newtonian law, either, argues Seeliger. Let us see how the argument runs.

Suppose the universe to be infinite in extent and that there be an attenuated swarm of fixed stars of approximately the same kind and density. Then, no matter how far we might penetrate the inter-stellar spaces, we should always be traveling in a universe with a finite average density.

Now it is a well-known principle in mathematics, in accordance with Newton's law of gravitation and a familiar theorem advanced by the great geometer, Gauss, that a material body on the surface of a very large spherical portion of the universe would be attracted by a force proportional to the product of the radius of that sphere of great size and the average density of matter.

As this average density of matter, according to our assumption, is finite, and the radius of the spherical portion of the universe increases without limit, then the product increases without limit. Hence the force at work, namely, the intensity of the gravitational field, would increase without limit. This is impossible, since gravitational fields of such enormously great density have not been found by astronomers to exist in the universe. Hence, under the Newtonian law of gravitation, we cannot have an average mean density of matter throughout an infinite universe.

Let us consider the other alternatives. If the mean density of the matter were infinitesimally small, then we should have to think of the cosmos as if it were an island of finite extent surrounded on all sides by infinite empty space. In that case the light of the stars, and isolated stars themselves, would drift away into the infinite. Gradually this ephemeral cosmos would vanish away and disappear.

This view is scarcely tenable. Astronomical observation gives no hint of such a dislocation. Astrophysical research does not support the view that the energy of the cosmos is continually being dissipated. This is fortunate for our piece of mind. For we all resent and reject the notion that the cosmos is gradually dissolving and melting away!

A doctor came along and says, "Here, bo, you ain't looking well! Are you sick?"

"Well," he says, "I'm in poor health."

"I should say so. What are you doing about it?"

"Why, I'm going to Europe for my health, if this guy ever gets around to look at my passport."

"Well, how did you get so run down?"

"Why, working like sin to get the money to go to Europe on."

Happy Young Man

Governor Smith's Son Begins His Life Work.

On the right, Governor Smith's son, kneeling before Cardinal Hayes, receives from his father, Governor Smith, also kneeling, a diploma issued by Manhattan College.

The photograph shows three faces, Gov. Smith on the left, his young son just graduating and receiving his diploma, and the benevolent Cardinal Hayes, smiling kindly on the young man.

This young member of the Smith family will have an easier start in life than his father had, as the Governor's autobiography tells in describing his early days.

The son will begin with many friends, with the specter of poverty far away, no question of being compelled to do the hard work that his father did for years.

The happy father smiles here as though he were as young as his own son.

Perhaps in the long run the experiences that the father went through will be better for the making of a man than the [illegible] road that the son will travel.

It all depends on family influence, on HEREDITY AND ENVIRONMENT.

Advantages that his father never had his son has in abundance. His life will tell whether he will be able to use the great advantages as brilliantly as his father used the lesser advantages.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, August 17.—The Rialto's 400 flowers in the Mayfair Club, a midnight supper and dance organization, holding forth every Saturday night during the theatrical season and whose membership is supposed to include the creme de la creme of theatrical society—the big names.

Only those conspicuously identified with the theater are eligible but they may invite as many visitors among hoi polloi as they please. The sessions are held in the Crystal Room of the Ritz and the tariff is $10 per person. There are about 60[illegible] members who come powdered up with their own importance.

They gather immediately after theater and disperse with the first rattle of the milk can. On the dance floor, visiting yahoodis may have a close-up of the stellar luminaries they pay eight bucks a seat to see across the footlights. All are on parade.

Stake folk, the most jealous-minded on the globe, fraternize with easy familiarity when thrown together. Indeed, they coo, swapping trade-lasts and gurgling pretty phrases. For those, who have followed the theater and know its pettiness, the hypocrisy is grand.

The lesser lights are able at the Mayfair to see Francine Larrimore's newest headdress, Regina Wallace's latest frock, Leonore Ulric's half-barbaric frizz, Eva La Gallienne's frosty tautness, Dorothy Knapp's kittenish coyness and Leon Errol's gutta percha leg for the once behaving.

Everybody when not dancing or nibbling at watercress salads, watches the entrance, for any moment a managerial mogul, such as David Belasco, Flo Ziegfeld, Arthur Hopkins or George White, may pop in. And if you want to see show folk put on the lug, watch them around a producer.

The Mayfair is no weekly carousal. People are on their good behavior and want to appear very what ho. And, being adept at acting, they do it with a bang. The Mayfair is as mayfairish as Mayfair itself. No one is asked to do an impromptu bit. They just preen. And their preening is spoken of highly.

Spat wearers must be caught young. A manufacturer of spatterdashes—trail this column and know things—discovers no one takes up spats after 30. As the years roll up, it becomes increasingly difficult to lean over to button them. Fifteen years ago they were seldom seen off Fifth avenue. The hinterland saw them only on the cane-sucking dudes in comic weeklies. Today more than 2,000,000 pairs a year are sold in every part of the land.

There are sections even in Manhattan where spats inspire a behind-the-hand snigger. This is especially true along the Bowery and Tenth avenue. I have been on the receiving end of hoots myself on these thoroughfares. And I blush so easily.

Spats, unlike the wrist watch have never quite outgrown the suggestion of foppishness. Yet there are innumerable who are not wearing them as a concession to a fashionable fetish. They are merely more comfortable around the ankles than stiff leather. And you can cling to summer oxfords a bit longer.

In ultra cafes orchids are displayed pinned to purses and vanity cases. Orchids clash with so many colors when worn as a corsage or pinned to the shoulder. A florist says New York beaux buy $15,000 worth of orchids daily, the sillies.

The newest idiocy in metropolitan extravagance concerns a fellow who bought an imported closed car solely for the theater. Using it for the first time, he discovered there was not enough room for his silk hat. Instead of discarding the hat, he bought a new car. And someone ought to buy that bird a new head.

Several months ago a New Yorker was driving his auto home late in a rain. A taxi overtook him, and the driver declared the auto had run over a man a few blocks back. An unconscious man was found in the street and rushed to a hospital, where he passed away. The autoist, whose standing is high, had no knowledge of hitting anyone. The taxi driver was never found. And, despite the fact the accused was exonerated in court, he has become a nervous wreck.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

SHE has a position as a telephone operator and bookkeeper in an establishment where only one woman is employed.

"No, the men do not try to get familiar with me; they know I won't stand for it," says she.

"Men are all right, generally speaking, and especially is this true of men who want to hold their jobs, and they won't go beyond bounds if a girl conducts herself in the proper way."

Many times when girls complain about the actions of men in the places where they are employed they are much to blame themselves.

The girl who wants to be a good-fellow sort will be treated that way.

Some men are likely to misunderstand the actions of a girl of this kind, however, and overstep her idea of being a good fellow.

There are many girls who will permit liberties that encourage men to go still further or to attempt to do so.

Then there is complaint to the head of the department.

This may result in a change of manner of treatment or it may mean a bitter enmity that may result unfavorably for the girl.

To be treated properly a girl should show that she wants to command respect.
